The lights stayed on last night at the Marin Civic Center (left) and PG&E office in San Rafael while the nation worried about the energy crunch.

Nixon's Energy-Saving Policies Gain Endorsement

Most Marin and Southern Sonoma County residents quizzed yesterday on the energy crisis said they believe it's good to cut down on electricity and natural gas use and to drive a little slower.

Independent-Journal reporters asked residents selected at random from telephone directories, how they reacted to the energy crisis itself, and to President Richard M. Nixon's proposed countermeasures.

Citizens were dubious about building more nuclear power plants — saying they feared pollution — but generally were compliant with other plans. Most persons interviewed also stressed they wanted investigation and action on the governmental agencies and industries responsible for the energy crunch.

It wouldn't hurt families to wash dishes by hand and use a clothesline instead of an energy-consuming dryer, asserted one woman, Mildred Howie, 51, of 212 Granada Drive, Corte Madera. But she like many others, was less enthusiastic about reducing speed limits to save gasoline — fearing it won't be enforced.

Here are the views expressed:

Maj. Mark D. Malkasian, 33, Presidio engineer, 364 Ross Drive, Sausalito — "I think it is too little, too late. I think there should be more ideas given to the individual on what he can do around the home to save electricity. There should be an effort to get Detroit to produce more economical cars instead of giving us the gas burners we have now."

Steve Ryan, 24, carpenter, 24 Calle Del Embarcadero, Stinson Beach — "I have been conserving energy normally anyway. The shortage is a reality until we build nuclear power plants and I am against that. But I didn't listen to Nixon, though, because I want him impeached."

Ronald Sweet, 36, criminologist, 420 Overlook Drive, Bolinas — "We must conserve as much as possible regardless of the shortage. But the emphasis is wrong. There is no emphasis on decreasing profits of large firms. For example, the plastics industry has realized incredible profits in the last few years and they use oil on a huge scale. And the oil industry has shown increasing profits in the past few years, as well. The consumer must do something, too, but he is only about a quarter of the problem."

Carol Lee, 37, housewife, 122 Grande Vista, Novato — "I am trying to keep the lights down and we are burning wood to save gas (in the heater) and are being a little more conscious of turning out lights when we're not in a room. It would help me if they opened up the commissary at Hamilton Air Force Base, on saving gasoline. I have to drive 25 miles to Two Rock or San Francisco for shopping."

Debra Wilson, 19, restaurant worker, 29 San Andreas Court, Novato — "We've been keeping our speed down to 50 or 60, and we go to bed early and have the electric blankets on rather than the heater."

Allen Desmond, 35, real estate salesman, 399 Fairway Drive, Novato — "I think we have to go to nuclear power eventually. The longer we hold off the worse the situation is going to get . . . and these people racing 75 to 80 miles an hour burning up fuel . . . that has to come to a halt too."

Ruth K. Nash, 33, teacher on leave, 28 Bayo Vista Avenue, Larkspur — "I did not hear Nixon's talk but we purchased our home a year ago to be near mass transit. We're a block away from the bus stop . . . there is a lot of waste of fuel . . . I don't trust industry fully; they haven't made enough effort to find alternative means of energy."

Anna Bella Collins, nurse, 390 Holly Drive, San Rafael — "I watched parts of the President's

6-Point Plan For Mideast

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today announced Israeli and Egyptian acceptance of a six-point truce plan that would lead to a formal peace conference, but a last minute disagreement developed in Israel and the cabinet met in emergency session to study the snags.

An Israeli spokesman said the government would issue a communique later on Kissinger's compromise solution, but in the meantime there was no official comment on his announcement which apparently took Prime Minister Golda Meir by surprise.

Israeli sources said the hitches involved Israeli control or inspection rights to supplies reaching both the surrounded Egyptian 3rd Army and the city of Suez, and the lifting of the Egyptian blockade of the Bab el-Mandeb Strait at the entrance to the Red Sea.

The Kissinger communique contained no mention of the lifting of the blockade, something that government sources said Israel had demanded, and received, in its negotiations on the settlement. It also provided for checking supplies for the 3rd Army but not for the city of Suez.

Even as the Israeli government was making its decision, the military command reported three incidents on the cease-fire lines:

A plane on a reconnaissance mission along the Egyptian front was shot down by a SAM missile. The command would not say if it was in Arab air space but said the two crewmen

Bias Eyed In Hiring By Sheriff

The Marin County Human Rights Commission last night agreed to look into minority race hiring practices for positions in the county sheriff's department.

According to Douglas H. Bosco, executive director of the human relations department, the number of minority race members employed in the sheriff's department appears to be low.

(Personnel department figures show seven such employees out of a total department staff of 159 as of Aug. 31.)

Bosco said his discussions with Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos indicated he wants more minority employees but is limited to selecting new employees from a list of qualified applicants supplied by the county personnel office.

Richard Uchida, senior personnel analyst, countered today that selection lists supplied the sheriff in the past have contained names of qualified minority race members.

Bosco said the rights commission requested copies of employment tests and application forms to see if they contain anything that might tend to discriminate against minorities.

Little Rain Predicted On Weekend

There may be some bright moments this weekend, the weatherman predicted today, saying that rain will continue at times tonight.

Tomorrow and Sunday, however, should be only partly cloudy with a chance of showers tomorrow and more clearing on Sunday.

Rain this morning slowed commute traffic on Highway 101 to a snail's pace. The California Highway Patrol reported that cars were moving at an average of 10 miles per hour all the way from Petaluma to the Golden Gate Bridge.

Amounts of rainfall reported in various areas in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today were:

Sausalito, .07 of an inch; Mill Valley, .13; Tamalpais Valley, .15; Belvedere, .07; San Anselmo, .20; Woodacre, .40; Novato, trace, and Petaluma, .15.

Six Watergate Conspirators Are Given Prison Sentences

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Six of the Watergate burglary conspirators were sentenced to prison terms today ranging from one year minimum to a maximum of eight years.

Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica meted out the heaviest sentence to E. Howard Hunt who was given a sentence of two and a half to eight years and fined $10,000.

Bernard L. Barker, identified as the recruiter of three other Miami-based men who broke into Democratic national headquarters on June 17, 1972, was sentenced from 18 months to six years. James W. McCord, like Hunt a leader in the burglary-bugging operation, was ordered to jail from one to five years.

Three Cuban-born men recruited by Barker for the break-in were given lesser sentences of one to four years, making possible their release by parole before Christmas. The three, described by their attorneys as "soldiers" in the Watergate affair, are Frank W. Sturgis, Virgilio R. Gonzalez and Eugenio R. Martinez.

In another federal courtroom, U.S. District Judge Gerhardt E. Gesell announced he would rule on a move to have the firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox declared illegal. The suit was brought by consumer crusader Ralph Nader and three members of Congress.

Elliot L. Richardson said today that despite his resignation as attorney general over the firing of Cox, he believes President Nixon has been fully truthful in denying complicity in the Watergate scandal.

Both Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus, who also left the Justice Department because of the Cox ouster, urged that Nixon make a full disclosure of any material bearing on the affair.

Richardson was asked in an interview on the NBC-TV Today Show if he felt Nixon had told the "whole truth" in his repeated denials of any knowledge until last spring that highranking aids had been involved in the Watergate cover-up.

"Everything I know supports the conclusion that he has," Richardson said. "I've found him personally convincing on this ... In my very first meeting with him on the subject of my nomination as attorney general, he was at pains himself to assure me that he had not had any direct knowledge of these things or any part in them ... and he was very emphatic in saying in effect that if I didn't believe that I shouldn't take the

Federal Control Over State Energy Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Interior Committee agreed today that the federal government should control energy sources —except for natural gas —within a state in order to handle the winter's fuel emergency.

The committee accepted an amendment by Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., to exempt natural gas from the extension of federal control over energy deliveries entirely within a state.

The committee took the action while editing a bill to give the President emergency powers over energy production and use. Outside the room, the corridor lights of the New Senate Office Building were turned off in line with President Nixon's request to cut down on use of energy.

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he hoped to complete "markup" of the bill today. He expected the only big fight would be from some senators, chiefly from oil-producing states, to get a clause in the bill taking federal controls off natural gas prices at the point of production.

"Our target is to get the bill to the floor of the Senate Tuesday for debate and a vote," Jackson told UPI after a nonstop 11-hour hearing yesterday.

The bill will be an combination of the President's proposals and Jackson's views in a bill he introduced Oct. 18.

LIGHTS GO OFF — The fountain at the North Portico of the White House (top) is bathed in lights — pre-energy days. As of last night (bottom), the lights were turned off.

Sweater Weather For White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House thermostats locked at a 68-degree maximum and a lights-out policy imposed at government buildings were the first signs yesterday of the Nixon administration practicing what it preached about conserving energy.

Workmen installed stops on the executive mansion heat controls as secretaries wore sweaters to insulate themselves, The temperature in the Oval Office when President Nixon entered to begin his afternoon work was 65.

Nixon ordered the lights turned out after dark at all buildings under executive branch control, with the exception of the Washington Monument, the Supreme Court, the Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials and the White House itself.

But lighting of those symbolic structures was to be dimmed 50 per cent and cut off altogether at 10 p.m., two hours earlier than normal. The only lights to remain on all night are the ones illuminating the flag atop the White House and various lights on the grounds needed for security purposes.

First Lady Pat Nixon also ordered the fountains on the White House lawn shut down for the winter as well as the heater that keeps the water from freezing.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said, however, that the conservation efforts will not affect Nixon's frequency of travel. But he said the presidential air fleet will fly at reduced speeds to save fuel.

37-Year-Old Bill Is Paid

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) —An elderly Tucson woman apparently had misplaced a bill from a local hospital and when she discovered it she scurried over to make payment.

The original bill was $19, but the woman reached into her purse and placed $250 on the counter.

"When were you in the hospital?" the cashier asked.

"In 1936," replied the woman.

Atlanta Bank Bandit Gunned Down In Middle Of Hostages

ATLANTA (UPI) —A police sniper, firing from the roof of a bank, last night shot a bandit crouched in the middle of four women hostages. The bandit fell into the clear and was riddled by bullets only a few feet from a getaway car containing $200,000 in cash.

The dead man, tentatively identified as George Lenton Whitfield, 32, of New Carrollton, Md., wounded policeman J. B. Adams before he died in the police and FBI fusillade. Adams, a rescue truck drive, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition with a stomach wound.

A milling, gawking crowd of several hundred persons watched the violent end to a three-hour drama that began just before closing at the Spring Street Branch of the First National Bank.

The gunman, a nattily dressed black, asked about loan information and then pulled a gun. One of the bank employes tripped a silent alarm but the gunman heard the alert on a police radio monitor he was carrying.

Police and FBI units swarmed to the bank, located one block off Atlanta's North Expressway, but the gunman threatened to kill the four women tellers if he was not given a safe sendoff with $200,000. The branch bank had only $50,000 and had to send to the main office for the remainder.

The money was placed in a getaway car by branch manager Elmer Schneid, who agreed to drive the vehicle. Schneid was sitting in the car, with the motor running, when the bandit emerged from the bank with two women in front of him and two behind him.

A police sniper atop the one-story bank saw an opening as the group walked toward the car and he shot the bandit in the chest. Three of the women ran screaming into the darkness, but the man grabbed the other one around the neck and fired over her shoulder, apparently striking Adams. The sniper fired again, hitting the man in the head, and the other hostage fled. The bandit, then in the clear, was riddled by an estimated 40 bullets from policemen and federal agents.

Ransom Is Paid, But No Hostage

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —The Argentine subsidiary of a U.S oil company paid a $1 million ransom two weeks ago for the release of a kidnaped American executive, but the hostage was not freed, business sources said yesterday.

Her Money To Go To Charity

MIAMI (UPI) — Evelyn Mitchell had lived the life of the ideal secretary. She once said she did everything for her boss during the 20 years she worked for him except empty the cuspidor and that only "because the firm didn't have one."

Miss Mitchell's boss happened to be a man who knew how to repay loyalty. He left her $1 million in his will.

After a long heart ailment, the millionaire "girl-Friday" to the late Arthur Vining Davis died yesterday at Miami Heart Institute.

Doctor Says Heart Attack Stage Set While A Child

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) —An Arizona pediatrician believes the stage for an eventual heart attack or stroke is set in childhood and that one out of every two of today's youngsters someday will fall victim of heart disease.

"We have a massive epidemic now but I don't think that's anything to what's coming in another 20 or 30 years," said Dr. Glenn Friedman, of the Arizona Medical Center, Tucson. "This whole problem to me is of primary priority in pediatrics".

He said at a news conference yesterday at a national meeting of the American Heart Association that arterosclerosis — hardening of the arteries—is the nation's number one health problem. It is the process by which the inner linings of the arteries become thickened with deposits of fat and other substances, interfering with the flow of blood.

"The disease starts in many young people, maybe most," he said. "The patterns of living are established with the children the way we eat, the way we exercise, the way we smoke, obesity, hypertension (high blood pressure) are all there.

"We think if there's any reversibility, perhaps it might be best accomplished early in life."

Doctors believe that one of the key contributions to hardening of the arteries is high level of fatty substances called cholesterol in the blood. Smoking, high blood pressure and lack of exercise also are considered risk factors.

To counter the amounts of fats consumed, Friedman and associates have recommended to the parents of the children they treat that the youngsters' diets be modified to reduce the amount of fat eaten.

It's interesting that the average American is taking twice as much protein as he needs and with it is coming fat and cholesterol."

He said a three-year study of children on this modified diet and those who were not showed no differences except that the children on a reduced fat diet had lower levels of cholesterol in their blood.

Friedman said he did not have evidence that he was going to reduce heart disease by reducing fat and other risk factors in children. But he said, "we know there's no advantage to having a risk factor. It's reasonable to assume, I think, that we'd be better off if we had lower risk factors."

"I think if the present statistics are any information, one out of two children and infants will eventually be involved with a coronary or a stroke. That's right now. Who knows where it's going to be in another 20, 30 or 40 years.

"It seems to me that the people who are having their problems now were probably living at a lower risk (as children) than is the present generation."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Rail Corporation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to create a federal corporation to do what bankrupt Eastern railroads were unable to do as private companies — abandon unprofitable lines and rebuild the remaining ones into a strong rail system.

The $1.4 billion measure passed 306 to 82, contemplates formulation within 20 months of a plan for a new rail system stretching from New England to the Mississippi River, to be composed of the most-used lines of the seven bankrupt railroads.

Thousands of miles of rail line, perhaps 5,000 to 10,000 of the approximately 30,000 miles affected, likely would be abandoned unless local communities decide to keep it running with federal matching funds.

Bombing Victim

BELFAST (UPI) — Extremists tossed a bomb through the window of a Belfast home last night, seriously wounding the sister of an imprisoned Irish Republican Army leader.

Police said Mrs. Theresa O'Hanlon, sister of Joe Cahill, one-time head of the IRA's militant Provisional wing, was sitting along in her living room when the bomb hurtled through a window and exploded.

Authorities said the explosion touched off a blaze that swept through the house. Mrs. O'Hanlon was taken to a nearby hospital. Her six children, sleeping upstairs, awoke and fled the house unharmed.

Moretti, Brown Leave For Japan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, and Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, have embarked on a nine-day trip to the Orient with planned stops in Japan and South Korea.

The speaker's trip is courtesy of the South Korean government, his office said. Brown's tour is "privately financed," an aide said.

The two left yesterday. In Japan, Moretti, a gubernatorial contender, will meet with officials to discuss the growing role of Japaese business in California.

Cosmos' Cargo

MOSCOW (UPI) —The Soviet Union's Cosmos 605 satellite, launched 10 days ago to test reaction of laboratory animals to space conditions, is carrying white rats, turtles, insects and fungi, a Russian health official said today.

Gas Bomb Explodes

DENVER (UPI) — A deadly GB nerve gas bomb — one of thousands ordered destroyed by the Army — exploded in an empty, airtight room at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal yesterday as technicians mechanically disarmed the device.

There were no injuries and the gas was contained within the room and detoxified immediately using instruments operated from the outside. The device exploded at almost the same time that Army Secretary Howard Callaway was telling the Colorado congressional delegation in Washington that a new facility would be built at the arsenal to speed up detoxification.

Vietnam Clashes

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops clashed with government forces today in the fifth day of infantry, armor and artillery battles for control of the southern Central Highlands. Saigon and Viet Cong spokesmen have called the fighting the start of a third Vietnam war.

The military command said government forces, who have lost three outposts since Sunday, fought early today to halt a Communist push toward the province capital of Gia Nghia, 110 miles north of Saigon.

The command said two government armored troop carriers were heavily damaged in the fighting. A spokesman said there were no immediate casualty figures available

Back To Houston

CAPA CANAVERAL (UPI) — The Skylab 3 crew flew back to Houston yesterday while workmen replaced the cracked tail fins in their launch rocket that delayed their space station flight.

Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Dr. Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue will undergo more training in a model of the eight-room spaceship.

The eight stabilizing fins at the base of the crew's Saturn 1B booster rocket were being changed out because of 14 tiny cracks discovered in their framework.

Partial Eclipse

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (UPI) — A partial eclipse of the sun will be visible in the Eastern half of the United States tomorrow, but it will not be visible without at least a small telescope — and it doesn't have anything to do with the moon.

The planet Mercury passes between the sun and Earth, "eclipsing" about 1-200th of the solar disc. Scientists technically call it "a transit of Mercury." There won't be another one in the United States until May 7, 2003.

Families Lost

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A government task force set out today to find 2,000 families and more than 500 soldiers feared lost in the rebel overthrow of a Cambodian city, but reported no sign of the missing persons.

Field reports said two rescue battalions totaling 700 soldiers today reached Damdek, four miles north of the overrun city of Srang, hoping the missing had sought refuge there but there was no sign of them.

Routine Vehicle Search Turns Up Big Pot Cargo

A routine search of an abandoned pickup truck yesterday revealed what officers believe to be about $25,000 worth of marijuana, Larkspur police reported today.

Six large garbage disposal bags containing 50 soggy kilos of marijuana were found in the truck, completely soaked because a window was left partially open, police said. A kilo weighs about 2.2 pounds.

The truck, registered to Katie Howard, 327 Madrone Avenue, Larkspur, had been marked by officers as abandoned Oct. 26 in front of 22 Redwood Avenue.

A letter was sent to the registered owner and the truck was to be towed yesterday. Officer Walter W. Fischer was making an inventory of the truck's contents when he found the marijuana.

Officer Peter J. Doyle, who marked the truck as abandoned in October, said he had not noticed the bags.

Richardson said that Nixon had demonstrated that a "crisis of confidence" exists, however, and said: "The most important thing he can do is demonstrate through cooperation with the office of the special prosecutor ... that he really does intend to make sure that all facts bearing on the things, any of the issues, or allegations, have been made available."

Richardson said the new prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, must be provided any presidential materials relevant to the case "so that any leads to criminal conduct can be followed up."

Ruckelshaus said on the CBS-TV Morning News program that the public interest now outweighs any questions about compromising the presidential doctrine of executive privilege with respect to White House documents.

"I think one of the wisest course the White House could take is disclosure —full disclosure —of all documents bearing on the case," he said.

Forgery Charge Dropped When Witness Balks

An Oakland man accused of felony check forgery was released when a crucial witness informed the Marin District Attorney's office he would not testify.

Municipal Judge Gary W. Thomas dismissed the charge against Jewel Edward Burns, 31, who had been accused of possessing a forged check with intent to defraud last December in Corte Madera.

Peter W. Evans of the district attorney's office said the East Bay man from whom the check was stolen refused to testify and then dropped out of sight.

Winn To Leave Planning Post

Winn, 32 is a five-year member of the commission. He was elected chairman last year. He lives at 47 Oak Road.

"I'm leaving for personal reasons," he said. "I need a vacation."

The town council will consider Winn's resignation at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fairfax Women's Club.

In other business, the council will consider a 2.5 per cent wage increase for town employees, and adoption of a tough new dog control ordinance.

bailed out into Egyptian territory and their names were given to the Red Cross. Egypt said two Israeli Phantoms were shot down.

Elements of the Egyptian 3rd Army moved westward during the night from their positions on the east bank of the Suez Canal. Israeli troops noted the movement at dawn and warned U.N. observers they would open fire unless the Egyptians withdrew. They did.

Syrian troops on the northern front repeatedly opened fire at Israeli patrols with small arms and sporadic artillery fire during a three-hour span during the morning. Israel answered with small arms fire and no casualties were reported.

The agreement, as announced by Kissinger on his arrival today in the Pakistani capital of Islamabad, provides:

Egypt and Israel agree to observe scrupulously the ceasefire called for by the U.N. Security Council.

Both sides agree that discussions between them will begin immediately to settle the question of the return to the Oct. 22 positions in the framework of agreement on the disengagement and separation of forces under the auspices of the U.N.

The town of Suez will receive daily supplies of food, water and medicine. All woanded civilians in the town of Suez will be evacuated.

There shall be no impediments to the movement of nonmilitary supplies to the east bank of the Suez.

The Israeli checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road will be replaced by U.N. checkpoints. At the Suez end of the road, Israeli officers can participate with the U.N. to supervise the nonmilitary nature of the cargo at the bank of the canal.

As soon as the U.N. check points are established on the Cairo-Suez road, there will be an exchange of all prisoners of war including wounded.

U.S. Ambassador John Scali delivered details of Kissinger's peace stabilization plan to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim in New York today, and called it "good news for the Middle East."

Plans To Save Energy Backed

speech and I plan to cut down. Not because he asked for it but because I was planning to anyway. I've sent my (impeachment) telegram to Washington. I already walk or ride a bicycle instead of using the car whenever I can. I also plan to lower the heat. People are just going to have to wear more."

Robert R. Abbott, 70, retired manufacturing executive, 120 Bothin Road, Fairfax — "Strange you called. I was just writing a letter to the President on the energy crisis ... damn right I agree with him. We have to get with it and do whatever is necessary. He's 100 per cent right. I don't think the oil companies have been remiss. If we are going to have a free capitalistic country we've got to make up our minds. The investors have a right to a return.

Barbara Fox, 46, ice cream truck driver, 325 South McDowell Boulevard, Petaluma — "Think he's right — he knows what he's doing. I don't know if everyone will cooperate — people sometimes do just the opposite. I'm going to do all I can because I want a future. I'm going to turn off more lights, turn the thermostat down a bit and be more careful about the use of the car. It's more comfortable to drive at 50 miles per hour anyway."

Inex Bufton, 34, beautician, 695 Lincoln Avenue, Rohnert Park — "I really didn't pay too much attention to Nixon. I'm trying to remember to turn out lights when I walk out of rooms. Maybe we'll turn the thermostat down. You can only do so much. If they want us to do it, the higher-ups should too."

Dennis Key, 18, architectural draftsman, 410 Petaluma Boulevard South, Petaluma — "I can't unplug my water bed — it gets too cold. Instead I'll turn down the heat and spend more time in the water. I'll burn some candles, too."

Linda Klink, 37, photographer, 95 Marguerite Avenue, Mill Valley — "We keep our house at 62 days and 60 at night. We've done that for years; it's more comfortable and partly because of our fuel bills. The 50-mile-an-hour speed limit is great — a lot fewer people would be killed. What really bugs me is no one thought to restrict the cubic capacity of an engine. It every car was required to get 25 miles a gallon, there would be a lot more fuel for everybody."

Lyle E. Waters, airline navigator, 10 Harbor Oak Drive, Tiburon — "The public can tighten the belt without feeling too many effects. It doesn't hurt much to set down the thermostat at 68 degrees. But I am against cutting standards on air pollution. We have only one environment to protect, so let's make it better by reducing pollution. I just don't like sacrificing improving the environment. I read the oil companies are selling fuel overseas for higher profits, and we ought to take a hard look at their profits."

Elsie M. Farr, 69, office worker, 269 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael — "I'm all for it. I've got my temperature turned down and put an old rug over the fireplace so wind wouldn't be coming in. Did it right last night, and made up my mind I'd go on the bus to work as often as I could. We should all get together and do it. There's no other way."

Helen Nault, 57, housewife, 6 Willow Way, San Anselmo — "It's good for everyone, whether Nixon suggested it or not. I will try it in our home, but if I'm cold, I'm going to put the heat up. It's never up to 78 degrees anyway. I listen to him, but don't heed him; don't heed him or need him."

Judy Nielsen, 31, housewife, 82 Alder Avenue, San Anselmo — "We tried it last night and nearly froze."

John K. Mott, 27, unemployed, 294 Morningstar Avenue, Mill Valley — "I think it was something that needed to be said ... but I wish it had been said by a man like President Kennedy who could have rallied the people to an important cause ... My wife and I talked about how we might be able to conserve energy, but I can't really think of many ways ... On gasoline, rather than lower speed limits, I'd rather see them lower the maximum gross weight or put a minimum of miles per gallon for passenger autos."

John C. Ferraro, 50, service station dealer, 1005 Northgate Drive, Terra Linda — "I think it's terrific, what the President proposed. About the daylight saving, it should save a lot of lights and energy. I don't know about that 50 miles speed limit ... I believe people have to go faster everywhere they go these days."

Richard T. O'Keefe, 50, trucking company supervisor, 31 Corte Ortga, Greenbrae — "It's serious. The situation should have been tended to a long time ago; now it's out of hand. Nixon's proposals were a weak effort, not strong enough. I think we're going to have to go to gasoline rationing since people probably won't do it voluntarily The airlines may have to consolidate routes, those in which four or five airliners are all leaving at the same time for the same place."

S.W. Travis, 58, housewife, 243 Elvia Court, San Rafael — "I'm not sure the energy crisis is genuine. If it is, then someone has been awfully sloppy about the whole thing. It should have been foreseen. "I'm all for the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit; there'd be a lot less accidents. Also, the proliferation of needless electric appliances is becoming ridiculous. Things like an electric bug killer. I don't think we need all those gadgets. We're getting too power-oriented."

Golda Kemper, 74, housewife, 451 Las Collindas Road, Terra Linda — "I do think the energy crisis is a real one and I agree with the President that we will have to make some sacrifices. I would like to see the speed limit cut down. Don't think that would hurt anyone. It would not only save gas; it might save some lives. Putting the thermostat down a couple of degrees won't hurt anyone either. I hope people will eliminate outside decorations for at least this Christmas."

John Barry, 65, insurance agent, 155 Pixley Avenue Corte Madera — "If it's necessary, and I certainly consider it is, he (President Nixon) would be intelligent enough to know what we need. With his conscientious effort for the welfare of the people, I should be inclined to go along with it."

Helen Russell, 52, housewife, 17 La Cuesta Drive, Greenbrae — "I support it. We've turned down our furnace and we're cooperating on the fuel for our car. I don't know what else we can do at the moment. I don't know how effective it's going to be. I feel other steps may have to be taken."

Linda D. Michael, 30, housewife, 120 Walnut Avenue, Corte Madera — "I have to agree that we should reduce somewhat. I am trying in my home. I think industry and some of the department stores should keep the lights down at night."

Madolin K. Mosley, 50, retired advertising man, 10 Skylark Drive, Apt. 19, Larkspur — "I think there is no question there should be cooperation. One thing I would be very interested in is our exporting oil to other countries. It would be important to look at what our larger oil companies are doing. It may be necessary to curtail our exportation of oil. We need it here at home."

William J. Cook, 37, reporter, 416 Summit Drive, Corte Madera — "President Nixon would be more credibie if he didn't build a fire in his office in the middle of the summer and run his air conditioning at the same time."

Mrs. George J. Stevens, 55, housewife, 88 Via Labrisa, Larkspur — "I really don't like it but we will economize in the home and with gasoline. I don't think we'll be too comfortable, but I don't know who to blame for it."

Robert M. Pauley, 73, retired stockman, 225 Humboldt Street, San Rafael — "I'm for it although my wife is against it. She says she is paying for the electricity and gas so will use all she wants to of it. I don't use lights when I don't have to and I drive 50 miles an hour. I don't think industry is wasting energy and is not to blame for the shortage."

Lt. Col. (USA-ret.) H. G. Kleikamp, 67, of 75 Elm Avenue, Mill Valley — "I'm in favor of it. I hope we can do it voluntarily without the government forcing us to it. Going 50 miles an hour is supposed to save two million barrels of oil a day. I think industry is doing all it can to conserve."

Erma Silva, housewife, 35 Palm Avenue, Corte Madera — "I don't like it all. I don't like that daylight saving at all. I don't like the cutting back. A person with a family can't get along with just that heat."

Mrs. John H. Silcox, housewife, 14 Southridge East, Tiburon — "I go along with it all the way."

Mario Panichelli, 40, barber, 475 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur — "I don't think it's all that bad. I think they're just trying to keep the prices up."

Betty Livers, 17, student, 628 Manzanita Avenue, Corte Madera — "I'm not too worried about it because it really doesn't affect me. I think it's a pretty good idea to cut down, but I don't think it's going to affect me too much personally."

Yoland Parsume, 59, fisherman, Nicasio Valley Road, Nicasio — "I think it's a big joke. Here's an easy way to keep warm this winter — just close your windows and run and jump a lot. And anyway, we can burn candles instead of lights."

Mary Emery, 33, homemaker, 842 Greenberry Lane, Lucas Valley — "There would not be a crisis if we used at home what we're sending abroad. But it wouldn't hurt to cut down on what we do use."

Roland Hogan, bank employee, 889 Marin Drive, Tamalpais Valley — "I thought the message stunk. I don't think I'll stop watching TV because I don't watch that much anyhow. When I don't use my lights, I turn them out. Nixon wasn't talking to me."

Elizabeth Insko, "over 60," housewife, 571 Virginia Drive, Tiburon — "I think it's time something was said and done. I immediately got up and turned down the dial on the water heater. We could all save a little bit like this."

Carol Beldon, 34, housewife, 16 Valley Circle Drive, Mill Valley — "I haven't kept up with it all. I have 11-month-old twins and I only worry about getting them to bed."

Mrs. Wyn Belknap, 28, university student, — 806 Denise Court, Tamalpais Valley — "Something should have been done about this a long time ago. Anything he says throws me off. I plan to take some shortcuts around the house, but I don't agree with what he says."

Miles Lupien, 64, retired but part-time worker at a hardware store, 271 Richardson Drive, Strawberry — "I think under the circumstances the message was timely. I support his ideas. I worked 34 years in Saudi Arabia for an oil company and I don't trust those people over there one bit."

Betty G. Pollock, 58, retired, 278 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley — "I don't think anything about Nixon at all anymore. I've been conserving energy anyway. I don't use my lights needlessly."

Burglary Prevention Seminar Set

The Black Canyon Neighborhood Association last night set a burglary prevention seminar for 8 p.m. Dec. 12 at the Marin Ballet School, Elm Street and Grand Avenue.

City officials and policemen will appear at the seminar to explain burglary prevention techniques, and a film on burglary prevention will be screened, according to Howard Levenson, association president.

The association called for enforcement of the city's overnight parking ordinance in the Black Canyon neighborhood, and said that local homeowners should clear walking paths along lower Mountain View Avenue.

The board also elected San Rafael High School student Debra Taylor as recording secretary, Levenson said.

Bicyclist Hurt In Mill Valley

A Mill Valley man suffered head injuries yesterday when the front brakes of the bicycle he was driving apparently locked, throwing him and his 9-year-old daughter to the pavement.

Matthew Davis, 37, of 103 Laverne Avenue, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital. His daughter, Zoe, suffered loosened teeth, but was not hospitalized.

Police said Davis was pedaling south on Miller Avenue with his daughter as a passenger when the bike suddenly overturned near Una Way at 5:48 p.m.

Nixon Pays A Surprise Visit To Nevada Party Honoring Wife

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It was his wife's night, but the President of the United States stole the spotlight.

In one of his rare public outings in recent months, Richard M. Nixon last night dropped in at a dinner honoring three Nevada-born women, including Mrs. Nixon.

Flashing a V for victory sign and looking ebullient, the tuxedo-clad President drew gasps from the audience of over 700 as he strode to the podium.

"You'll have to excuse me for being late," he said. "I could only drive 50 miles an hour, and I have to get back to the White House and finish my work before they turn the lights off."

He glanced at his wife, dressed in a shimmering orange, floor length gown, and spent almost 10 minutes praising womenhood.

"I've always found," he told members of the Nevada State Society, "that whenever you find a strong leader you find a strong woman by his side."

He praised "the character of spirit" exhibited not only by his wife but by the two other women honored, Helen Belich Bentley, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, and Eva Adams, former director of the U.S. Mint.

Then he turned to Mrs. Nixon, who was accompanied by their daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower. He recalled a tumultuous visit in 1958 to Venezuela when he was vice president.

"Our car was badly bashed," he said, referring to a stoning by a mob in Caracas. "And Don Hughes, a military aide, recalled to me that she (Mrs. Nixon) was the bravest woman I ever saw in my life.'"

Nixon recalled a visit with his mother after she had a serious operations.

"She got up on an elbow and said to me 'Richard, don't you ever give up,' and I won't," he told his cheering audience.

Novato Chamber Steps Into Plan Review Policy

Novato Chamber of Commerce directors, believing the city plan review committee is overstepping its bounds, agreed yesterday to discuss the committee's role at a special meeting.

President Gordon L. Lee said some businessmen believe "the plan review committee is taking a role other than that originally designated."

The committee, which reviews signs, landscaping, site design and general appearance of proposed developments, has been accused by some of ruling on matters outside its jurisdiction.

Director Charles E. Lewis described the committee, which has the power to deny plans, as "a stumbling block."

Director Ben F. Edwards, a former city planning commissioner, said at one time there had been "talk about pushing to make it (the committee) advisory and have the staff do plan review."

Denial by the committee can be appealed to the city council.

Remodeling Talks

The San Rafael City Council on Nov. 17 will interview architects seeking to contract with the city for remodeling the Boyd House, headquarters of the Marin Historical Society at the corner of B Street and Mission Avenue, and not the Boyd Museum at 76 Albert Park Lane, as reported in Wednesday's Independent-Journal.

More Than $6 Million For Open Space Purchases

Successful passage this week of two local open space bond measures has increased the total amount approved by voters in various cities and service areas to $6,365,000, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported today.

Since April of last year, seven of eight open space measures have been approved in addition to formation of a countywide regional park district which raises about $800,000 annually.

Approved Tuesday were bond measures of $850,000 in the Greenbrae-Kentfield area and $500,000 in the Santa Venetia area.

The average homeowner in Greenbrae will pay about $1.04 per month in open space taxes while the average homeowner in Santa Venetia will pay about $1.01, Mitchell said.

Other bonds approved earlier include a $315,000 measure in Lucas Valley, a $2,250,000 measure in San Rafael, a $1,250,000 measure in Tiburon, a $600,000 plan in Marinwood and a $600,000 plan in Homestead Valley.

The only open space measure defeated in Marin was earlier this year in San Anselmo where a $500,000 proposal received majority endorsement but narrowly missed the necessary two-thirds favorable vote.

Tourist traffic to Israel increased 50 per cent to 660,000 in 1971.

SLOW DOWN FOR ONE CADILLAC

At least one Marin driver, who parked his big car on Fifth Street in San Rafael yesterday, intends to follow President Nixon's suggested new speed limit to save gas. An Independent-Journal survey of Highway 101, however, showed that most motorists in the prerush hours were driving closer to 60 miles per hour, which is the average usual speed, according to Highway Patrol.

Prison Has Another Stab Case

A San Quentin inmate was seriously stabbed yesterday, in the third violent incident in the prison in a week.

John E. Kennedy, 25, was stabbed several times in the chest and back, during the afterdinner lockup in the prison's East cellblock, according to prison information officer William D. Nyberg.

Kennedy was reported in satisfactory condition today in the prison hospital.

Officials said they found no weapon, knew no reason for the stabbing and had no suspect in custody.

Kennedy, of San Francisco, is serving simultaneous sentences of five years to life for robbery, and one year to life for lewd and lascivious conduct, Nyberg said. He was sentenced in 1967.

Victims of inmate stabbings Saturday and Monday are recovering, Nyberg said.

The official reported that Kennedy's wounding was the 46th such incident this year to send a victim to the hospital.

Library Services Push Is Made

Schools Supt. Dean D. Magowan said principals told the school district board that libraries with complete services should be provided at each school.

Magowan said Bernard E. Eldredge and Old Adobe schools have never had libraries because space is not available. He said the library room at LaTercera School has been converted for use by reading specialists.

Board members asked the principals to prepare a set of standards for libraries for further study.

Transit Manager Opposes Proposal To Limit Speed

Some 2,000 Marin and Sonoma commuters will be dumped from Golden Gate Transit buses if the speed limit on Highway 101 is cut to 50 miles an hour, the transit system's manager warned yesterday.

H. Donald White also objected the speed cut "wouldn't save even enough to reduce (fuel) costs a decimal point."

President Nixon proposed the speed cut in his Wednesday night speech on the nation's energy problem.

White, speaking at a meeting on the problem by the Golden Gate Bridge District's executive committee, explained the loss of 1,800 to 2,000 seats on the bus fleet would result because drivers no longer would go fast enough to make second trips in the direction of peak traffic.

The fleet carries roughly 8,000 commuters each way each weekday, so the speed cut would eliminate approximately 25 per cent of its capacity.

Sixty of the 188 buses now make two runs during peak hours, White noted, adding most would be unable to do so if the speed limit were cut. The present 65-mile-an-hour speed limit is needed to give the heavy coaches momentum to get over the hills fast enough to maintain average schedule speeds of 38 miles an hour, he said.

The President's proposal to cut the speed by 15 miles an hour, he said. would save virtually no fuel on the buses because they would have to use more fuel to pull harder on the hills, White told newsmen.

Another result of the speed cut would be a complete overhaul of bus schedules, he added.

Because the lower speed would add an hour a day to half the runs, labor costs alone would go up by about $250,000 a year, according to White.

His warning came during an inconclusive committee discussion of the energy problem. Bridge board president Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco said gasoline rationing could halve the annual $9 million in revenue from tolls, but other directors argued it was impossible to forecast the impact of rationing on tolls.

The committee recommended that the district's consultant on federal grants, Richard Smart, be sent to Washington to testify at hearings on fuel rationing.

Meeting as the rules, policy and industrial relations committee, directors recommended increasing the salary of acting district engineer Harry Reilich to $31,104 a year, the same salary paid the bus and ferry transit managers. He had been making $26,244 as engineer of the bridge.

The committee also endorsed a proposed study of car pooling and staggered work hours and days to relieve traffic congestion.

Meeting as the finance-auditing committee, they endorsed increasing the cost of model testing a suicide barrier from $67,500 to $82,540.

A petition by the Golden Gate Commuters Association asking indefinite delay of a proposed toll hike was postponed. District Secty. Peter D. Clainos said the committee was not ready yet to discuss the toll hike.

Wrigley Building Lights Shut Off

CHICAGO (UPI) — The 1,300,000-candlepower floodlights that illuminate the towering white Wrigley Building, one of the most prominent and durable features in Chicago's nightly silhouette, have darkened.

William Wrigley, president of the Wrigley Co., said the lights will remain off for the duration of the energy crisis. Across the street, the Chicago Tribune Tower has its exterior lights turned off.

Library Offers A New Service

The Novato Branch Library has a new service, portable cassette recorders for home use which include poetry, fiction and nonfiction, according to librarian Martha Van Etten.

The cassettes can be checked out by handicapped readers or foreign speaking persons who have difficulty reading English, Mrs. Van Etten said. Convalescent homes can arrange for use of the cassettes by notifying Mrs. Van Etten at the library.

Two Receive Postmaster Appointment

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Two Marin County men were appointed postmasters today by William J. Sullivan, regional postmaster general.

Lloyd H. Moon, 33, was named as Fairfax postmaster and David C. Banfield, 35, was named Bolinas postmaster.

Moon, a native of Lake Crystal, Minn., is a 31-year resident of Fairfax. He lives at 8 Creek Road with his wife, Ordell. They have four children.

He graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and joined the Fairfax Post Office as a carrier in 1959. He was promoted to clerk in 1961, and became assistant postmaster in 1971.

Banfield, until today a distribution and window clerk for the San Rafael Post Office, as well as a federal civil service examiner, joined the San Rafael Post Office in 1968 as a clerk.

He graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended College of Marin and the University of California at Berkeley.

Plans Made For Flight Fuel Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Pentagon has ordered "a number of emergency measures" to cut energy consumption, including curtailing training flights by pilots, and is seeking still other ways to economize on fuel use, says Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

Other defense officials report that additional steps now under consideration include cutting back the performance schedules of the Air Force Thunderbirds and Navy Blue Angels.

Nine Owners Score Win To Keep Land

Sausalito planning commissioners bowed to the wishes of owners of about 17 acres of ridgeland last night and decided that the property should not be taken for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The commission will recommend that the city council, which will consider the matter Tuesday, exclude 11 acres in the Wolfback Ridge area south of Highway 101 owned by nine landholders, and about three acres on the South Ridge owned by five persons, according to assistant planner Jerry Cormack.

Commissioners said three acres in the Glen Grove area between Cypress and South Ridge also should be left out.

Marked for inclusion in a bill revising park boundaries by Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Fifth Dist., were Cypress Ridge and a parcel owned by the state Highway Department.

Draft Dodger Amnesty Campaign Is Launched

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) announced a campaign today to seek amnesty for draft dodgers in the Vietnam war.

"We will speak to the conscience of the people in this nation by conducting massive nonviolent confrontations with the elected officials of our land, including President Richard M. Nixon," Ralph D. Abernathy, president of SCLC, said.

Abernathy urged all interested persons to "join this movement so that the innocent will not have to suffer for crimes never committed."

He asked the Congressional Black Caucus to initiate legislation which would grant amnesty to all young men who registered as conscientious objectors.

Abernathy said "concerned and distinguished individuals" would meet here within the next week to set up a "Robert Johnson Defense Committee" on behalf of a civil rights worker in Mississippi who was sentenced to five years in prison for draft evasion.

Luksic was driving his cycle too fast to complete a curve at about 11:30 a.m., according to the California Highway Patrol.

OYSTER WARNING — Sal Sunseri (left), owner of P&J Oysters in New Orleans, watching shuckers opening oysters, said the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries enforcement officers have to increase surveillance of known tainted bed to catch pirates harvesting illegal oyster beds. Outbreaks of hepatitis had been laid to Louisiana oysters served in Houston and as far away as Spokane, Wash.

Hollis Launches Reelection Drive

Marin County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis has launched an unofficial campaign for reelection next June to a fifth term.

Hollis, 59, was first elected in 1958, and reelected three times without opposition. Next year, however, he will face a challenge from Joseph D. Gargiulo, former mayor of Novato and principal of Novato's Adult High School. Gargiulo announced his candidacy for the $27,536-a-year post almost two years ago.

The incumbent opened his campaign this week by mailing appeals for support to some 1,400 persons. By Jan. 15, he said, the mailings will total 5,000.

The appeals asked supporters to contact the Virgil S. Hollis Campaign Committee, 146 Stewart Drive, Tiburon — the superintendent's home address.

Hepatitis Outbreak Prompting Stricter Oyster Bed Controls

HOUSTON (UPI) —A city health official thinks strict supervision of oyster harvesting beds can prevent conditions that led to a hepatitis outbreak that could afflict as many as 1,000 persons.

"There is nothing like an outbreak to bring this problem into focus," said Dr. Robert MacLean, director of the communicable disease office.

"We need similar activities to what is going on now—regular inspection and surveillance of oyster culture sites."

MacLean said the liver disease was the worst outbreak he had seen in five years. He said 120 people had been infected so far in cases as far away as Spokane, Wash.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration traced the contaminated oysters to a Louisiana house. Untreated sewage apparently spilled into the Gulf oyster beds and caused the contamination.

"Perhaps more vigorous activities along these lines will prevent things like illegal harvesting in contaminated waters, which apparently goes on occasionally," he said.

State health departments in areas where raw sea food is harvested are aware of the potential problems of comtamination and most have developed good inspection programs to prevent things of this nature happening, MacLean said.

The contaminated oysters arrived in local restaurants in late September and the disease has an incubation period of up to 50 days.

Hepatitis causes an inflamation of the liver and results in fatigue loss of appetite, nausea and fever.

Rental Of School Rooms Called Zoning Violation

Rental of three rooms at Isabel Cook School to the Marin Volunteer Bureau Nov. 1 was made in violation of city zoning regulations, the San Anselmo School District board learned last night.

Use of the school on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard as an office apparently violates local residential zoning laws, Supt. Frank R. Elliott said.

The district for months considered renting the school, which is being phased out, and had advertised the move for three weeks, Elliott noted, adding however that no formal notice was sent to the city administration.

Elliott and a delegation of trustees will meet with the San Anselmo City Council at 8 p.m. Nov. 27 in an attempt to get a use permit, according to the superintendent.

The San Anselmo School District board also:

CUSTODIAN — Awarded a plaque to custodian John Bodenhamer, who retired.

AUDIT— Learned that an audit had shown school financial records to be in excellent shape.

EXPENSE — Took no action on a proposal to add $57,000 to this year's budget to pay for items ranging from additional educational supplies to repairing school facilities.

BUS — Said the city parks and recreation department will be allowed use of a school bus this school year.

TRIP — Said trustee Judith L. Vallas and a district principal will attend a meeting in San Diego on year-round schools this weekend, at a total cost of about $120.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Nov. 9.

Forms Must Be Properly Filled

James V. Burdick, Marin County veterans service officer, today urged veterans or their widows who received income questionnaires with their Nov. 1 pension checks to bring the forms to his office to make sure they are properly filled out.

Burdick warned it is essential to return the cards to the Veterans Administration by Dec. 31. Failure to do so will result in suspension of the pension payment, he said.

The veterans service office is located in Room 424 of the Marin County Civic Center.

Volunteers Aid Milwaukee During Fireman Slowdown

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Civilian volunteer fire wardens reminiscent of the World War II blackout patrols appeared on Milwaukee streets today to ease the state of emergency caused by a "red flu" work slowdown by city firemen.

Mayor Henry W. Maier declared a state of emergency yesterday after firemen rejected the city's final offer in the contract dispute. Officials said 122 firemen called in sick today and 150 reported for duty. About 300 firemen are on duty during a normal day.

In New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay met this morning with Leon Davis, head of the union representing 30,000 striking non-medical hospital workers, and secured the union leader's cooperation in seeing that emergency supplies would be allowed across picket lines set up at the 48 hospitals and nursing homes.

Lindsay said he "was not successful in persuading Davis in the public interest to end the strike." Davis said yesterday the five-day walkout would continue at least until Sunday, despite a federal court order to return to work, a fine of $500,000 and the city's declaration of a health emergency.

About 200 National Guardsmen also were on duty in Milwaukee to aid in firefighting efforts. Department spokesmen said the city's fire capability was "stable" and calls from midnight yesterday to 8 a.m. today were "below average."

Maier said his plan called for 2,100 individuals 16 years of age and older to use their own vehicles in scouting neighborhoods, checking out false alarms and evacuating people in the event of a fire. Negotiations resumed again late yesterday after recessing earlier in the evening.

A fire department spokesman said 114 firemen called in sick yesterday, leaving 167 to answer seven minor calls with the assistance of 200 National Guardsmen. There have been no major fires in Milwaukee since the strike began.

Sporadic violence and vandalism by pickets plagued New York hospitals yesterday and today. Police said about 60 demonstrators have been arrested since Monday, when Local 1199 of the Drug and Hospital Workers struck to pressure the Cost of Living Council into allowing a 7.5 per cent wage increase that was granted by a state arbitration panel last July. The council delayed action in approving the hike because it exceeds the 5.5 per cent federal guidelines.

Federal Court Judge Robert Carter yesterday called the strike "deliberate, irresponsible and inexcuseable," and ordered the hospital employes to return to work. When they did not, Carter fined the union $500,000.

Carter also directed that the council meet by tomorrow to consider the increase. A government spokesman said the council was prepared to meet immediately,, adding that the council was "favorably disposed to consider a wage increase within the 5.5 per cent general guidelines."

Trans World Airlines said it would temporarily reduce the salaries of 15,300 non-union members from 20 to 50 per cent if a strike by stewards and stewardesses does not end by Nov. 19. The strike has grounded the firm's planes since Sunday night.

In the TWA strike, more than 16,000 company employes who are union members have honored picket lines set up by the 5,062 striking members of the Air Lines Stewards and Stewardesses Association.

Egg Warehouse Plans Approved

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Plans for a warehouse for egg storage were approved yesterday by the Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments.

NATO Split Thought Patched Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger yesterday said the rift between America and its European allies over Middle East policies has apparently healed. He said the United States no longer feels it might have to remove US tanks from West Germany.

Talking with reporters after his return from a North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) meeting late yesterday, he said both the United States and the Europeans had given ground to head off a potentially serious split in the alliance.

Negotiations conducted during the meeting "underscored the need for closer consultations" between the allies, Schlesinger said. European NATO members had complained they were not adequately consulted during the latest Middle East crisis.

In return, Schlesinger said, there now appears to be "an understanding among the allies of US objectives in the Middle East" and of the reason why other NATO members were not notified about the worldwide US military alert ordered when it was feared the Soviet Union might be sending troops to Egypt.

The meeting Schlesinger attended along with defense ministers from seven other NATO countries was one held each year to consider NATO nuclear plans, but the need to deal with problems in the alliance brought on by the Middle East crisis overshadowed the official agenda.

Before Schlesinger left for the meeting, held Monday through Wednesday in the Netherlands, a senior defense official said West German protests over the shipment of US tanks from that country to Israel might force the United States to store the tanks elsewhere.

Prior to the meeting, the West Germans had taken the position that the thousands of US tanks stored in their country were only for the defense of Europe. The United States has taken a much broader view about where the tanks might be used.

"I believe we have a (new) common understanding about what it is necessary to do if circumstances like this should arise in the future," Schlesinger said.

Activism At Schools Drops, Report Says

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Student activism-caused violence at California public high schools has declined, but vandalism, assaults and drug-alcohol offenses have shown an "unmistakable increase," a state Board of Education report said today.

A survey of public schools across the state, according to the report, showed that general crime constituted "the most serious educational problem" facing teachers and students alike.

The 24-page report was prepared by a task force made up of the board's staff and was headed by Kenneth S. Washington, assistant superintendent of public instruction.

"Theft, vandalism, assaults on students and incidents involving the unlawful use of drugs and alcohol were the most frequent crimes, averaging more than one incident each month per school," the report said.

The report said that vandalism and other crimes were "directly related to the size of the school. In addition, the survey indicated that a relationship exists between the frequency of criminal incidents and the socioeconomic status of students: more crime occurs in schools located in low socioeconomic areas."

On the subject of student activism, the report said, "Conflicts arising as a result of student activism seem to have reached their peak between 1968 and 1970 and now appear to have declined in frequency." It also said it "has declined in importance."

In preparing the report, the task force said it conducted a mail survey with more than 300 schools, interviewed 1,000 persons in 32 schools and conducted two major workshops.

Other major conclusions of the report included:

"Although most acute in the inner city, campus disorder and violence exist throughout the state."

"School conflict is not associated with any single racial or ethnic group of students."

The report also said students, teachers and parents gave differing reasons for school conflict.

Students' reasons included uneven application of discipline, favoritism toward student government cliques, smoking regulations, clothing codes, poor counseling services, unfair and authoritarian administration practices and discrimination against low income students because of activity fees.

Teachers on the other hand listed the following reasons: excessive administrative paperwork, poor facilities, teacher disinterest, use of and commerce in drugs, and home values.

Parents, however, suggested still other causes: crowded schools, lax school discipline, irrelevant curricula, outside agitators, and poor communication between schools and police.

In an introduction to the report, presented to the board at a meeting today, Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles said "one simple message" emerges:

"Better school environments, improved instruction and more challenging curriculum will help to diminish the tensions which can lead to violence and vandalism," Riles said.

Nixon's Plight Tied To Economy

DALLAS (UPI) — House Banking and Currency Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said yesterday President Nixon's resignation could help stabilize the nation.

"I am not advocating that he resign, but it would please me very much," Patman said during a news conference he held before his address to the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

Patman said he heard Nixon say at the end of his televised address Wednesday he would not resign but Patman said former Vice President Spiro Agnew made a statement like that a short time before he resigned. Patman said the country needs to be stablized economically and Nixon has not succeeded in reducing interest rates which he said is the cause of the nation's economic woes.

Nixon's Old Office No Landmark Yet

PASADENA (UPI) —The California Historical Landmarks Commission yesterday postponed indefinitely a decision whether to designate President Nixon's old law office in La Habra, Calif. a historical mounument.

Noting that none of the 90 state landmarks commemorate living persons, the sever-member commission expressed doubt whether such a landmark should be connected with a living person.

Halt In Federal Flood Control Work Proposed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Army Corps of Engineers has recommended that no more federal flood control work be done in the Richardson Bay basin.

A few months ago the corps had recommended no work on Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio, Mill Valley's major creek, or its tributaries, Old Mill and Warner Creeks. But the corps now has expanded its findings to include Tennessee Creek in the Tennessee Valley and Coyote Creek in Tamalpais Valley, where the corps has already done extensive flood control work.

The corps recommendations will be referred to the board of engineers for rivers and harbors for final review. Persons wishing to dispute the report may send statements by Dec. 3 to the board at the Kingman Building, Fort Belvoir, Va. 22060.

Novato Rezoning Program Goes On

The Novato Planning Commission will continue its program of rezoning properties to bring them into conformance with the Novato General Plan at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

Brennan Predicts Solution To Crisis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan yesterday called for bipartisan efforts to combat the nation's energy crisis and urged immediate construction of nuclear power plants.

"I hope we will start putting up some power houses for the energy crisis. I think the crisis is as serious as the President pointed out, but I am sure we can take it on," Brennan said.

Research Center Charges Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Government health officials are considering imposing the first charges ever on patients treated at the National Institutes of Health clinical center, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinburger said today.

"We are investigating the possibility of collecting insurance from those patients covered (by hospitalization) to the extent we can legally do so to defray the cost of providing health services to low income people," Weinburger said in an interview.

The potential federal revenue from such third-party charges is an estimated $9.4 million a year, which otherwise stays in the coffers of health insurance companies, he said. The center's annual budget is $53 million. NIH is an agency of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The possibility of charging the research patients, many of them on their deathbeds, was discussed at a meeting this week of NIH institute directors as a cost-saving measure, said Storm Whaley, spokesman for the world's largest biomedical research center.

The 511-bed center on the NIH campus in Bethesda, Md., opened in 1953. Patients throughout the world are admitted free of charge on doctor's recommendations as they are needed for research in leukemia, breast cancer, heart disease and other illnesses. Bed occupancy has been about 70 per cent.

Weinburger said he had not recommended direct charges to the patients but rather charges to their insurance.

"Most people have some sort of hospitalization coverage, and not even to investigate whether it is applicable at the center is ridiculous," he said.

Opposition has been reported within NIH to Weinburger's recommendation on the basis that there might be legal problems in requiring payments and because it might interfere with the center's ability to recruit research patients.

Man Bound Over On Check Charge

Robert Lloyd Anderson, 24, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a felony bad check charge and two misdemeanors.

Following a preliminary hearing, Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty ruled there is enough evidence to hold Anderson, of no known address, and ordered him to appear Monday.

He is charged with writing two $100 checks at Bank of America branches in Sausalito and Mill Valley Oct. 18; carrying a concealed gun without a license, and possessing a stolen credit card.

Lighting On Holidays Limited In Greenbrae

Greenbrae Property Owners Association decided last night to limit its holiday activities involving lighted decorations to conserve energy.

The association has changed its home decorating contest from a nighttime to a daytime event, according to Naida Walter, association secretary. Judging will take place shortly before Christmas for $50, $25 and $15 cash prizes.

The group also decided it will limit the lighting of its traditional Christmas tree at the entrance to the Greenbrae area. Mrs. Wlater said the group will decide at its meeting Dec. 13 exactly how restricted the tree lighting will be.

The association's board of directors will also mail out a questionnaire next week to determine Greenbrae residents' preference for use of the proposed Larkspur regional shopping center site. The Rouse Company's present proposal, a smaller shopping center, industrial uses or apartments will be the choices, according to Mrs. Walter.

Directors will take a position in December on the Rouse proposal based on questionnaire results.

Sewer Line Violators Are Warned

About 300 property owners in the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District are being warned they must correct violations or legal action may be taken against them, according to Edward Tibbetts, managing engineer of the district.

Tibbetts told the district board last night that smoke testing of district sewer lines is about 90 per cent complete and that some 300 violations have been discovered.

No more testing will be done at this time, he said, because of wet weather.

District officials, though, are going after owners to fix broken connections and disconnect roof and patio drains which have been hooked into the sewer system illegally. Tibbetts said in most cases property owners were unaware of the violations and they will be given a chance to correct them.

If they do not, he said, they face possible court action and the work could be done by the district with the cost being added to the owners' tax bills.

Unions Are Hit With Contempt In Beer Fuss

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal judge yesterday found several labor organizations in contempt of his earlier orders against violence in the long-drawn beer truck drivers' strike — and a scuffle developed in Alameda when police tried to hand copies of the order to pickets outside a liquor store.

U.S. District Judge Charles B. Renfrew yesterday fined Teamsters Local 888, the Teamsters, Brewers and Soft Drink Workers Joint Board and the Alameda County Labor Council $5,000 each. The National Labor Relations Board brought charges in district court early in October, that union violence was occurring in the strike, despite Renfrew's earlier injunction against violence. Most of the incidents cited were in the East Bay.

The judge said yesterday that he will suspend the fines if the labor organizations submit affidavits next week that they are complying with the injunction.

Six pickets were arrested after a scuffle when Alameda Police Chief Richard Young attempted to serve the court order on a Teamster official outside a store. The men were released on bail.

Beer truck driver members of Local 888 have been on strike against distributors in 11 Northern Califrnia counties including Marin, since June 26. The NLRB held an election Sept. 26 to see whether Local 888 should continue to represent the drivers, but there were so many challenges the outcome still is in doubt.

Recreation Commission Honors Bagley

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The state Park and Recreation Commission today gave Assemblyman William T. Bagley its "Golden Bear Award" for his legislative contributions to state parks.

The San Rafael Republican was honored especially for establishing the Bagley Conservation Fund. Appropriations totaling $71.5 million have flowed through the fund since 1971 for park acquisition and development.

In Marin, the fund financed the $550,000 purchase of Tomales Bay tidelands and provided $1 million to preserve open space on Inverness Ridge.

Statewide, it has been used to buy 41,728 acres of land, including new park property with 20.5 miles of ocean frontage. Last year's Proposition 20, which created the coastal commissions, took $5 million from the Bagley fund to finance their operation.

Dog Owner Files Suit Over Attack

The wife of a former Mill Valley city official is suing her neighbors for more than $88,000 on grounds the neighbors' dog attacked her dog and injured her in the fray.

Monica J. Hoopingarner of 629 Northern Avenue, in a superior court suit against D. Glyn Thomas and Ann Thomas of 631 Northern Avenue, charged that the Thomas's dog Brutus was repeatedly allowed to roam in violation of the county's leash law.

The suit states that last April 4, Mrs. Hoopingarner was walking her own dog on a leash when Brutus attacked the dog, siezing it by the neck and knocking the woman down. She suffered a broken vertebrae, a broken wrist and other injuries requiring costly surgery, the suit states.

Mrs. Hoopingarner is the wife of John Hoopingarner, Mill Valley city finance officer in the early 1960s.

Only 56 More Years To Go

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) —Joe Smith's stated goal is to live to age 165, the reported longevity record set by a Russian man.

He only has 56 years to go. Smith, a jack of all trades during his active life, celebrated his 109th birthday yesterday at a local convalescent hospital.

Born in San Francisco in 1864, Smith worked a variety of jobs, including sailing with the Merchant Marine and buying coffee in Brazil. A hospital spokesman says he still has good eyesight and can walk with the aid of crutches.

$1 Has Real Power at Pacific Stereo

We all know the dollar's had some rough times lately. He's been deflated while everything else is being inflated. And his sense of self-worth has really suffered, with two devaluations and all.

So we've decided to try and build up his ego, to make him seem more valuable. And for this week at least, he seems to be coming around. He's been bragging about how much he's worth, how just one of him can save people up to $100 and sometimes even more, like in the good old days. No one's too sure how long this surge of self-confidence will last, especially if everyone starts taking advantage of him (which is likely). So better hurry down to Pacific Stereo while he's still relatively stable.

$1 Completes Your Four-Channel System if You Buy this Spectrosonic Quadaptor

The Spectrosonic SQ-4 converts your present stereo system to four-channel sound easily and inexpensively. It decodes SQ records, synthesizes four-channel effects from stereo material, and accepts "discrete" four-channel sources such as 8-track cartridges. There's even a 40-watt amplifier built in for the two rear channels, so $124.50 really brings you a lot of versatility. The walnut case is extra.

Audio Design 806 speakers are two-way, 8-inch systems that deliver clean, natural-sounding bass. They usually go for $79.90 a pair, but if you buy an SQ-4 Quadaptor this week, we'll include two Audio Design 806's for just $1 more, and you'll be in the middle of a new sound experience right away.

A Wollensak Cassette Recorder: An Extra $1 Keeps it Clean

$1

The Wollensak 4150 is a battery powered portable cassette recorder, complete with an automatic record level circuit, an automatic stop control, and a built-in battery charger. Naturally, it has keyboard controls, and a remote microphone. The 4150 usually sells for $49.95, but just add that famous dollar to make the total $50.95, and you can get Ampex's combination Cleaner/Demagnetizer cassette, regularly priced at $4.95. It removes the oxide particles and residual magnetism that collect on a recorder's heads. Play it like a regular cassette for about two minutes and the job's done.

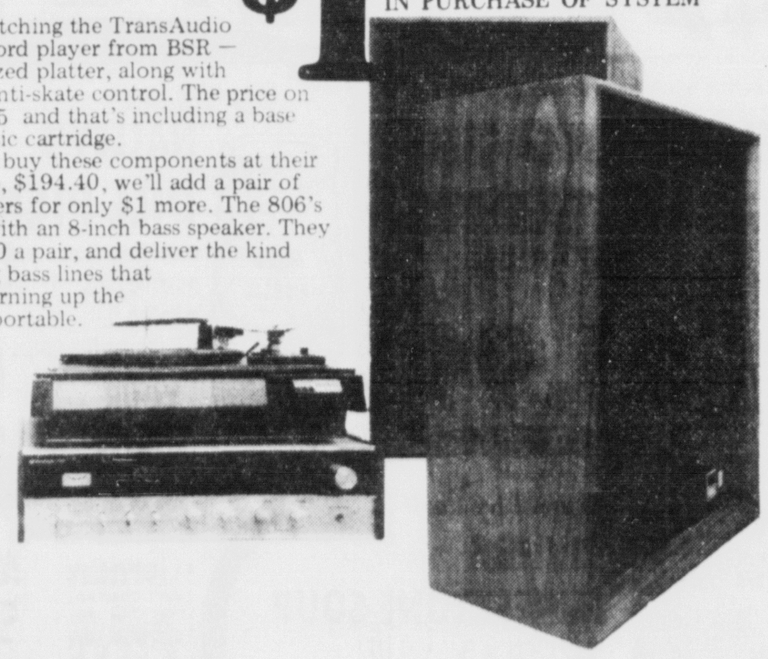
Complete This System with a Pair of Speakers for Only $1

TransAudio's new 5502 is an excellent budget receiver with performance that belies its $149.95 price. The amplifier delivers 16 watts (RMS) of clean power, and the tuner will give you clear, noise-free reception from any station within range. Among its many controls are a loudness contour switch, a tape monitor switch, and bass and treble tone controls. The price includes the walnut case.

You won't regret matching the TransAudio 5502 with this new record player from BSR — the 260A. It has a full-sized platter, along with a cueing lever and an anti-skate control. The price on the 260A is only $44.45 and that's including a base and a Shure M81 magnetic cartridge.

This week when you buy these components at their regular combined price, $194.40, we'll add a pair of Audio Design 806 speakers for only $1 more. The 806's are two-way systems with an 8-inch bass speaker. They usually sell for $79.90 a pair, and deliver the kind of clear natural-sounding bass lines that you can't get just by turning up the bass control on your portable.

$1 Audio-Design 806 IN PURCHASE OF SYSTEM



COMPLETE SYSTEM PRICE IS THEN ONLY $195.90

A Special Deal on a Harman-Kardon Receiver

If you're interested in a good system and in saving on a great Harman-Kardon receiver too, here's your chance. The record player is Garrard's 40B. It has a gentle record-changing action and damped cueing to help you keep your discs in mint condition. Our $49.45 price includes a base and an Empire 999XE/X elliptical cartridge.

And the TransAudio 1012's are three-way speaker systems with 12-inch bass speakers that should let you hear the lowest notes on your records. The 1012's go for $199.90 a pair.

Together, these components total $249.35 but for just $1 more, we'll add Harman-Kardon's 230A AM/FM stereo receiver. This way you'll get a complete system for what you'd otherwise spend on just part of it. It's rated at 17 watts (RMS) with both channels driven, and has provisions for two pairs of speakers, tape monitor facilities, and a loudness contour switch to compensate for the bass you would otherwise lose at low listening levels. The 230A regularly goes for $179.95, but this week you'll save $178.95 on it. (The walnut case is extra.)

$1 Harman-Kardon 230A IN PURCHASE OF SYSTEM

COMPLETE SYSTEM PRICE IS THEN ONLY $250.35

Add Headphones to Your System for $1

Quadraflex Model 20 headphones are comfortable to wear wear, pleasant to hear, and even have a volume control on each earpiece. Our usual price is $19.95, but this week they're only $1 when you get them along with a new system.

SENTENCED — Edmund E. Kemper III, who heard a jury in Santa Cruz deliver a sentence of guilty yesterday in the death of eight women, was sentenced today to life in prison for the crimes. He later thanked the judge and prosecutor for their help. (UPI Telephoto)

Kemper Is Sentenced To Life For Eight Murders

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — Edmund E. Kemper III, a hulking 6-foot-9 giant, was sentenced today to life in prison for the murder and dismemberment of eight women.

The 24-year-old, mild-mannered young man, appeared genuinely relieved at the sentence and quietly thanked the judge and the county prosecutor before he was taken away to spend the rest of his life in prison. A jury found him guilty yesterday.

While Kemper stood handcuffed and manacled before him, Judge Harry E. Brauer read the life sentence and said to him:

"May God have mercy on your soul, Mr. Kemper. But you have to understand that I have to protect the rest of the people from people like you."

Kemper had confessed the killing of six co-eds, his own mother and another woman. He turned himself in to stop himself from killing and told officers that he was sure if he were ever freed he would become a killer again.

Judge Brauer said to Kemper: "I know you were not bragging, but you were speaking in anguish and remorse."

Psychiatrists who testified during his trial agreed with that, but they said he nevertheless was sane under the law because he knew what he was doing and that it was wrong.

As he was led away Kemper stopped and shook hands with prosecutor Peter Chang and said, "Thank you for your restraint and your help."

After court adjourned, Kemper asked if he could see the judge for a moment. "I want to thank you for your help," he told Brauer.

Kemper is exempt from a new California law restoring the death penalty, which becomes effective Jan. 1. He was taken to the state medical prison at Vacaville to be held until assigned to a permanent place of confinement.

School Lunches

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed a bill increasing the federal share in school lunch programs from eight cents to 10 cents per lunch.

Job Titles Changed To End Sexism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housemaids now will be known to the government as "lodging quarters cleaners," and foremen as "blue collar worker supervisors," all in the interest of eliminating sex designations from job titles.

Fifty-two titles are being changed by the Census Bureau for its record-keeping, at the request of the Labor Department's Women's Bureau and Manpower Administration, and the Federal Interagency Committee on Occupation Classification.

Carmen R. Maymi, director of the Women's Bureau, said, "It is not realistic to expect that women will apply for job openings advertised for foremen, salesmen, or credit men. Nor will men apply for job vacancies calling for laundresses, maids, or airline stewardesses."

The revisions include clergymen to clergy; newsboys to newspaper carriers; office boys to office helpers; shoe repairmen to shoe repairers; fishermen and oystermen to fishers, hunters and trappers; airline stewardesses to flight attendants; bus boys to waiters' assistants, and firemen to fire fighters.

New Color Ordered For Store

The vibrant blue color on the new self-service furniture store must be subdued, the Rohnert Park Planning Commission ordered last night.

Commissioners said they had received many complaints from residents about the bright blue color of the large furniture store and warehouse under construction on Commerce Boulevard at Highway 101.

Commission secretary Sandra L. Faus said company representatives argued that the color is used nationally on their stores and had been shown on plans previously submitted to the commission.

Members said they would prefer a more natural color such as tan for the large building.

Bill Seen Next Week On Daylight Savings

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, predicted Friday Congress may send legislation to President Nixon next week to put the nation on year-round daylight savings time as an important fuel savings step.

At the outset of hearings on legislation endorsed by Nixon in his energy conservation package, Magnuson said he was assigning "top priority" to the matter. He noted that the House Commerce Committee was considering similar legislation.

"It is entirely possible that we can get a bill down to the White House by next week," Magnuson commented. "Year-round daylight saving time will contribute directly to energy saving."

Transportation and Interior Department witnesses, giving their support to the proposal, said it would result in "important fuel savings."

The nation in recent years has switched from standard time to daylight saving on the last Sunday in April and then returned to standard time the last Sunday in October.

The all-year proposal is based on the theory that offices and other business places should be able to reduce their electricity and fuel demands during the winter months when the days are shorter.

Plan To Restore Town Is Ordered

SARRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Parks and Recreation Department today awarded a $15,000 contract to an Oakland firm to prepare a development plan for restoring the historic black community of Allensworth in Tulare County.

The contract went to Willis Research and Development Inc.

A Call For Additional Arms Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) —An additional $3 billion to $4 billion may be needed to buy missiles, ammunition and transport planes to correct deficiencies in U.S. readiness uncovered by the Middle East war, the Pentagon sources said yesterday.

The purchase of additional transport planes, a Pentagon spokesman said, is being examined but the step is potentially controversial and he said it was not presently under consideration.

A senior defense official said last week unexpectedly high expenditures for air-to-air, air-to-ground and antitank missiles during the war convinced Pentagon planners the United States needed a larger stockpile.

A Pentagon source said $3 to $4 billion was "the general range" of funds defense planners are thinking about asking Congress for as a so-called "readiness supplemental" to the current $79 billion defense budget. This money would be in addition to the $2.2 billion President Nixon has asked Congress to approve for emergency arms for Israel and Cambodia.

Whatever amount the Pentagon decides to ask for has to be approved by the Office of Management and Budget and the White House before it is sent to Congress.

Ross Council Acts On Parking Problems

The Ross Town Council last night limited parking to one side of the narrow streets in the Winship Park area, and introduced an ordinance to do the same thing for portions of Poplar, Olive and Bolinas avenues.

Town Clerk Virginia Stott said the Winship Park ban will become effective in 30 days. The other parking restrictions are expected to be adopted in December and effective in January.

DRAKE, PILGRIMS RECALLED

A full-sized replica of Sir Francis Drake's famed ship Golden Hinde sails into Plymouth Harbor, Devon, which was Drake's home port and the departing place for the Pilgrims. The vessel, after a brief visit and welcoming ceremonies at the historic Mayflower Steps, was sailed to London, where she will spend the next year before sailing to San Francisco. The replica was built for a Bay Area group including Mill Valley resident Art Blum. It will go on display at Fisherman's Wharf.

House Demos Promise Vote On Ford During Week Of Dec. 3

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Democratic leadership has promised a vote on the vice presidential nomination of Gerald R. Ford during the week of Dec. 3.

The House plans to adjourn Dec. 6 but Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said yesterday it would vote on Ford before going home.

Ford appeared before the Senate Rules Committee this week. He must be confirmed by both houses of Congress before he can take office.

The announcement by House Democratic leaders came at a time when some Republicans were trying to cancel the House's planned 10-day Thanksgiving recess on the grounds there was too much work to do.

With the assurances of a vote in early December, the House probably will recess as planned although the Judiciary Committee will continue hearings on Ford right up to Thanksgiving Day. Plans to recess must still be approved by both houses.

The hearings will begin next Thursday —the last expected day of House business before the recess —and continue every working day until Thanksgiving eve.

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., the man in line to replace Ford as GOP House leader if he is confirmed, said he was assured by Judiciary Committee chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., that the committee would finish with Ford in time to meet the Dec. 3 deadline.

The Washington Post reported today that Rodino had received agreement from the Justice Department that about seven of his committee's 38 members would be allowed to read the FBI's 1,700-page report on Ford.

While the Senate Rules Committee was investigating Ford, only the ranking Republican and Democrat on the committee were allowed to see the report.

Decline In Grocery Prices To Continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The current decline in grocery prices will continue until early next year, predict Agriculture Department economists, but by spring they will begin rising moderately.

But the experts say that the predicted increase in food prices between January and June will not reach the record levels of the past August.

Per capita food consumption in 1973 will fall about 1.5 per cent below 1972 levels, the sharpest decline in 15 years, because consumers are getting into the habit of eating less to save money, officials said. Meat consumption will be off 6 per cent, the sharpest drop in 25 years, they said.

The "food situation" summary said prices for the last three months of 1973 will be "relatively stable" and probably a bit lower than last summer.

One expert estimated the January-March increase would be 1 to 2 per cent as meat supplies decline temporarily and other prices continue to advance.

The report said retail prices may level off again in April-June 1974.

Be Sensible About Keeping Warm

By DAVID GUNSTON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Are you going to keep warm this winter, whatever the weather? Or are you likely to shiver your way through the damp and dismal months?

It could be the latter, if you're too much of a slave to convention. That's why it's about time the art of dressing for winter was approached scientifically.

Many scientists have been taking a close look recently at the best way to keep warm — and at the relative efficiency of our clothes. These experiments were prompted by wartime experiences in Russia, Finland, and Korea, today's permanent manning of South Polar and Artic bases, to say nothing of ventures into space. But the findings could be helpful to the man on the street.

The first finding from the experts is simple: We just don't wear sufficient layers of clothing.

Take the average man waiting for a bus in, say, Chicago. He's wearing underwear cut from appearance rather than thermal efficiency, a suit, overcoat, scarf, and gloves. And he's cold.

"This is hardly surprising," said Dr. Harwood Belding, professor of environmental physiology at the University of Pittsburgh. For he's trying to endure a "three-layer" climate with the equivalent of only two layers around his trunk and arms, one layer for his legs and feet, and half a layer on his hands.

In addition, he has several gaps or openings through which his warm body can freely escape and cold air pour in. It's probably true, too, that unless it is actually raining or snowing, he won't be wearing a hat.

This absence of a hat is the biggest mistake of all, in the united view of all the American and European experts who've been working on keeping people warm. All the national costumes that are designed for really cold weather, from the Eskimo to the Lapp, incorporate a thick furry hat. These people know through bitter experience what we usually overlook — that the body's biggest heat leak is through the top and the back of the head.

There is a physiological reason for this. To preserve its natural heat, the body automatically cuts back the blood flow to the skin under cold conditions, especially the skin of the feet and hands. But it never shuts off the flow of blood to the head. Therefore an unprotected head constantly loses more heat than any other region of the body.

At extreme temperatures the head leak may dissipate all the body heat an inactive man produces. Even at ordinary room temperature, up to one quarter of the heat leaving the body goes out through the head, mostly through the very spots usually covered by a hat. This is true whether one is bald or has a thick mane of hair, say the scientists.

If you really want to keep warm, then, wear a hat all the time you are outdoors. A close-fitting hat or cap is better protection than a trilby or high-crowned hat, but any kind is better than nothing.

A still unsolved problem is how to keep hands warm without padding them so they become useless for manual work. With their cylindrical fingers, our hands have a large surface area through which to lose heat. Curved-surface mittens seem to be the best answer so far, but cold hands are still defying science. What has become clear, though, is that a really warm body usually spares plenty of warmth for its hands, however exposed.

The three-layer zone covers much of northern Europe and North America. Of course, the clothing worn in those areas or any other must match temperature changes, otherwise overheating results. Clothes soaked to dampness by perspiration insulate the body less than dry ones.

Another tip from the experts: When you are coming into a building from the cold outside, don't strip off all the external layers at once. According to Dr. Paul Siple, U.S. Army cold weather clothing expert, the perspiration continues to evaporate and can produce an undersirable chilling of the body.

Some Good Advice On Proper Dress In Winter

Don't forget that hat.

Keep on the move whenever you can. Output of body heat goes up fourfold when you walk briskly instead of sitting.

Avoid overheating. Peel off outerwear by degrees.

Add an extra layer or two. That way you'll get additional insulation against the cold from the air trapped in between these light layers of clothing.

Seal yourself up. By closing those heat-escape openings at the wrists, ankles, and neck you'll keep in much more warm air.

Wrap up those weak spots. Take special care to protect your most exposed and therefore coldest parts — hands, feet, throat, ears, and face. If your body is warm, but they feel cold, you'll be uncomfortable.

BOUTIQUE NOEL

Cookies For The Yule Tree

By DOROTHY NEWELL

Make a hunk of dough, fashion it into dolls, bake them in the oven, decorate them, and ornaments are ready for the Christmas tree. It isn't all that easy, however.

Novato Guild II of Sunny Hills is always trying to come up with new ideas for its Boutique Noel, which will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Church in Ignacio.

Mmes. James Studley, Mrs. Spiro Halikas and Mrs. Vance Terry have been working on this new idea, international dolls as Christmas tree ornaments.

Camie Studley and Carol Vance were behind the original idea of getting the proper dough for the dolls. They have spent as many as five and one-half hours at a time to turn out 40 dolls.

Then, Mrs. Halikas has spent as many as two or three hours dressing one or two dolls in international costumes.

The dolls are made of four cups of flour, one cup of salt and 1½ or 1⅞ cups of water, depending on the temperature. Use the greater amount of water when the weather is warm. Mix the dough until very, very smooth. The recipe makes about 20 dolls, not to be eaten, of course, because they are too salty.

To cut out the patterns, use a deep cookie cutter, about an inch thick. Roll out the dough less than a quarter of an inch thick on a pastry cloth using a cover on the rolling pin.

"Don't use this rolling pin or pastry cloth for other pastry because of the salt content in the dough," Mrs. Studley advised. The special cutters, made in Sweden, are very sharp.

Transfer the cookies to a pastry sheet after forming. An extra piece of dough is placed on the face and a piece of wire placed between them to make the hanger for the tree. Add dough eyes or nose. Dab water on the forms before putting them in the oven. If glaze is wanted, use salted water. Bake at 300 degrees for one hour or until as hard as a rock. Then cool.

The forms are very brittle when cooled, and if they fall on the floor they will break as easily as Christmas tree balls.

A preservative is sprayed on the baked ornaments as a sealer. Acrylic paint is used to decorate the faces of the dolls.

Then Mrs. Halikas begins to decorate the dolls. Tacky glue is used to attach the clothes, which were designed by Chita

See BOUTIQUE, page 17

THESE ELABORATELY dressed Christmas tree ornaments will be on sale at the boutique noel. Among the many international dolls are a Greek couple, a couple in Cossack dress, an Hawaiian mother and two children, and an Indian couple. The dolls have a preservative and can be used from year to year, but are as delicate as glass Christmas tree ornaments.

Role Of Women In Politics Is Explored

By PAT BALMES

Mill Valley Mayor Jean Barnard, Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum and Katy Rose, past president of League of Women Voters of Southern Marin, gave three different views of the woman in politics yesterday at the Community Congregational Church in Tiburon.

Their panel discussion, "Women and Community Action," was the final in a series entitled "Women and Their Opportunities."

"For years I was a crusader sitting in the audience," said Mayor Barnard. "It is wonderfully easier to be in the world of opinion than of decision. You can not vote, 'Maybe'."

Exempting Wornum from her remark, she said the "ego thing takes men into public life." At this juncture, there are truly interested women in politics, she said, adding that she used to spend three weeks on a speech on an issue which only five people would hear.

"Women are issue oriented, not emotional, the opposite from the horseback opinion of women," she said.

SHE VALUES women's intuition, "that excellent thing that women have." But will they continue to have it? she asked.

A woman's ability to ask a "stupid question" can help inform the voters. Men can not do that, the mayor said.

As long as a woman seems to be of the second sex, people will not be afraid to approach her to ask about something. She was glad her seat was next to the railing at city council meetings, she said.

Mrs. Barnard wants to be sure that everyone understands everything, she said. She will telephone an interested person to let him know an issue is coming up, even if he is on the opposite side.

"I cannot stand for people not to know the whole thing. That is my concept of democracy," she said.

In her political life she is conscious not to do anything that is inappropriate such as sounding like a school teacher giving directions.

Wornum opened his talk by remarking that the phrase women in politics implies "an invidious distinction, a different breed of cat from male politicians."

He responded to the mayor that women in politics have as much ego as men. Dianne Feinstein is just as go-getting, just as pushy, he said.

"IF YOU are going to take the xxxx (abuse) that gets thrown at you in office, you have to have an armor of ego to protect yourself. Theoretically, you are not going to get involved. But you get emotional," he said.

Women in politics are less emotional than men, he believes. They have much more basic intellectual honesty; perhaps that is part of their problem in being effective in politics, he said.

They do not play the game of trading off of votes, he said explaining that there is a certain personal loyalty that if you help someone in their project, they will help you with yours.

The question is, do you want to get your program accomplished or do you want to make a lot of noise? If you have scuttled someone else's program, he is not going to help you with yours, said Wornum.

There are two political forces, the people behind the scenes and those out front. He theorized that it perhaps is more necessary to give representation than leadership.

University's New Look In Housemothers

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (UPI) — As institutions of higher education go, you might say Bowling Green State University is in its adolescence. It was founded in 1910. Harvard, by comparison, was founded in 1636 and is an old man.

Bowling Green these days is blowing its trumpet and saying — wow, look at us. For one thing the school has a huge grant to press forward in an experiment that may change the shape of higher education everywhere someday. The experiment: get in, get out with your degree in three years. Who needs four?

The school with 15,000 students also is easy on most family budgets. The tuition is $210 a quarter, something like the low tuition found at most state colleges and universities. The old man Harvard, by contrast, asks a lot, as do most private colleges. With room and board — more than $5,000.

Bowling Green also boasts a new look in housemothers. The mother-image housemother is giving way to younger women not much older than the women living in the houses. Last academic year, for example, nine of 12 sorority housemothers were students, most doing graduate work in the college's student personnel program.

The school says the young housemothers appear to be doing a good job and a relaxed atmosphere seems to prevail in the houses where there are younger persons in charge. So says Linda Ogden, assistant dean of students.

One major drawback is the turnover of housemothers. The younger women leave after completing their studies. An advantage of the older housemothers is the element of continuity they are able to provide within each house.

Fraternities at Bowling Green have opted to retain more mature women in housemother positions. The older women provide a good example for fraternity men by encouraging neatness and taste in manners. One experiment is underway in which a young male graduate student is cast as a fraternity "housemother."

"TO REMAIN elected is important; so you respond to community pressure. Very often the deciding is done by people behind the scenes who are loud. It is women who do this.

"Women in Marin are highly educated, highly motivated political activists; seldom does a man call me up," Wornum said.

He keeps in touch with key persons in different communities. Invariably they are women, in touch with community wants, correct in their assessments, decision-makers, he said.

"Men in local politics are a dying breed. Women are taking over. But there are very able women who will not run because they believe women will not vote for them," Wornum said.

Mrs. Barnard interjected that, however, the women who do run have come out on top of the voting.

Clues from the audience as to why women might not vote for a woman candidate were female rivalry, an older woman's outlook that the candidate should be home rearing her children, and the candidate's lack of political background.

A zealot for League of Women Voters, where a future candidate can acquire suitable background, she said, Mrs. Rose told of her own self-development through the league. She was forced to participate in the world. She can no longer sit passively at social gatherings and listen to another's opinion on complex issues, she said.

SHE JOINED the league, which studies governmental issues and takes action on them, because she believes in representative government, she said.

"It is not easy to be a citizen in a democracy and to vote intelligently," Mrs. Rose said.

Asked how a woman could go about getting elected to office, Wornum suggested she start by working for a candidate. "Take a candidate you believe in and work for him. People ask me how to influence a politician. Get to him before he is elected."

"You can get elected on a small scale in suburban politics," he told the women. "A lot of people can play for small stakes; it is a fascinating game."

A COLLECTOR'S DREAM

Suburban Boston Home Filled With Examples Of 'Wedgwood'

By NORA E. TAYLOR
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON — Say "Wedgwood," and you think blue-and-white. But that's not the whole truth. Wedgwood did indeed give the name to a specific coloration, but the Wedgwood company produced and continues to produce wares in a palette drawn from the entire rainbow.

Just this past season at Christie's in London a Wedgwood black basalt bust of Homer was sold for $1,693, and a pair of oval blue-and-white jasper plaques for $1,310. The marks were Wedgwood and Bentley, dating the pieces as mid to late 18th Century. (Thomas Bentley, an early partner of the first Josiah Wedgwood, died in 1780.) The last time one of the copies made by the first Josiah Wedgwood of his own famous Portland Vase reached an auction block it fetched $50,000.

All of which goes to show that collecting antique Wedgwood is a well-heeled fancier's pastime. Of course one might still pick up a good piece off the back shelf of a small antique shop from time to time. And if you want to collect antiques of tomorrow there are today's Wedgwood products to consider. For this is one of the companies that has continued through more than two centuries to turn out its famous wares, never relaxing its standards.

TODAY, HOWEVER, it is hard to find the antique pieces, except in auction houses, when some collection is being broken up and resold. This underlines the importance of private assemblages of Wedgwood, gathered together over many years.

In a Boston suburb there is one such "Wedgwood museum," in fact if not in name. Actually it is the home of Mrs. Robert Dunning Chellis.

The Tudor-style house has Wedgwood in every room. All the flower holders, for instance, are black basalt bowls and dishes. Josiah Wedgwood may never have conceived this use for his wares but they could hardly be put to better service.

While Mrs. Chellis has placed many of her treasures in cases, many others are displayed around the rooms as part of the decor. In a small Adams-style room (the Adams brothers were contemporaries and acquaintances of Wedgwood) moonlight and fairyland luster pieces occupy the mantel. Shelves which elsewhere might be filled with books are devoted to the various periods of Wedgwood, the oldest on the highest shelf, and dating downward. In one corner of the room stands a pineapple epergne made of creamware, the pierced baskets of which might hold candies. In a lighted corner cupboard Kate Greenaway tiles are displayed, with other pieces.

A small case holds all sorts of medallions and jewelry from the hand of Wedgwood, mostly in the famous blue but with some green and other items. From time to time Mrs. Chellis chooses one to wear, thus avoiding the shut-away feeling of a museum.

SHE HAS BEEN collecting Wedgwood for some 40 years now, and besides her several hundred examples, she has also assembled what has been called "the largest American Wedgwood library." It is, she said, "a combined reference and working library of Josiah Wedgwood, his life, achievements, personal family, the large circle of friends and associates, his artists, and patrons, as well as books surveying his lifetime in the 18th century.

Housed in a small upper room, with draperies woven with Wedgwood designs, it includes original letters, just about every book pertaining to the Wedgwoods, and folios of original drawings for Wedgwood designs.

Mrs. Chellis has been president of the Wedgwood International Seminar, and in that capacity has entertained the present Sir John Wedgwood in her museum-home.

In showing off her pieces recently she pointed out the chief divisions of Wedgwood: caneware, creamware, pearlware, jasper and stoneware. Then there was basalt and a very little bone china. Because of a royal patent granted to another English maker, the first Wedgwood was never able to make bone china. In fact, that is why he developed pearlware, a development of creamware that used cobalt to produce a whiter luster. Mrs. Chellis has examples. Wedgwood bone china only emerged in the reign of the second Josiah, and subsequently.

In listing her greatest treasures Mrs. Chellis mentioned plates from the dinner service made for the White House.

"Only one Wedgwood service ever went to the White House," she said. Others are those made for Queen Elizabeth II of England in 1953; the "husk" service made in 1770 for Empress Catherine of Russia and the so-called "frog" service made for her in 1774 in which each piece bore a view of a famous landmark and each was given an oak design border and the royal frog crest.

While the Chellis home is not open to the public, Mrs. Chellis does make her Wedgwood available from time to time for exhibitions.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

If Your Uncle Is Happy, Just Leave Him Alone; He's No Child

DEAR HELEN:

Our Uncle E., our favorite and best friend who everyone loves and respects, has begun to worry us.

He lost one son in the Vietnam War. The second son died in an accident, and Aunt M. lost a long, tragic battle with cancer two years ago. Unc spent over $80,000 for medical treatments. He lost the house, his car and his small business, but he paid his debts. We all tried to help, but at 49 he seemed suddenly an old man.

Then, about 18 months ago, Unc met a young man in his 20s and they're now living in bachelor quarters. They go away for weekends together. In fact, they're inseparable, and Unc seems very happy. But the family is concerned. We are afraid this fellow is taking Unc. He may be getting him into a really bad scene, as we know he smokes pot. What else they do is guesswork. We think Unc is headed for a lot of hurt because he wants to believe this boy cares for him, when he is really using him. The fellow has a good job and seems to pay his way. That's about the only plus in the whole mess.

Unc is so generous and trusting that he'd never suspect anyone. Our warnings only make him smile and say we don't understand. What can we do? — WORRIED RELATIVES

DEAR W.R.:

It's Unc's life. Let him live it as he wishes. Whether there's disillusionment ahead or not, I don't know, but if a man with this many tragedies in his past can find a little pleasure in the present, don't interfere. You couldn't change things anyway, and you'd risk losing a good friend.

DEAR HELEN:

I can't figure out the Jekyll-Hyde personality of my husband. He buys lunches and drinks for his coworkers, does his friends innumerable favors — will even get up in the middle of the night to help a buddy in trouble. He tips waitresses far too much. He acts like the last of the big spenders — until it comes to his family.

I get sickened seeing him actually grovel to make people like him. He is so subservient that you'd think people were doing him a favor letting him pay the check or build the fence, or whatever. Actually, he doesn't have many real friends — just opportunists who stick around for what they can get.

At home, however, it's a different story. Our 13-year-old son ran away twice "so Dad won't have to spend money on my food." Our daughter married early and tragically, so she would no longer be a burden on her father. Another daughter works two jobs while still attending school and asks nothing of him, but he's continually griping about how he wishes he could be "rich as she is and enjoy her good times." He earns an upper-middle-class income.

He won't contribute to his children's college educations as he says modern kids just "take, take, take." (Ours don't!)

He constantly criticizes all of us, says I don't measure up to other wives, though I paint, repair, cook economically, and give affection that I never get in return. He never has time to fix our house up — too busy helping others.

WhenI try telling him charity begins at home, he pulls a temper tantrum, breaks things, and piles on the insults. So I just keep quiet, feeling grateful when he takes me out to dinner every six months. Yet he claims he loves his family. How can I make him see what he's doing to us? —CAN'T WIN

DEAR CAN'T:

You'll never make your husband see his faults unless you stop quietly taking the Jekyll and letting others have the Hyde. Temper tantrums or no, tell him exactly how you feel, and suggest that if he doesn't come with you to a marriage counselor, he may find himself without a family. —H.

A Spring Collection With Lots Of Flare

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Betsey Johnson's spring collection for Alley Cat was fanciful, fey and sometimes ridiculous.

She went tiny, with her hats and mini skirts. Or she went big, with midis, ruffles and nightgown dresses.

Models started in pastel bathing suits, but it was like putting the leaves back on an artichoke. Dancing and pantomiming, they layered on cotton knit blouses, jackets and caps. They slipped into matching long Johns.

Here is the chance for everyone with a raucous sense of humor to get into Betsey's little round hats and veiling, set at a forward tilt. Pair these with a long, white suit. Or pants.

MATCH A drooping tam with a straight midi suit. The top looks like a football jersey with the sleeves cut out. It is so absurd that it is funny and almost likeable.

Now is the time for all the women with lean, supple bodies to show them off — shorts with long socks — chiffon pajamas with a bare middle.

Drifters and dreamers, maybe on the plump side, might go for the chiffon tent dresses.

Pauline Trigere updated her spring collection with a few blouson tops and longer skirts. However, the best of the show was still all her tried and true, beautifully cut coats, capes and dresses. She said she didn't like midi skirts, but for a special group at a casino on a ship, she would relent. That is indeed a special group. Out came a series of solid colored outfits with bras, bare middles and jeweled jackets.

"Everyone's asking for black crepe," said Trigere, bringing out a series of evening styles, cut down in front or back.

Session On Employment Tomorrow

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A conference for Bay Area working women on employment discrimination will be held tomorrow at the First Unitarian Church, Franklin and Geary streets, in San Francisco, sponsored by the Women's Organizations for Employment.

A coalition of Bay Area women's groups, the Women's Organization for Employment program will include a panel at 9:30 a.m. of Jean Kresy of Oakland, formerly of Corte Madera, contract compliance specialist for the Department of Health Education and Welfare; Dorinda Morino, founder of Comision Feminil Mexicana, and Heather Sanders, affirmative action specialist, National Organization for Women.

A series of workshops will follow on minority women, sex discrimination lawsuits, an office women's caucus, reorganizing clerical work, the labor union, government agencies and women's cases, and flexible work scheduling.

Afternoon workshops will cover 14 job fields ranging from law to the armed services to household work.

Registration will precede the 9:30 a.m. opening.

Skin Care Needs Not Always Same

Women often make the mistake of continuing to use the same treatment products all year long. Since the skin is a living, breathing substance it changes as the seasons do.

While a light, mild cream may have been perfect during the summer months, once winter appears the skin and face in particular, require other heavier lotions to help maintain a glowing complexion.

Each skin has its special needs, and there are skin care products on the market to provide specialized care for specific skin types.

Skin Basically Of Three Types

Basically there are three types of skin, oily, dry and normal. However, no skin is uniformly the same.

You may have dry skin with oily patches and normal skin with dry or oily spots. Skins change from week to week depending on diet, exercise and climate. The same skin may require different treatment from one time to the next, according to Elizabeth Arden beauty consultants.

ON BEING BLACK

Some Poignant Observations Made

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

Often in this column we've talked about what black is. Over the years, readers have written in to tell what white is in relationship to blacks. Here are some of their poignant observations.

White is:

Watching poor less-educated blacks receive preferential treatment with regard to college scholarships, student loans and the like over better qualified whites.

Being told you are incapable of understanding black feelings, even when they are simply human feelings.

Being the prettiest but still relegated to Homecoming Queen Attendant (rather than queen) because this is "be kind to blacks" year.

Watching your mother sterilize the dishes after she graciously agreed to your having a black dinner guest.

CONSTANTLY BEING called upon to prove you are not a racist.

Having black English carefully defined for you when it sounds much like the street jargon you and your white friends use all the time.

Being told by blacks that "you" have no excuse for being poor.

Being a freshman in college and having a black professor for the first time and discovering that even he knows more than you do.

Being told you should feel guilty, personally, for all the injustices that have been inflicted upon black Americans.

Being a saleswoman and discovering that more than a few black women are able to buy the dresses that you can only admire on the job.

LIVING NEXT door to a black person who drives a Rolls Royce while you drive a '70 Ford.

Being a waitress and finding out that blacks tip, too.

Giving a good grade to the star basketball player, who rightly deserves an F, because blacks need all the help they can get.

Truly admiring Afro hair styles and purchasing a blonde Afro wig, only to discover that somewhere in the translation it lost its beauty.

Inviting your black friend to your party and having your white friends boycott the event — with parental encouragement.

Being told you must bus your children 13 miles across the city, when you live across the street from the school. If you don't subscribe to the idea, you are a racist.

Having a black nurse be extremely rude to you during a stay in the hospital, while she is very kind to the black woman who shared your room.

HAVING YOUR dearest friends shake their heads sadly as you introduce them to your newly adopted black son. Why? Why? Why?

Feeling partially responsible every time you witness an incidence of racial discrimination.

Teaching in an all-black school and loving every minute of it and being looked upon with skepticism when you say you have no intention of requesting a transfer to the suburbs.

Being doubly disadvantaged when, suddenly, many of the best jobs are earmarked for females and minorities.

Being married to a black man for eight years and still having a father who refuses to speak to you.

HAVING THE black girls on campus stare at you with hatred because you date a black football player.

Having young black teenagers spew foul language at you as you drive through the housing projects.

Being told you can't cover news events in the black communities because you are "insensitive" and the blacks would resent your whiteness.

What To Do With Goods Not Ordered

NEW YORK (UPI) — November and December, the months for Thanksgiving and Christmas, are prime time for gypsters to fill the mail trucks with unordered merchandise.

More and more persons, each holiday season, receive unordered merchandise and don't know what to do with it. The items include ties, key chains, greeting cards or good luck pins. Often the receiver feels obligated to pay for the item or return it to the sender.

Consumer affairs experts at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln say sending unordered merchandise through the mail does not violate postal laws unless it is sent COD — collect on delivery.

If you receive unordered items, you have three alternatives:

If the package has not been opened, write "return to sender" and put it back in the mail.

If you do not want the article set it aside for a reasonable period of time and if unclaimed, destroy.

Treat unordered merchandise as an unconditional gift.

When you receive unordered merchandise you are not obliged to acknowledge its receipt, to return it or to pay for it.

Correct Date Of Wedding Told

The incorrect date was given in a story that appeared in Tuesday's Independent-Journal regarding the marriage of Elizabeth Myers of San Rafael and John Larin of Novato.

The wedding took place on Oct. 27.

The name of an usher was unknown when the story was written. The omitted usher is Vern Doughty of Novato. Also omitted was the bride's grandmother, Veronica Myers of San Francisco.

Due to incorrect information the bridegroom's grandmother was identified as Mrs. Albert Larin Jr. of San Jose. She is the senior Mrs. Albert Larin.

Where do you want the freezer in your new Amana refrigerator...

Amana gives you a choice

If you want your zero degree freezer on the side, there's the Amana Side-by-Side. Or you can have it on the top or the bottom. They're all Free-O-Frost in both the refrigerator and freezer.

And every Amana has two independent temperature controls, one for the freezer, one for the refrigerator. There's a "refrigerator-within-a-refrigerator" that keeps meat fresh up to twice as long as an ordinary meat keeper. And a high-humidity compartment that keeps vegetables fresh up to three weeks.

Come and look at the choices Amana has for you. Then choose the one you want from gold, avocado, coppertone or white.

The Troubled Child Studied

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the first "child specialists" to spot "the troubled and troublesome child" is the classroom teacher, says Dr. Sam D. Clements, a clinical psychologist. He is a professor, department of psychiatry, University of Arkansas Medical Center.

Addressing a postgraduate course for physicians on management of the child with MBD —"minimal brain dysfunction," Dr. Clements said that at least 5 to 10 per cent of American schoolchildren are likely to have a specific learning disability and-or hyperactivity and other neuro-developmental irregularities of sufficient severity as to require special help.

These are children of normal intelligence, he said, and yet, their parents often fear they are retarded because they do not develop reading, writing, spelling, and language skills at the same rate as others.

These children must be recognized and treated at an early age or they are likely to develop some form of maladjustment in later life, the doctors were

THE TWO days of seminars on The two days of seminars on MBD were sponsored by the Child Guidance Clinic in Jacksonville, Fla.; the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, University of Arkansas School of Medicine; and CIBA Pharmaceutical Company, Summit, N.J., as part of its Medical Horizons Postgraduate Medical Education Series.

The course was designed to give practical guidelines to the physician in private practice who is most likely to be consulted about the child with MBD symptoms.

Dr. John E. Peters, course director, and director of the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at the Arkansas school, said that less than one per cent of those afflicated are diagnosed and treated. "This is particularly discouraging," he said, "because the MBD is nearly always salvageable."

The child psychiatrist said that a child who is not helped early in his elementary school years may fall years behind in reading and writing and never catch up.

DISCOURAGED, HE may become a dropout, a juvenile delinquent, or even a drug abuser— an individual who doesn't fit in with others.

Dr. Peters said medication, used under supervision, helps MBD children to concentrate for longer periods of time and to focus their attention on completing specific tasks without being easily distracted by outside stimuli. It is discontinued when it is no longer needed.

Also helpful for the MBD child are a favorable home and school environent. When there is a disturbed situation, the chances of the child developing life-long problems are more likely.

Dr. Peters gave these tips for parents to follow at home:

Do not pressure a child for higher grades. Accept him for what he is and what he does. The emphasis should be on enjoying the learning experience.

DO NOT ASK the child to do more than two tasks at a time. He will usually forget to do an assigned chore. Remind him. However, nagging will not help. The worst thing a parent can do is to do the chore himself. "Children have to be taught the responsibilities of life, and there is no better way to begin than with assigned chores."

Set aside a time and a quiet place away from the television set for homework. Parents should not sit with the child, but should be close by, ready to help.

Make Checks Of Clothing Before Wash

Prepare clothes for washing by checking pockets, brushing lint and dirt from pant cuffs, closing zippers and hooks and removing any unwashable trimmings. Certain items may need pre-treating for spots, stains and heavy soil.

It is a good idea to keep a stain removal chart in the laundry room as a guide for unusual or difficult stains.

Soil lines around collars and cuffs and small stained areas can be pretreated by dampening the area and rubbing with a paste made of detergent granules and water, a liquid detergent or a bar soap. Heavily soiled articles and those that have yellowed will benefit from a pre-soak before washing.

Dissolve a presoak product or laundry detergent in the soak water. Products that contain enzymes are especially effective for stains caused by body soils, blood, eggs, baby formula, grass and chocolate.

Wedding Comes Second To Space

By RON HUTCHERSON

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —Andrea Heydt's wedding is coming up, but the bride-to-be is more concerned with commemorating man's achievemets in space than filling a hope chest.

Her ambition is to create needlepoint tapestries depicting each of the 17 Apollo flights.

Her first, entitled "live from the moon," already has won a graphics prize and encouraged her to proceed.

"Here we are in this tremendous adventure, and it's a crime not to commemorate it," she said. "It should be in tapestry too. I'm doing one for each of the Apollo flights."

She's also working on numerous others, with subject matter varying from the moon to a computer-aided abstract based on a systematic pattern of ever-enlarging squares.

ANDREA, 27, majored in mathematics at the University of California at Berkeley but left after two and a half years because of the disruptions starting with the free speech movement. "Berkeley got to be too much of a hassle," she said.

Since then she has taken locally offered courses in computer science and computer programming, and her fiance is a computer programmer at Emeryville. They will marry Thanksgiving Day.

"I've been on the periphery of it (computer science) for years," the petite brunette said. "I hope to get into computer programming eventually. I'm school trained and could start with simple programming."

Her computer orientation shows in her tapestries, which make use of a tidy half-cross stitch and to a large extent, geometric patterns.

"I COLLECT embroidery patterns, but flowers or free form and I don't get on too well," she said. "I like the counted thread embroidery with the numbers very neat and precise."

Her first Apollo tapestry is a 30-by-40-inch depiction of astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin E. (Buzz) Aldrin climbing down their landing module ladder to the moon's surface. It was made from a photograph she took of the live telecast of the first moon landing.

Andrea's first taste of computer science came at Berkeley when she and her sister Marie, another computer programmer, attended a summer survey course in 1961.

"IT WAS A ball and we had all the free computer time that summer we could use," she said.

Diversions included polyominoes, a game keyed off dominoes but with tiles having up to five squares in as many as 12 configurations and play possibilities requiring a computer to calculate.

"It's lovely fun," she said. "You try to find out how many ways you can put them in a given space."

Her Apollo project has grown to the completed Apollo 13 tapestries depicting the earth as seen from the moon and the moon as seen from space.

Today is Friday, Nov. 9, the 313th day of 1973 with 52 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

American actress Marie Dressler "Tugboat Annie" was born Nov. 9, 1873.

On this day in history:

In 1872, fire broke out in a Boston warehouse. By the next day, 800 buildings had been destroyed with damage estimated at $75 million.

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt set up the Civil Works Administration as an emergency agency to provide jobs for the unemployed.

In 1953, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that major league baseball did not come within the scope of the federal anti-trust laws.

In 1965, a massive power failure blacked out New York City and parts of five New England states for two to 13 hours.

A thought for the day: American writer O. Henry said, "What a woman wants is what you're out of. She wants more of a thing when it is scarce."

FIRST TRICK

East won the first trick with the king of spades and returned the nine of clubs. South finessed with the queen, and West won with the king.

After some thought, West returned the queen of spades, forcing dummy to ruff. It was a good defensive idea, but it enabled South to "read" the entire hand.

WEST'S THINKING

West would be interested in removing dummy's trumps only if he held K-x-x of trumps. West wouldn't worry about dummy's trumps if he had only low trumps or even if he had K-x. Moreover, it was clear that East still had a club; if West had started with five clubs, he would have returned a club for his partner to ruff.

DISCARDS SPADES

After ruffing the spade in dummy, declarer cashed dummy's top diamonds to discard his last two spades. Then he got to his hand with a club and led a low heart to finesse with dummy's nine.

East won with the queen of hearts and led a spade, but South was able to ruff in his own hand.

THROUGH WEST

Now South led the jack of hearts through West. There was no defense. West played low, and South's jack held. South ran his clubs to make sure of the rest of the tricks. When South led his last club, West's king of trumps was trapped.

Maybe we can draw an additional moral from this hand. You can afford to bid ambitious games of this kind if you're able to find the perfect line of play.

DAILY QUESTION

♠ - A K 10 9 4
♥ - Q 4
♦ - Q 10 6 4
♣ - 9 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

This is a borderline case, and you open the bidding because you have a strong five-card major suit. If the suit were a minor or weaker, you would pass.

60 Days Given On Auto Theft

A Larkspur man, who admitted taking the car of a real estate broker, has been sentenced to 60 days in jail for the misdemeanor.

A second count of possessing stolen property against Marquis Matthew Scott, 25, was dismissed by Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court.

Scott pleaded guilty to stealing a car belonging to broker Sue Schaefer in August. Larkspur police said Scott tried to extort $100 from Mrs. Schaefer for the auto's return.

Alaska Itself Short On Power

John M. Stern, Alaska Public Utilities Commission chairman, says the state should cut off exports to the lower 48 states and foreign nations if necessary to meet state power requirements.

Stern says the problem is compounded by the state's harsh climate — "How do you tell a native in Kotzebue above the Arctic Circle to cut back on electricity when it's the dead of winer?"

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu will meet in Washington Dec. 4 for talks "on current international developments of mutual interest."

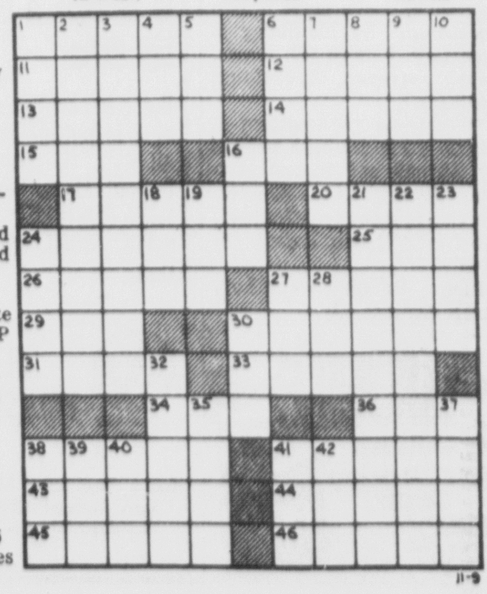
Yesterday's Answer



PRACTICE, PRACTICE — Ken Sugita practices up to three hours per day in addition to several music classes at school, private lessons and practice with the Marin Youth Orchestra and Orchestra Piccola. All the work is presently pointed at a career as a concert violinist.

Young Violinist From Japan Is Veteran In Another Field

By BILL ROBERTS

Although only 16, Ken Sugita has studied music in Scotland and Japan. And in the United States he has been instructed in violin from Columbus, Miss., to Interlochen, Mich., and from New York to Colorado.

But young Sugita said he finds Marin County unequaled in providing opportunities for instruction and advancement of his musical aspirations.

Sugita is native of Japan and his family now lives there. He has spent most of his life living in different parts of this country, however.

His father is a concert pianist who traveled and taught in New York, Mississippi, Alabama, Colorado and Japan, moving the family from place to place. The youth also lived in Scotland for 18 months while studying on a music scholarship.

"I'm sick of changing from school to school," Sugita admitted. "I've traveled all over the place from a good school in New York to a bum school in Columbus, Miss."

Sugita is sure Marin is the place where he would like to hone his musical abilities and make a final decision on possibly becoming a concert violinist.

He became a Marin resident in a roundabout way.

Sugita met Marc Israel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Royce W. Israel of Greenbrae, while attending the National Music Camp in Michigan this summer. The pair developed a close friendship and Sugita stopped in Greenbrae to visit the Israels on his way back to Japan.

At young Israel's urging, Sugita met and auditioned for Hugo Rinaldi, director of music for San Rafael city schools.

Sugita was quickly convinced of the educational opportunities of the county. The Israels welcomed him into their home and, by telephone, his parents were persuaded to allow him to stay here.

He has joined the Orchestra Piccola, Marin Youth Orchestra, is a member of several music classes at San Rafael High School and takes private lessons from Charles Meacham, music instructor at the College of Marin. Additionally, he said he practices about three hours a day on his own.

"It's a true joy to work with such a youngster so committed and who accepts the highly disciplined training his art demands," said Rinaldi.

Discipline has come easier for Sugita in the Israel household because his friend is also a violinist.

"At times I don't feel like practicing but when Marc starts, I feel like it," Sugita said.

Together they are currently rehearsing Bach's Double Concerto in D Minor for Two Violins which they hope to perform with the Orchestra Piccola.

Sugita's musical background includes as many different styles as the nations, states and cities he has visited. But he is quick to point out that he got his start at age three studying the Suzuki Method with the program's founder in Japan.

(Preschool children are taught to play string instruments by imitation rather than reading music under the program and Rinaldi predicts most future symphony orchestra string players will come from Japan because of it.)

"I'm not sure because I'm interested in so many things," he said. "Right now it looks like I really want to be a concert violinist."

To further the pursuit of that goal he has bypassed basketball tryouts at school even though he enjoys athletics.

He said Marin has offered more musical opportunities than he has ever had before. Even his father's musical contacts which include studying with San Francisco Symphony conductor Seiji Ozawa at the Julliard School of Music in New York hasn't offered more.

"Including all my musical periods, I have improved more here in a couple of months than ever before," Sugita said.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Association magazines and Parents' Magazine unless otherwise noted. "Swinging Pussycats" — German made, dubbed, totally unamusing exploitation farce about three sexually agile sisters. (Boxoffice Magazine)

Ferry Building's Lights Turned Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco's famed Ferry Building was dark last night for the first time since the blackouts of World War II.

The lights henceforth will be turned out at night for the duration of the energy crisis although the illumination surrounding the tower's four clocks will remain lit for the time being.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

The Normandie Proves A Success On San Rafael's Miracle Mile

Most restaurants "grow" like any other business and rare is the dining house that can boast of full tables throughout its first year.

So-called commercial or convenience eating places are usually something different. Generally they are the real money makers and that's why there are so many of them. I've known serious restaurateurs who wished they had gone into quick food instead of "fancy" operations. And some of them eventually did make the change.

Others continue in the type of dinery for which they were trained. Long hours, hard work and some slow nights are the usual order. And if you aspire to a high class rating you face a more critical public measuring you with a different set of values. It isn't an easy lot. Virtue may be its own reward, but it helps to have the wherewithal to pay your bills and have something left over for yourself.

Some of them do make good and to me these are always a source of satisfaction — like the Normandie on the San Rafael Miracle Mile. You have to remember that in days gone by the Miracle Mile was not noted for its successful restaurants. Many gave it up for another location or were simply washed out. The scene has improved appreciably since then. Some who stuck it out are actually doing quite well.

Normandie owners Michel Braud and Roger Minhondo are glad they did. And they have recently gussied up their place to make it even more appealing. Decorative touches are still going on outside, but the interior is done. The two partners are quite pleased with the result.

They make a good team — Michel in the front, an old hand at making people feel at home; Roger as chef, talented and very particular about his cooking of the traditional dishes.

The menu is French because these are Frenchmen and they do their own thing best. The bouillabaise (when it's on the menu) shows it. So does Roger's Friday and Saturday night special — sauteed rabbit (you probably haven't had that for a long time).

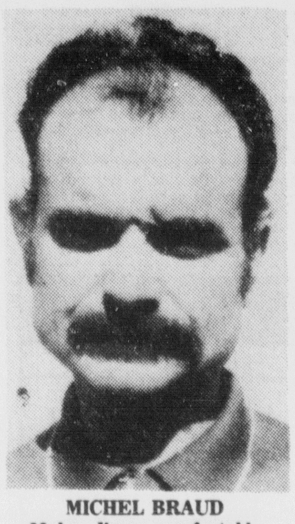
Normandie has some excellent European-type aperatifs made from the grape — Kir and Coquin, Burgundian drinks; also champagne cocktails, sherries and vermouth specials. And the table wines are both European and Californian. I'm also pleased to see that there is a good house wine served in the decanter, as is now becoming customary.

Make early reservations for Thanksgiving.

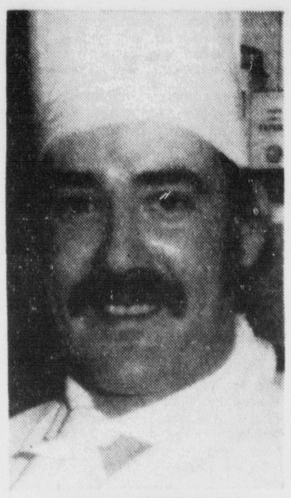
THERE'S A NEW NAME to go on your list of recommended Marin restaurants — The Terrace Room.

This is the designation that will be applied to the food facilities of Peacock Gap Country Club under its new ownership. Other changes include a lot of inside redecorating and — most important — dinners on weekends.

Chef Mark Wyman was instructed to prepare a good menu for Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights and this he has done. It's satisfying to see evening service here about to be restored, even for a few nights. Dinners will begin a week from tonight, Nov. 16, with service from 6 to 10 p.m. Mark now has a chance to show what he can do. And you'll have a choice of such entrees as pepper steak, New York strip, beef tournedos, veal Oscar, broiled lamb chops, beef stroganoff, coq au vin and frog legs Florentine. There will also be Japanese offerings such as sukiyaki, beef teriyaki and yakitori (chicken and vegetables on a skewer). Entree prices will be in the $525. — $8.95 range.



MICHEL BRAUD
Makes diners comfortable



ROGER MINHONDO
Makes food appetizing

Breakfasts will now be served Saturdays and Sundays, and starting Nov. 12 there will be lunches seven days a week (with brunches on Sundays).

The Terrace Room is still open at various times for banquets.

MY MISTAKE: Christopher's in Sausalito is not open for lunches — just dinners. It did serve lunches at the start but they were discontinued.

He has another one coming up Sunday evening, Nov. 18, also in San Anselmo. This will be at El Greco on the Miracle Mile, which has been selected by producers and importers as a setting for a festive tasting of Spanish sherries. The Spanish consulate will host it.

This is only the first part of an evening to be devoted to the wine, food and music of Spain. Fred, back from the Harvest Festival of Jerez de la Frontera in southern Spain, will discuss each of the many wine and food selections as they are served — his format at the old Cafe Bon Vin.

Capacity of El Greco limits attendance to 80 guests, so make advance reservations with Jose Pons at the restaurant. If too many cannot be accommodated the event will be repeated again on Dec. 2.

Meanwhile El Greco plans to close next Wednesday and Thursday nights, Nov. 14 and 15 for Jose to get his kitchen refurbished and updated with new equipment. A start will also be made on changing the restaurant's exterior when the weather permits.

Lunches will be served Mondays through Fridays starting soon.

ONLY TWO regular Tiburon Champagne Dinner Cruises remain in the 1973 season and both are next Thursday night — one leaving Fisherman's Wharf at 6:30 p.m. and the other at 7:45. Fare of $11 per person includes the boat trip, champagne, music and dancing aboard and dinner at any one of five Tiburon restaurants — the Windjammer, Sam's Anchor Cafe, El Borro, the Dock or Tiburon Tommie's.

However, there is a post-season package for large groups (150 minimum) until the regular 1974 season opens next May. It's a good deal for large office and holiday parties.

Make arrangements with Tiburon Champagne Dinner Cruise Co., 1714 Stockton Street, San Francisco.

THERE IS NEW ENTERTAINMENT on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at Le Tonneau in Corte Madera from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

It's provided by multi-talented Jim Ragle, who performs on organ, piano, accordion, saxophone and I think some others, but these are his standbys. He's played in many areas — down the peninsula, in the Mother Lode country and you may remember him at Spiros' Red Vest in Novato for a time. But now he's newly married to San Anselmo teacher Kitty Harvey and has settled down in that community. Kitty, by the way, also plays piano and sings and at times joins Jim in his act.

Part of the time you'll find him strolling the dining room with his accordion. Other times he encourages singalongs in the lounge and has a slide projector to furnish the words.

CONGRATULATIONS to Country Club Bowl bartender Tom Wilson, who closed out veteran winner Norman Petersen in the first round of this Liar's Dice Contest at Pier 15, San Rafael. Tom is strictly an amateur and had to be coaxed to enter the contest which goes on through December.

Pier 15 is available for banquets and parties for 20 to 75 persons in its over-the-water dining room. The restaurant will be closed on Thanksgiving and Christmas again this year.

Plans Proposed For An Oil Corporation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Creation of a government corporation to develop oil shale resources in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming has been proposed by an Ohio congressman.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, a Democrat, said in a House speech Wednesday that a government corporation was needed to make certain that benefits from the resource would go the public and not to "Big Oil"

Sheriff Sings Different Tune Regarding Sinatra

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Clark County Sheriff Ralph Lamb, who three years ago voiced a get-tough attitude with singer Frank Sinatra, yesterday termed Sinatra a "truly superstar" and the "greatest entertainer of all time."

"I am very pleased that Mr. Sinatra is coming back to show business and especially to Las Vegas. He has been a personal friend for 20 years.

"I am certain whatever the rules are, Mr. Sinatra will abide by them as does everyone else."

The entertainer announced Wednesday he would return to Las Vegas in January of next year and appear at Caesars Palace Hotel for seven days.

In 1970 Sinatra was involved at Caesars Palace with a former hotel executive who waved a gun at an irate Sinatra who was throwing gambling chips in the casino. At the time, former District Attorney George Franklin, now a city commissioner, announced Sinatra would be questioned on his return.

Sheriff Lamb said three years ago following the incident: "If Sinatra comes back to town he's going downtown to get a work card and if he gives me any trouble he's going to jail."

A spokesman for Lamb said yesterday Sinatra would be expected to obtain a work card prior to his appearance beginning Jan. 25, 1974.

The work card referred to by Lamb is provided for in a county ordinance which says "all persons gainfully employed by any establishment dispensing alcoholic beverages or having gambling in or on the premises must get a work card . . . including all persons whether employed on a contract basis or by payroll . . . and to exclude only those persons who appear as a licensee by the county for that establishment.

IN CUSTODY — Willie Steelman (left), 28, wanted for questioning in the "execution" style slaying of nine persons in Lodi Wednesday, came out of a Sacramento house with his hands up yesterday while Melinda Ann Kashula, 19, described by police as his girlfriend, was escorted away by a policeman. Arrested earlier at a hotel in downtown Sacramento was Douglas E. Gretzler (right), 22, a second suspect in the murders. (UPI Telephotos)

Some Officials Offered Guards

OAKLAND (UPI) — Police guards have been provided for some public officials in the wake of the assassination of the city's black school superintendent by masked gunmen.

The security guards were offered to city officials after two telephone callers threatened the life of Police Chief Charles Gain, a white who is quitting at the end of the year.

Gain shrugged off the threats. "They are not the first ones," he said.

A letter from a group calling itself "The Symbionese Liberation Army Western Regional Youth Unit" claimed responsibility for Tuesday night's slaying of Marcus Foster, 50, and the serious wounding of his deputy superintendent, Robert Blackburn, 38, a white.

Both men were caught in a withering crossfire of a shotgun and revolver. Investigators were unable to establish a motive for the gun attack outside of saying it was a planned execution.

An updated description of the suspects by police indicated the assassins were young, possibly teenagers, of slender build and might even include women.

The Symbionese Liberation Army said in its letter to a Berkeley radio station and a San Francisco newspaper that Foster and Blackburn had been marked for death "by a court of the people."

The three-page-typewritten letter said the men were guilty of "crimes against children" for allegedly furnishing police computers with information about students.

Police were unable to determine whether the letter and the telephone calls threatening Gain's life were related. However, a spokesman said there was no new information contained in the letter regarding the slayings.

Investigators and specialists on radical groups said they had never heard of the Symbionese Army.

Rewards totaling $50,000 have been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the assasins. Funeral services for Foster will be held Monday morning at Beebe Memorial CME Temple.

Security Tight For Massacre Suspects

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — San Joaquin County Sheriff's deputies adopted extra security measures today for the arraignment of two suspects in the massacre of nine persons in the dream home of a country grocer.

Willie L. Steelman, 28, an admitted heroin user, ex-mental patient and parolee, and Douglas E. Gretzler, 22, New York City, were to be escorted here under heavy guard from the County Jail in nearby French Camp to be charged in Municipal Court.

They were captured yesterday in Sacramento, 30 miles north of this Central Valley farm community, and booked into the jail on nine counts of murder. Authorities said Steelman and Gretzler might also be linked to a double slaying and the disappearance of two others in Arizona.

Gretzler was arrested in a downtown hotel by Sacramento police armed with shotguns. A short time later officers hurled tear gas into an apartment, forcing Steelman from the room where he was holed up with a girlfriend.

Police said that weapons which might have been used in the slayings in the small town of Victor near here Wednesday were also found in the hotel.

The victims in the slaying were the grocer, Walter Parkin, 33, his wife, their two children and five friends. The bodies of the two Parkin children were found in a bed in the Parkin home. The rest of the bodies were found neatly stacked in a closet. All had been bound and shot in the head.

Parkin's neighbor, Bill Peterson, said his friend had dreamt of building a home, raising his family and planting grapes. Peterson said Parkin was "living" these goals.

Parkin's home was a sprawling $65,000 structure tucked into vineyards. Investigators theorized that the killers burglarized his store in Victor and then went to the home.

Deputies said at least 26 bullets were fired at the victims. And the killers, according to investigators, even took time to reload their weapons.

The suspects were arrested after a clerk at Gretzler's hotel recognized the suspect from published photographs. A resident of Galt, a Sacramento suburb, saw the two in a small foreign station wagon with Arizona license plates, and they were tracked to the hotel.

Lodi Suspects Eyed In Kidnap Of Petaluma Pair Last Month

Two men arrested yesterday on suspicion of nine Lodi murders may be connected to a kidnapping last month of a Petaluma couple, the Sonoma Sheriff's Department said today.

Capt. John Hess said Willie Luther Steelman, 28, and Douglas E. Gretzler, 22, may have been responsible for the Oct. 21 kidnapping. They were arrested yesterday in Sacramento in connection with the murders of nine people in the Lodi suburb of Victor and are also wanted for questioning in the killing of two people near Apache Junction, Ariz.

Hess said one victim of the previously unreported kidnapping has tentatively identified the men as the kidnappers. He said positive identification may be made later when a complete set of pictures and fingerprints are received.

Hess said the young couple had not reported the kidnapping because they were threatened with death if they notified police.

They said they picked up two hitchhikers on Highway 116 near the Russian River resort community of Cazadero at 10 p.m. on Oct. 20. The men reportedly turned a sawed-off shotgun on them and forced them to drive to Mountain View, where they were released unharmed the next day at 9 a.m.

Hess said the kidnappers reportedly stole a car in Mountain View which was found the next day near the death scene in Arizona.

Martial Law Looms In Bangladesh

By RICHARD CRITCHFIELD
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

DACCA — The Bangladesh countryside has fallen into a state of virtual insurgency.

Both the economy and civil order are deteriorating so fast, observers believe Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, may have to invoke new emergency powers and impose something close to martial law within the next six months or sooner.

Gun fights have broken out in villages just outside Dacca the past few weeks. Many other villages arm themselves to fight back against night-attacking bandit groups.

Investment is at a standstill; industrial and agricultural productivity is low and stagnating; imports are not coming in as they should nor are exports going out. With unemployment and prices rising, there is a general disillusionment setting in.

Sheikh Mujib's government — fearing urban food riots could spark widespread political violence — spent half of its foreign exchange last spring on food imports.

Now, although reserves have risen back to $200 million, the government appears afraid to spend money on other kinds of imports needed to get agriculture and industry moving.

A stage has been reached where, in an atmosphere of general demoralization, any government decision seems horribly dangerous.

It took one of the worst cyclones in history, harsh Pakistani suppression, and a Pakistani Army that ran wild, as well as reinforcement from the Indian Army, to finally galvanize the broad mass of Bengalis into revolution in 1971.

Nothing like that exists here today.

Instead, against the essentially centrist, petit bourgeois of the inefficient and corrupt Awami League ruling party, there is a whole complex of little insurgencies — Marxist, Maoist, Muslim, pro-Pakistan, and others of every possible political coloration, plus a great many terrorists simply bent on aquisition of wealth.

But it will be difficult for the Prime Minister to act until he deals first with the corruption within his own party.

A story now making the rounds is about an elderly woman from an impoverished squatters' shantytown who berated a well-known Awami League politician described by everyone as an old-line party hack who controls some of the underworld in Dacca's medievally Muslim old-city section.

"I know you," she said. "We all know you. You're dirty. You steal. You keep relief goods to yourself. Do you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to vote for Sheikh Mujib!"

This, it seems, is what millions of illiterate Bengalis did last March — voted for a man against a party, not realizing how closely tied together they were.

As a result, Sheikh Mujib today finds himself being the still popular and charismatic leader of a party that is increasingly discredited and rejected by most of his people.

He is expected to try soon to either drastically reform the party or in some way dissociate himself from it — perhaps falling back on some form of military-technocrat alliance just to keep the country from going to pieces.

There is some speculation that before he acts the prime minister may await the return of some 20,000 Army and Air Force regulars who will be among the Bengali repatriates from Pakistan.

This theory holds that the new arrivals will not share the general disillusionment in the country and might be a needed loyalist element among the 50,000 or so men already bearing military arms.

The repatriates together with the Rukhi Bahini — the specially trained combat police force of 10,000 under Sheikh Mujib's personal command — would give the prime minister more assurance of being able to enforce martial law should be choose to impose it.

Briefings Planned On Energy Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House announced yesterday a series of briefings to be held today in 10 cities around the country on the President's emergency energy program.

A White House spokesman said all interested parties could attend the sessions to be held in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Kansas City, Denver, San Francisco and Seattle.

Station Is Sued For Refusing Commercials

NEW YORK (UPI) — A film distributor Wednesday filed a $1.5 million suit against the National Broadcasting Co.'s local television station for refusing to show commercials for a fictionalized film about President Kennedy's death.

National General Pictures Corp. called WNBC-TV's decision not to carry commercials for the movie, "Executive Action," "arbitrary" and unconstitutional.

The movie, "Executive Action," stars Burt Lancaster and the late Robert Ryan, and was described in court papers as a fictionalized treatment of the assassination.

Passenger Files Bus Crash Suit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A survivor of Saturday's bus crash, which killed 13 persons, filed suit Wednesday seeking $550,000 damages.

Lenny C. Atkins, 31, of Richmond, charged the bus driver, Douglas Moore, 26, of Hayward, operated the bus at high speed and carelessly before it smashed into a freeway abutment. The complaint also named Greyhound.

The driver was killed in the crash as were Atkins' mother, Rachael Jenkins, 55, and his fiancee, Ester Harris, 27. Atkins suffered injuries in the crash, as did the 30 other survivors.

PARADISE VALLEY FAMILY

Marin Pioneers—Rough Row To Hoe

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Green fields and timberlands,
People working with their hands,
For sure, a different way to live.
The Doobie Brothers from the song "Ukiah"

Take Renee Doe, for example. She is in her mid-30s, single, has little money and she and two of her three children share a small umbrella tent that they call home, for now.

But a house is rising on a knoll covered with gray grass in Paradise Valley near Bolinas, and she and a few friends are building it themselves.

Four other buildings in various stages of construction are taking shape in the 48-acre valley that is the home of the Paradise Valley Family, a community of 14 adults and 15 children dedicated to an experiment in returning land to productive agriculture and providing low-cost housing.

At the north end of the stadium-shaped valley is the family's 1.5-acre pilot garden. Greg Hewlett, 33, who quit his post on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board of directors earlier this year to devote more energy to the experiment in paradise, walked among the rows of corn, potatoes, green leafy vegetables, tomatoes, pumpkins, blue and white stalk flowers and fava beans as big as bananas.

"We live in a circle of insanity. Here we are in a county where we can grow our own food, yet we go to the city to buy it," said Hewlett, crossing a narrow board bridge over Pine Gulch Creek, which meanders through the valley, statuesque alders flourishing like weeds along its banks.

All would appear rurally serene, but trouble came to Paradise in July.

The county building department issued a stop-work order because construction was going on without permits or other county clearances. It was ignored.

Last month, Richard V. Godino, assistant county counsel, threatened arrest if the family did not comply with county regulations.

"In their hearts they know we never would have gotten started if we had gone through them," said Orville Schell, a family member and present utility district director. "It was not clear what we were doing. The county must have thought we were a bunch of hippies trying to defy them."

"We definitely have each other's attention now," offered Hewlett, who said that recent talks with county officials have cleared the sparks from the air and brought about an atmosphere of compromise and discussion.

Within the past two weeks, the family submitted a detailed proposal of its goals to county offices. Ironically, many of those goals match those outlined in the county general plan for West Marin.

"This is an agonizing situation," said Marin Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, whose district includes Bolinas. "I hope the county is open enough to allow them to try some of their innovative ideas. If not, we would have to shut them down. But if compromises can be reached, maybe Paradise will come up with breakthroughs that will benefit everyone."

The valley's nine families, organized into the New Land Fund, a non-profit organization, bought the 48 acres for $168,000. A set of unusual covenants cancels the profit motive, which could corrupt the philosophies and high principles of the family, Hewlett and Schell said.

Each family, entitled to build only one house, can sell it for only the cost of materials that went into it. Shares of the Paradise Valley Produce Co., the banner of the group's agricultural enterprise, can be sold for half of the family's investment. "Laws designed for us to lose money," remarked Hewlett.

Each house (nine are planned in all) will have its own kitchen. None will have flush toilets or, at least for now, electrical wiring, violations that shatter the foundations of county building codes.

Dry compost toilets are planned. A byproduct of the composting of human waste is methane, a gas that will be used for heating and cooking and to fire some lamps. Dry and liquid sludge that results will be used for fertilizer.

Although utility firms could provide electricity, power is to be produced from properller-type windmills that power generators or from two wells, hand-dug by family members without a county permit. There also is a proposal to heat water by solar energy from tanks on roofs.

An old carriage house trucked piece by piece from Petaluma will become a central meeting place when construction is completed. It will contain a fireplace and common kitchen.

"If it comes down to the ultimate crunch, we have all the power," said Godino, the assistant county counsel who has been dealing with the family. "The consensus is now that they will apply for necessary permits, so the application and appeal process is underway. Although I am not optimistic that it will be all peaches and cream from now on, I would hate to think we are so closed minded that we can't accept new ideas if they can be shown to work."

The family is known in official circles for its pioneer spunk, as exhibited by Renee Doe, and also its wealth of brains and talent, Godino and Giacomini agreed.

Its members include a teacher, writer, photographer, architect and land planner, carpenter and farmer, among others. "We all are so many things," said Schell. "That is our main asset."

All members are equally expert scroungers. They tore down buildings at the Hilarita housing project in Tiburon, reclaiming oak flooring and large pieces of building lumber that otherwise may have been wasted. The result is houses of incredibly low cost. The most expensive includes about $2,000 in materials. The others will cost from between $300 and $1,000.

Hewlett and other members support a special set of codes for owner-built homes not constructed for resale. Giacomini has submitted such a plan to the department of public works for review.

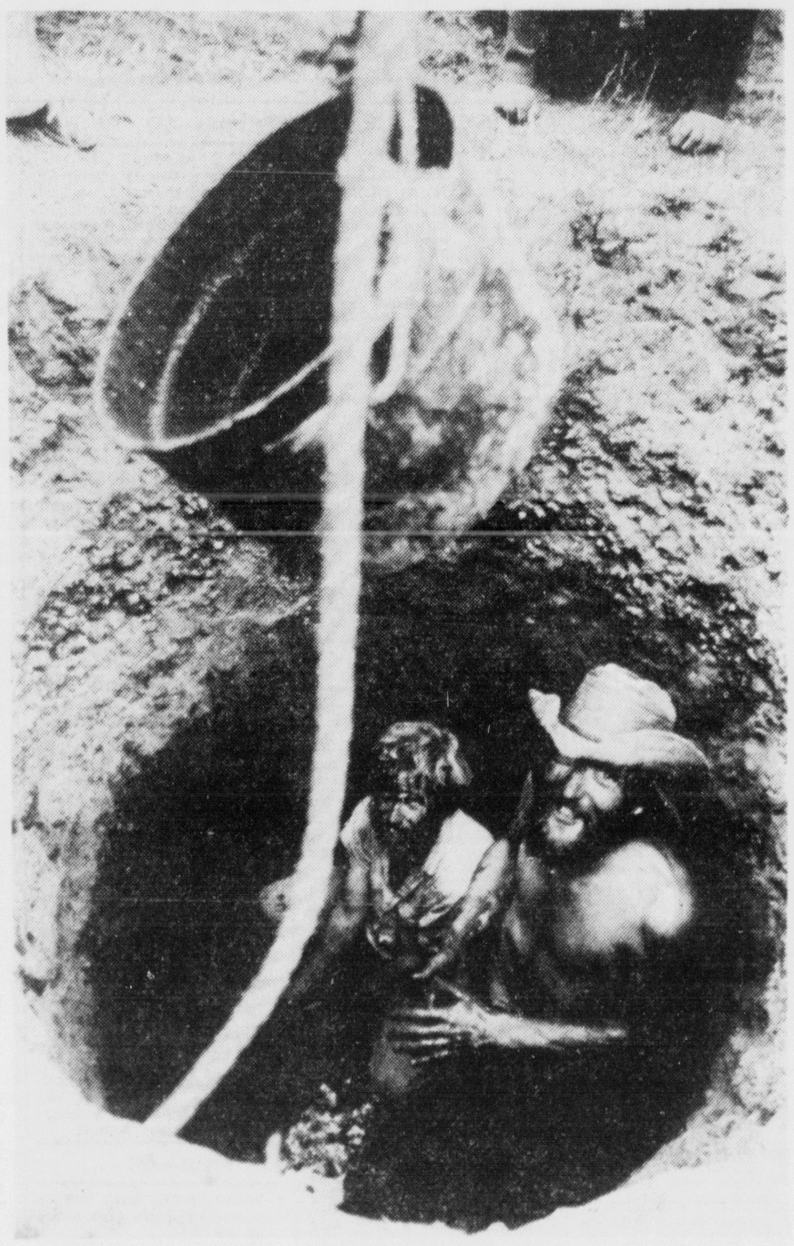
While construction is going on, the five families that currently live on the property occupy Army surplus tents, canvas and aluminum shelters originally built to house farm workers.

The family has a five-year plan toward self-sufficiency. Gardens and orchards will be expanded, pastureland will be used to graze milk cows and goats. Pigs and chickens will be raised. Bee hives will supply honey.

Schell framed the question that remains to be answered as winter approaches and family members are involved in surviving off the land while "fighting the battles over the hill."

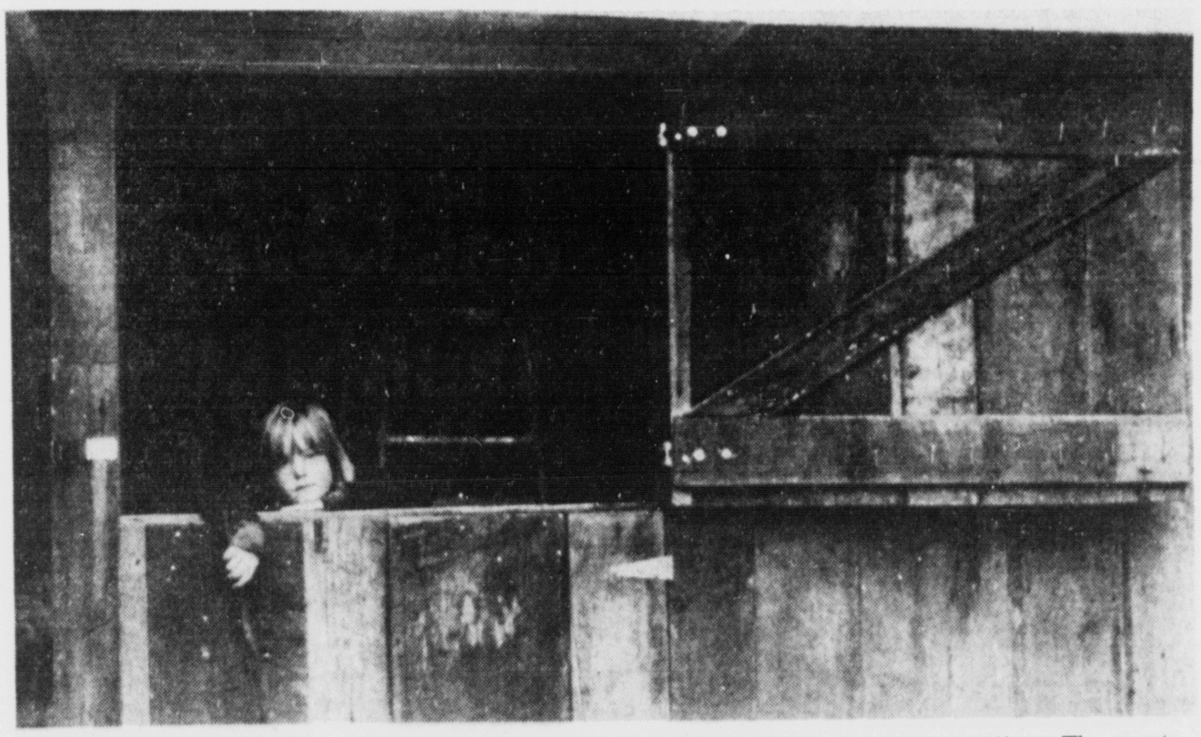
"What it comes down to is do nine families have the energy to persevere for what is right?"

Then, smiling, Hewlett replied: "We have been through a lot of paroxysms, but we feel strong and very confident."



WELL — Greg Hewlett and Russ Riviere hand dig one of two wells that will supply water to the Paradise Valley Family near Bolinas. "The county isn't sure whether it is legal to dig a well by hand," said Hewlett. "Maybe that's because no one has done it for so long." (Photo by Steve Matson)

PLOUGHING — Susan and Russ Riviere buck a roto-tiller while ploughing the 1.5 acre garden that now grows a variety of vegetables and fruit in Paradise Valley near Bolinas. "It's insane to go over the hill to buy our food when we can grow it here," said one member of the Paradise Valley Produce Co. (Photo by Ilka Hartmann)



CHILD — One of the 15 children who live in Paradise Valley, Debbie Hewlett, plays in the shed where the garden tools are kept. "Children receive all the benefits of living among many adults in a country setting. They get shared attention from all of us and have the land where they can roam," said her father. (Photo by Ilka Hartmann)

PLANTING — Members of the Paradise Valley Family plant fruit trees on a portion of their 48-acres near Bolinas. Present plans include 530 dwarf fruit trees planted in contour along the 180,000-foot field and slope on the eastern side of the valley. (Photo by Orville Schell)

Continuing Fight To Save Landmarks Across Nation

By STEPHEN WEBBE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — More than a third of America's 16,000 registered historic landmarks have been destroyed since 1933 and they're still crumbling under the wrecking ball.

"They're disappearing by the thousands, without a thought of perserving them, without even considering a modern, useful purpose for them," says James Biddle, president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, which has fought the destruction of historic sites and buildings since its inception in 1949.

Among the historic, architecturally significant structures that are currently facing destruction, defacement, or neglect are:

Benjamin Franklin Station Post Office, Washington, D.C.

Union Station, New London, Conn.

Drayton Hall, Charleston, S.C.

Florida State Capitol, Tallahassee, Fla.

Baltimore Conservatory, Baltimore, Md.

Why has so much of America's priceless heritage been destroyed?

"All too often, it is merely wanton plunder — the destruction of historic landmarks because of selfish, commercial interest," says the trust's media assistant, Steven Lee Carson.

Carson added that a number of factrs contribute to the gradual effacing of America's landmarks:

"Many historic places are located in areas which have since become rundown and in ghetto areas where people are afraid to go," he observes, adding that architectural and historic treasures originally built in the surburbs now are in the downtown sections of cities where there is the greatest pressure on building land.

In a continuing battle to "keep alive and vibrant the visible memories of America's past" the trust helps individuals and groups throughout the country organize to save threatened sites and buildings.

From its elegant Decatur House headquarters on Washington's Lafayette Square, the trust aids in coordinating private, public, and governmental preservation efforts besides providing professional advice and conducting seminars on all phases of preservation — from restoration techniques to zoning ordinances.

This year, for instance, the White Oaks Historical Association, Carizozo, N.M., was awarded $500 for continued services on the development of a comprehensive plan for White Oaks ghost town.

The Arizona Historical Society in Tucson was also a trust beneficiary, receiving $350 for technical advice on maintaining a collection of 200,000 negatives taken in the Southwest between 1874 and the 1960's.

In the four years since the consultant program was initiated (1969) — with the help of a Rockefeller Brothers Fund grant — the trust has awarded nearly $79,000 to more than 110 organizations.

As the only national private organization chartered by Congress to encourage public participation in preservation, the trust concerns itself with far more than historic houses. It also seeks to preserve archaeological sites, industrial structures, gardens, interior furnishings, open spaces, and to discover "ways in which they can be used to enhance life in 20th-century America."

The National Trust, which is mainly supported by contributions from more than 40,000 individual and organizational members, along with income from endowments, bequests, and foundation grants, receives funds from the federal government.

Encouragingly, the trust says, America is awakening to its heritage of historic buildings and the need to protect them.

"Public outrage," Carson feels, it most likely to prevent the desecration and neglect of historic buildings across the country.

"A city without its old buildings is like a man without his memory," says Biddle. "If we stand by silently as they disappear, future generations will look back in anger at the trust we held in our hands and betrayed."

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Good Faith Is Insurer's Must

When it was heavily damaged by fire, Vic's insurance company got suspicious. The D.A. was asked to investigate. And the next thing, Vic was charged with arson.

"We'd like you to cooperate with the D.A.'s investigation," Vic's insurance agent told him.

The charge was finally dismissed, however.

"There's no evidence to require Vic to stand trial for arson," said the court.

With that charge gone, Vic asked the insurance company to pay for the fire loss.

"No," said the company firmly. "You refused to cooperate with the investigation. So we still feel you were trying to hide something."

"You're trying to hide behind those charges just to avoid payment," Vic said.

So he sued. And he won.

"Each insured must comply with the terms of his policy by telling the company of losses and supplying evidence," the court explained. "But," the court added, "the insured was not wrong in withholding information that could have damaged his defense against the arson charge."

"An insurance company is expected to act in good faith for the benefit of its client," the court concluded.

Acting in bad faith may cost an insurance company more money than paying off losses without question.

Take the case of Hilda. A guest was injured in her home and sued. Hilda's policy should have covered the required $10,000. But the company felt it had nothing to lose and took the case to court.

"Couldn't we just pay the money and forget it?" asked Hilda.

But the company insisted.

The court ruled that the injured should get much more than Hilda's policy covered. A judgment that could have left Hilda penniless.

Hilda had a nervous breakdown over the results of the unnecessary trial. She sued her insurance company for acting in bad faith in not protecting her interests. She recovered the full amount. Plus damages for her "emotional distress."

Status Of Viet Veterans Hit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Regional Veterans Conference was told yesterday the Vietnam veteran is not as well off as his World War II counterpart when it comes to educational benefits.

James L. Bowman, director of the Financial Aid Studies Programs at Princeton, N. J., said veterans of earlier wars did much better because the government paid the full cost of tuition.

He said his organization made a study and concluded "the real value of the educational allowances available to veterans of World War II was greater than the current allowances being paid to veterans of the Vietnam conflict."

Candy Trouble

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI) —Ambulance men raced to Malvern Road School yesterday to remove a candy from 5-year-old Dean Larcombe. He had pushed it up his nose.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Old Age No Longer A Barrier To Surgery, Recovery Is Rapid

Chronological age no longer is a barrier to surgery. Every year thousands of oldsters undergo these procedures to correct defects, such as hernias, and remove tumors and infected organs. The need for an operation is weighed against the risk of life or invalidism. Chances are so good that the older person will survive surgery that the cliche "I'm too old to have an operation" no longer is valid.

Recently a surgeon scheduled two identical procedures for the same morning. At 8 a.m. he removed the gallbladder and appendix from a woman of 84. An hour later, he performed the same operation on a 55-year-old housewife. Both women recovered rapidly. They were out of bed the next day and home nine days later.

SEVERAL YEARS ago, we told of a man of 104 who had an emergency operation for a strangulated hernia. My own father had the same operation when he was about 92. Convalescence was rapid in both cases, and both men remained active for sometime thereafter.

The safety of geriatric surgery is the outgrowth of consideration research on the special needs of oldsters before, during, and after a major operation. It involves intravenous fluids, blood and, if need be, drugs that improve the circulation. In addition, the anesthetic is selected to fit the patient's special requirements.

AFTER SURGERY, the lungs are forcibly expanded twice a day with special respiratory units (intermittent positive pressure devices). Above all, the elderly person is out of bed as soon as possible to discourage the development of pneumonia and blood clots.

Most operations performed on the elderly are for the removal of the prostate gland, bladder tumor, fractured hip, gallbladder disorders, cataract, hernia, cancer of the bowel or stomach, or amputation of a gangrenous limb. Vascular surgery also is coming into its own to alleviate circulatory problems of the heart, brain, and extremities. A bit of advice — don't delay necessary surgery when young just because it can always be done later.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, San Rafael, Ca 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

RADIOACTIVE TEST

B. E. writes: The doctor wants me to have a radioactive test of my thyroid, which frightens me. Can this test harm me in any way?

REPLY

No. Minute and harmless amounts of radioactive iodine are used for testing the thyroid gland and the radiation is detected with physical devices.

BLOOD AND ARTERIES

B. L. writes: Is the blood too thick in hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

No, but when it is (polycythemia), the victim is more likely to develop a complication, such as clots or obstruction. Arteriosclerosis is not a cause of thickening of the blood and vice versa.

TUBAL INFECTION

W. R. E. writes: 1. What is salpingitis? 2. What is the treatment?

REPLY

1. Inflammation of the fallopian tubes leading to the uterus.

2. An antibiotic, such as penicillin, that is capable of killing whatever organism is responsible for the infection.

LUNG CANCER

A reader writes: I've been a pack-a-day smoker for 24 years. Would stopping prevent the development of lung cancer or is it too late?

REPLY

No one can answer this question, but in my opinion, it is never too late to stop. Some individuals have developed lung cancer 10 years after they stopped smoking, but this is unusual. Others live to a ripe old age, even though they are inveterate smokers. If you want to take the chance — this is your business. Most of the serious effects of smoking occur to those who inhale and use more than one pack a day over a long period of time.

China Massacre Of Tibetans Told

MOSCOW (UPI) —The weekly newspaper of the Soviet Writers Union says China, which overran Tibet 14 years ago, killed 12,000 Tibetans last year while putting down a revolt.

"During the new insurrection of the Tibetans in 1972, there were 12,000 dead and thousands of Tibetans sent to jail or hard labor camps," Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette) said in its current edition.

China forcibly took over Tibet in 1959 and made it an autonomous region in 1965.

The weekly also claimed that in recent years the Chinese forcibly suppressed national liberation movements in five other regions.

Pravda Reports Nixon's Stand

MOSCOW (UPI) —Pravda reported today without comment President Nixon's statement that he has no intention of resigning because of the Watergate affair.

The Communist party newspaper carried a Tass dispatch from Washington which mentioned the President's remarks. The Soviet press had not previously mentioned demands that Nixon resign.

The Soviet weekly Novoye Vremya (New Times) last week became the first Soviet publication to report that there had been calls for Nixon's impeachment because of the Watergate scandal.

Security Force Gets A Scare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department rushed security personnel to a busy Washington street where envelopes labeled "Top Secret" and "Contents Classified" were blowing in the wind.

When they picked up the envelopes, which apparently had fallen off a trash truck en route to an incinerator, they breathed a little easier.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Boxing Dream Becomes Nightmare For Foreman

NEW YORK (AP) — A youthful dream of punching his way to financial security has turned into a nightmare of lawsuits, monetary problems and difficulty in obtaining fights for heavyweight championship George Foreman.

"I'm not starving but I don't have any money — I'm about broke," Foreman said yesterday. "I can't get any of the money I've won. I'm trying to keep up three homes. I'm the champion but I can't get any fights.

Foreman spoke to The Associated Press by telephone from the Houston airport before boarding a plane to his home base in Hayward.

Foreman, who gained national attention by waving a tiny American flag in the ring after winning the 1968 Olympic championship in Mexico City, was an underdog when he fought Joe Frazier for the world title Jan. 22. With 30,000 fans screaming hysterically in Kingston, Jamaica's National Stadium, the muscular Foreman smashed Frazier to the canvas six times and stopped him in two rounds.

He has made one defense of his crown — a first-round knockout over Joe Roman in Tokyo Aug. 31.

"Haven't got paid for that," Foreman said about the Roman fight.

He was to receive $250,000 for the defense but payment was blocked by a lawsuit involving Marty Erlichman and David Miller, general partners in George Foreman Associates of Philadelphia.

In addition, Mrs. Ludene Gilliam of Houston is suing Foreman, claiming he signed a contract with her.

"Before I was champion, I fought four times a month," he said. "I didn't make a lot of money but I kept busy and always had enough to live on."

Foreman's purse for the Frazier fight was $375,000 but he said he received only a small portion of that amount.

"My contract with manager Dick Sadler called for him to get 33⅓ per cent off the top. The Philadelphia people got 25 per cent of what I made from the gate and 25 per cent of what I made outside.

"I wound up with about $100,000. But from that I had to pay my training expenses and other things. It didn't leave me much. And I've still got to pay my taxes."

Lavish living is not a drain on Foreman's bank account. A deeply religious and devoted family man, Foreman once admitted "I guess I'm just square."

Foreman said he has been unsuccessful in getting a rematch with Frazier as well as bouts with such contenders as Muhammad Ali, Jerry Quarry and Ron Lyle.

"I thought I had a fight with Ali all fixed up," he said, "and I picked up a paper and see where he signed to meet Frazier."

A Welcoming Dinner For KSFO's Michaels

The Giants Boosters Club of Northern California is making sure the team's new radio announcer feels right at home in the Bay Area. The club is holding a welcoming dinner for Al Michaels Dec. 4 at Rubini's restaurant in Fairfax.

Boosters president Allan B. Murray is deep in plans to make it a really big show for Michaels, Cincinnati Reds' radio man before coming to San Francisco to replace Lon Simmons. Lon, as most of you know, is confining his broadcasting to 49er football and is doing some television work with the Warriors.

AL MICHAELS

KSFO, Michaels' new boss, has not announced the No. 2 man for the broadcasts (yes, Bill Thompson is out) but there has been some speculation it could be Art Heckman of the Houston Rockets. It seems like everybody who can hold a microphone has turned in an application for the Giants' No. 2 broadcasting job. Michaels' helper in Cincy was Joe Nuxhall, a man who pitched his first ball in the major leagues (Reds) when he was a fuzzy cheeked lad of 15.

At a press breakfast put on by KSFO the other day to introduce Michaels, he said he left Cincinnati because the Bay Area offered more exposure and a bigger challenge. He didn't say it, but let's face it: if you had a choice between San Francisco and Cincinnati to make a home, which would you choose?

HE SAID HE REALIZED it would be a tough job replacing Simmons, whose voice is known by so many Northern California fans, but he wants to go into the job as his own man, not wanting to talk of comparisons.

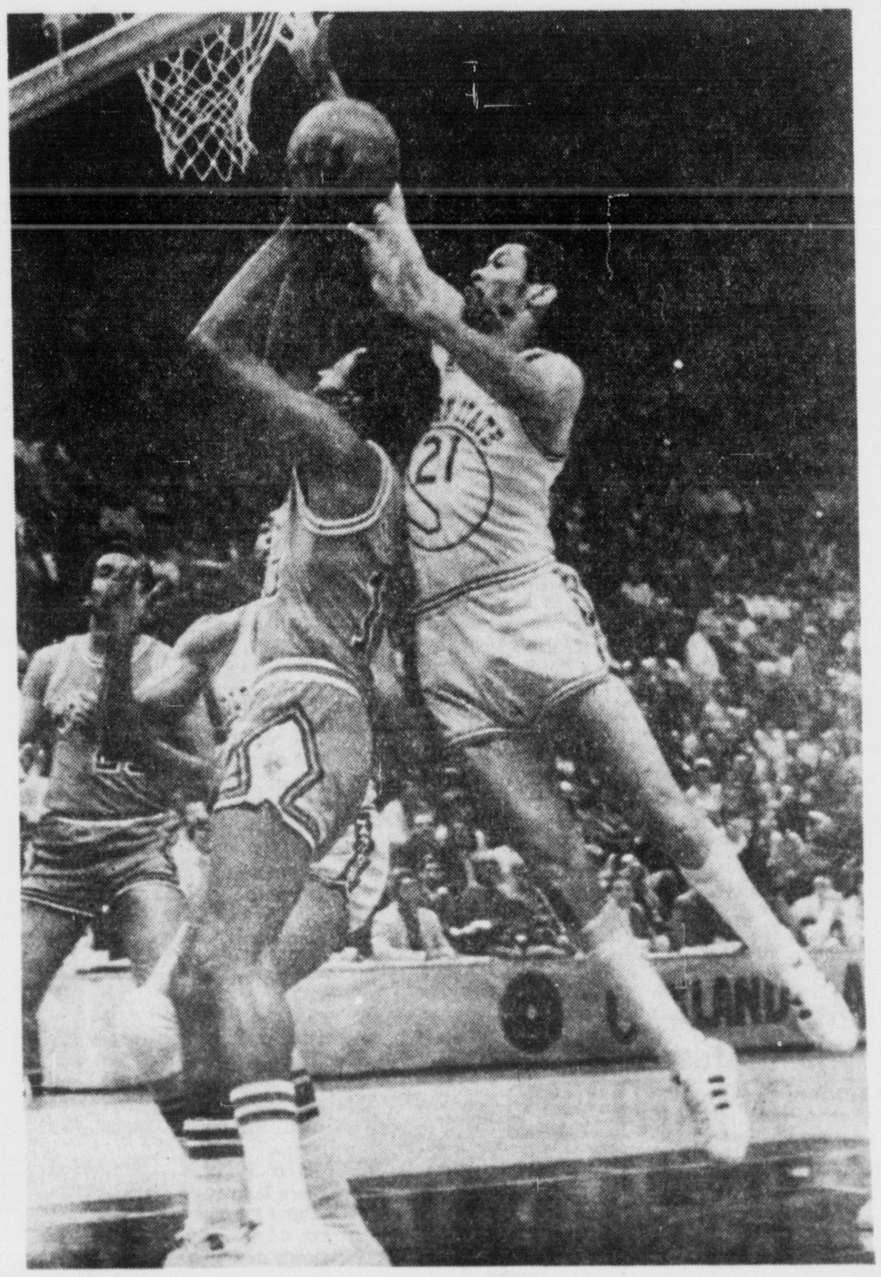
It's going to be a turnaround for Michaels who was a Dodger fan both in Brooklyn and Los Angeles. He grew up in Brooklyn and came west when his parents moved to L.A. in 1959. He played baseball and football at Hamilton High School in L.A. and after graduation decided he would rather talk sports than play 'em. So he went off to Arizona State to major in radio and television and minor in journalism. He already had set his goal: to become a major league broadcaster.

There was a year and a half stint with Chuck Barris Productions (Dating Game, Newlywed Game) in Hollywood, then Michaels moved to Hawaii and in 1968 signed to broadcast the Hawaii Islanders (Pacific Coast League) baseball games. He also did high school sports broadcasts and three daily television shows.

THE REDS FOUND OUT about Michaels and made him an offer he didn't refuse. He was off to a fast start in Cincinnati, not only working radio broadcasts, but handling National Football League commentary for NBC in 1971, covering the Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, NBC, and joining the network broadcasts when the Reds played in the 1972 World Series.

"Baseball is a fascinating game," said Michaels. "I really love to go to the park and am at a loss when the season ends. In baseball you never know what's going to happen . . . and that's what keeps me genuinely enthused. Still, there are times when the score is 11-1 and even a 'super fan' can't pretend enthusiasm. That's why I always try to be honest — never insult the intelligence of listeners. If the game is going nowhere, I know it and they know it."

Fans will get their chance to meet him at the boosters dinner next month at Rubini's. For reservations, call Murray at GTS Travel in San Rafael.



AW SHOOT — Chicago Bulls' forward Bob Love attempted a first period shot last night in Oakland but was fouled by leaping Golden State Warriors' guard Butch Beard. Bulls' Rowland Garrett and Warriors' Nate Thurmond (partially hidden) awaited a possible rebound. The Bulls won the National Basketball Association contest, 112-111.

AGAINST SURPRISING DRAKE

Football Crown At Hand For Redwood Tomorrow

The football championship which has been in sight for weeks may be in hand tomorrow for Redwood High School — if the Giants don't fumble it or have it intercepted by remarkable Drake.

The teams square off at 2 p.m. at Tamalpais High in Mill Valley in a crucial Marin County Athletic League game.

Redwood (4-1) has been looking toward this moment ever since knocking off San Rafael, Terra Linda and San Marin in the first three weeks of the MCAL season. The Giants' bid was slowed by Novato two weeks ago, 12-0, but if they win tomorrow, they nonetheless will clinch a tie for the title for the second straight year.

Drake (3-1) has ambitions of its own, however. "This is for the championship," said Drake coach Dean Lazzarini, conveniently forgetting the Pirates' league finale against San Marin next week, and the contender status of Novato (3-1).

An additional prize is at stake. The MCAL champion will represent the league against the North Bay League winner (probably undefeated Petaluma) in the second annual Top of the Bay Bowl Nov. 23 at San Rafael High.

(If two teams tie for the title, the winner of the game between them goes to the bowl. Drake has beaten Novato and Novato has beaten Redwood, so Redwood's bowl chances depend on somebody beating or tying Novato.)

"(Tomorrow's) should be a close, hard-hitting game," said Lazzarini, "We're pretty even in size, and in team quickness. A muddy field won't give either team an advantage."

Drake has moved into contention this year by coming up with so many turnovers that they've become known as the Break Pirates. In their three victories, foes have lost 12 fumbles and 11 interceptions.

Drake's game plan is to establish the running attack, chiefly by using the power-I formation unveiled in last week's 28-15 victory over Terra Linda. "If we can punch it up inside on 'em, it'll open up other things," says Lazzarini.

Lazz considers defense Redwood's strong point, as well he should. The Giants are second in the MCAL with a 138-yard average, and have held opponents without touchdowns in three league games, including a 7-0 shutout of Tamalpais last week.

Drake, which has been healthy all year, reports no injuries. Redwood center-defensive end Mark Hagberg suffered a sprained ankle against Tam, causing coach Phil Roark to insert John Balatti at left tackle and move Mike Roush to center. Tim Smyth takes over at linebacker and Mark Bartlett moves to the end position.

San Marin Gridders Test Defensive Unit Of Novato

The matchup between Marin's best running back and Marin's best rushing defense may not come off, but tomorrow's football game between Novato and San Marin high schools promises plenty of excitement anyway.

Kickoff will be at 1:30 p.m. at Novato's field for the hard-hitting traditional rivalry, which the Hornets must win if they hope to take the Marin County Athletic League championship.

Novato, which yields only 28 yards a game on the ground and has recorded three straight shutouts, may have a problem in Wayne Roche, the San Marin running back who leads the MCAL in rushing.

Roche, who missed last weekend's 20-7 non-league victory over Marin Catholic due to a slight cartilage tear of the right leg, is doubtful for the game, according to coach Bob Martin. He was working out in practice.

"San Marin is 1-3 (in the league), but with a few breaks could be 3-1," said Novato coach Al Scott. "They're a good football team." Novato is 3-1, tied with Drake and one-half game behind Redwood in the championship race.

"We expect to move the ball with our usual normal balanced game," said Martin. The Mustangs are third in the MCAL in rushing (123 yards a game), fourth in passing (96) and second overall. Martin said Dave Harder may start at quarterback in place of Mark Moore. Harder was impressive against Marin Catholic.

Whoever the quarterback, he will have to contend with a fearsome Novato forward wall of ends Scott Johnson and Hal Jennings and tackles Bob Clay and Mike Asciutto. Ken Straw and Mark Doran back up the line, and Mike Martin plays middle guard or linebacker, depending on the situation.

Their success against the run, and their ability to harass the passer, has been the trademark of the three straight shutouts, including last week's 13-0 victory over San Rafael.

CHICAGO WINS

Attles Pegs Defeat On 'Many Mistakes'

OAKLAND (UPI)—"It was just a matter of too many mistakes," said Coach Al Attles. "That's why we've been losing our games this year."

Attles was trying to explain how the Golden State Warriors blew a five-point halftime lead to the Chicago Bulls last night before losing 112-111.

"We had the game pretty much in command," said Attles, "until those seven turnovers in the third quarter. You can't make too many mistakes and beat the good clubs."

Chicago took advantage of those seven turnovers to erupt on a 20-8 spree in the final seven minutes of the third quarter to grab an 80-73 lead. For the game, the Warriors committed 21 turnovers while the Bulls had 17.

Bob Love of the Bulls scored nine of his game-high 31 points in the final period to help the Bulls stave off a furious closing rally by Golden State. In the final period, Cazzie Russell and Charlie Johnson each scored 12 points to nearly pull it out.

Nate Thurmond, who scored 14 points, fouled out with 6:04 remaining and Golden State trailing 98-89.

Jeff Mullins and Rick Barry each scored 20 points to pace the losers, who dropped out of a first-place tie in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division with Portland. The win was the 10th straight for the streaking Bulls.

Golden State hosts Buffalo tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Oakland Coliseum-Arena.

San Rafael Wins

San Rafael High School's undefeated freshman football team kept its record intact yesterday by defeating Redwood, 8-6, in a Marin County Athletic League game at San Rafael.

Gilbert: Also-Ran To Leader

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI)—Gibby Gilbert, tired of being an also-ran, was ready to quit golf three months ago. Winless Allen Miller, only half-jokingly, says "I sorta wish he had."

The 32-year-old Gilbert yesterday fired a phenomenal eight birdies plus an eagle to offset a single bogey and came up with the best round ever recorded at the famous Pinehurst Country Club—nine-under-par 62 on the 7,007-yard No. 2 course.

That gave him a five-stroke lead entering the second round of the marathon $500,000 World Open Golf Championship, the richest event in Professional Golfer Association history. Runnerup Miller was alone with a 67 on the No. 4 course, where veteran Miller Barber fired a 68 to stand alone in third place.

$24,760.87 Record Pay For A's Series Players

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was a unique feature to the seventh game of the World Series that was just announced yesterday. The Oakland A's were playing for over $24,000 a man but the New York Mets were playing for just under $20,000.

It was announced yesterday by the baseball commissioner's office that the Oakland A's received $24,760.87 for winning the World Series while the New York Mets got $14,950.17 for losing.

But if the Mets had won, they wouldn't have received the $24,000. They would have gotten about $20,000. That's because the Mets gave out 34 full shares and the Oakland players gave out only 27.

Included among the Mets' 34 shares was one to the grounds crew. The Mets also gave half shares to Jim Fregosi and Phil

The 24 miles per gallon reported in a road test by Popular Science Magazine. Peugeot—the elegant, mid-size, mid-price import—delivers this kind of economy without stinting on the comforts so important to domestic car owners. Without sacrificing the superb maneuverability, the solid handling that is Peugeot. And with un-common standard features: independent suspension, disc brakes, reclining bucket seats, Michelin steel-belted radial tires and, on the sedan, a steel sliding sunroof.

Test results achieved at constant 45 mph.

Early Clinching Possible For Unbeaten Minnesota

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Minnesota Vikings are making a shambles of the Central Division race in the National Football Conference of the National Football League, and have a chance on Sunday to clinch the divisional title in the ninth week of action.

But to accomplish this feat they will need a little help. The Vikings host the Detroit Lions, against whom they have been installed nine-point favorites, and a victory for Minnesota would eliminate Detroit from title consideration. Should Green Bay, which hosts St. Louis, and Chicago, which travels to Kansas City for the Monday night contest, also tie or lose their games, the Vikings would win the NFC Central title.

Against the Lions, the Vikings have won 11 in a row dating back to 1968, including a 23-9 decision earlier this season.

Last week in their 26-3 victory over Cleveland Minnesota had to make do without the services of running back Chuck Foreman, who gained 114 yards against Detroit in the earlier game, but it appears that Foreman will be available for Sunday's game.

The Lions' offense will have to play against the defense which has allowed the fewest points—87—and the fewest TDs —6—in the NFL.

In other NFL contests Baltimore is at Miami, Cincinnati visits Buffalo, Houston entertains Cleveland, New England is at the New York Jets, Pittsburgh visits Oakland, San Diego is at Denver, Philadelphia hosts Atlanta, Dallas is at the New York Giants, Los Angeles hosts New Orleans and San Francisco is at Washington.

MASKED MAN — A familiar National Football League face was concealed from the cold in New York yesterday as the Jets' Joe Namath wore a mask during the Shea Stadium workout. Namath is working the kinks out of his arm as he tried to get back into shape after suffering a shoulder separation against Baltimore Sept. 23.

49ers' Nolan Is Counting On Thomas

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Coach Dick Nolan says the San Francisco 49ers will count on Jimmy Thomas more in their ground attack, starting Sunday in Washington against the Redskins.

"Jimmy Thomas will be playing a great deal more," Nolan said yesterday. "He has the ability to break away. His shoulder still is bruised, and this affected his blocking in Detroit, but this week might make the difference. The shoulder's coming around."

Thomas carried seven times for 44 yards against Detroit after a layoff of several weeks and his 5.5-yard average for 28 tries this season is the best among 49er ball carriers. The 26-year-old Thomas has been backup to veteran Ken Willard, 30, who moved over to the starting fullback slot after Larry Schreiber's early season injury.

"We've used seven different running backs this year," said Nolan. "Only one, Vic Washington, has stayed healthy all the way."

Novato Girls Win Swimming League Title

Novato High School's girls swimming team clinched its first Marin County Athletic League championship in history yesterday by defeating Redwood, 76-36, at Redwood.

The victory gave Novato a 6-0 MCAL record with one meet remaining. Nobody else is better than 4-2.

Sue King, a consistent multiple winner for Novato, yesterday captured the 100-yard individual medley, the 100 butterfly and swam on the 200 freestyle relay. Sharon Silvey won the 50 and 100 backstrokes, Laura Griffin took the 50 fly and 100 free and diver Bobbie Vrastil remained undefeated.

Tamalpais (4-2) upset visiting Marin Catholic (3-3) yesterday, 57-56, as Lori Allen tied the MCAL record in the 50 breast (34.9), won the 100 breast and swam on the 200 medley relay team which won to clinch the victory. Lisa Berryman won twice for Tam while Ann Haley (previous holder of the 50 breast record) and Jane Patocchi won twice for Marin Catholic.

In other meets yesterday, Drake (4-2) defeated host Terra Linda (3-3), 61-51, behind triple victories by Tammy Secondo and Patti Furrier, and San Rafael topped host San Domenico, 77-31, with double wins by Julie Waters, Sue Hein and Peggy Erlerkotter.

Gilbert Jumps From Obscurity To Lead

South African Gary Player, a top favorite for the $100,000 first prize who settled for a 73 Thursday, predicted that even par for the eight rounds would "easily" win the tournament.

But anyone watching Gilbert yesterday wouldn't have thought so.

Starting on the back side, he birdied No. 12 when his five-iron shot left him a five-foot putt. Three holes later, on the 15th, he struck for another birdie with a 20-inch putt. Then, on the No. 2 hole, he started a string of five birdies, sinking putts of 20, 25, 5, 20 and 30 feet, and then adding a two-foot birdie putt on No. 9. His eagle came on the par-five, 504-yard 16th hole when he chipped in from 35 feet. His bogey came on the seventh hole when he missed a four-foot putt.

His 62 shattered a course record of 65 for the No. 2 course that was held jointly by Ben Hogan, Johnny Palmer and amateur Charlie Palmer.

Gilbert has notched only one victory, in the 1970 Houston Open, since joining the tour five years ago. He hasn't managed better than fifth at Westchester this year and after a dismal showing in the American Golf Classic, he said, "I figured it was all over.

"I already had another job lined up as a sales representative," he said. "I'd been playing real bad for three months."

"Grout helped straighten out my hook and in seven of the next eight tournaments I finished in the top 25," he said. "Now I have to play some more."

Grouped at two-under-par 69 going into today's round were Mike McCullough, Tom Kite, Gay Brewer and Napa's Ron Cerrudo. Brewer, Cerrudo and Kite got theirs on Nov. 2 while McCullough got his on the No. 4. Five golfers were grouped at 70, one under par. They were Rick Rhoads and Joe Porter on No. 2 yesterday and veteran Ken Still, Homero Blancas and Wally Armstrong on No. 4.

Masters champ Tommy Aaron was among nine golfers at even par 71, while Doug Sanders, J.C. Snead and George Archer were among 24 clustered at one-over 72. A throng of 34 stood at 73, including Player and veterans Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead.

Hennigan, who were traded in July when the club was in last place.

Oakland's Mike Andrews, the player involved in the most controversial incident in the series when owner Charley Finley tried to fire him, received a one-fourth share for $6,190.22. Oakland gave a half-share to Jesus Alou, who played in only 36 games and a third share to Vic Davalillo, who played in 37.

A total of 12 clubs split a record purse of $1,991,461.17, topping the previous record of $1,882,178.15—also set last year. The attendance at the playoffs and World Series also set a record of 643,641.

The total receipts for the playoffs and Series were $5,337,281.25 but the players divide only the revenue from the first three playoff games and the first four World Series games.

Tam Plays Terra Linda Tonight At 8

Tamalpais High School, still hoping to reel in a Marin County Athletic League football victory, will meet Terra Linda tonight at 8 o'clock at San Rafael High.

The Indians have lost five straight games, including four MCAL clashes, but last week played league-leading Redwood nearly to a standstill in a 7-0 defeat. They are 2-6 overall.

"We did a fine job — it's too bad we didn't come up with the win," lamented Tam coach Jess Racines.

"We respect their defense," said Terra Linda coach Don Lucas.

Terra Linda enters the game 2-2 in the MCAL and 4-4 overall following last week's 28-15 loss to Drake, which intercepted seven passes. The Trojans technically still have a chance for an MCAL co-championship, but it would require a long and unlikely chain of events.

Tamalpais has lost John Hanley for the year with torn ligaments in his right knee. He plays offensive end and defensive safety. The other end, Mike Lamb, missed the Redwood game with a shoulder pointer and will miss this one also.

Terra Linda two-way tackle Dave Pulver is back after suffering an ankle injury, but will not start, Lucas said.

Raiders To Alter Steelers' Status?

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Steelers rank second in the American Football Conference against the rush but burly Bob Brown of the Oakland Raiders want to change that.

Despite a pinched nerve in the leg and a bandaged hand that was recently broken, the 302-pound offensive tackle says he's ready to open some holes for guys like Marv Hubbard, Charlie Smith and Clarence Davis.

Brown will start Sunday's game against the Steelers. It will be his job to keep L.C. Greenwood, the Steelers' wiry 6-foot-6 defensive end, away from the Oakland quarterback and runners.

"I play good against the good ones," said Brown.

Penn State, LSU In Bowl

MIAMI (UPI)—The Orange Bowl contest New Year's night will pit Penn State against Louisiana State University, bowl officials said privately but firmly yesterday.

Although official invitations can't go out until Nov. 17, the Nittany Lions and the Louisiana State Tigers had been rumored as heading for the Orange Bowl for over a week.

The thing that cinched the selection according to one source was the election of Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama to vie for the featured game this year—an Alabama-Notre Dame matchup in the Sugar Bowl.

One reliable source said the Crimson Tide and the Fightin' Irish were offered such lucrative television offers for 1974 regular season coverage that they could not refuse.

"The other thing was that Bryant would rather keep his boys practicing in Biloxi or somewhere than frocklin' on the sand at Miami Beach," the longtime bowl observer noted.

The Miami Herald quoted Joe Katz, Sugar Bowl executive director as saying, "We'd be idiots" not to accept the Alabama-Notre Dame contest.

Notre Dame will play in the Orange Bowl against the improved, but struggling, Hurricanes of Miami later this season.

Orange Bowl sources admitted they tried to draw the Alabama-Notre Dame matchup but felt they were stymied by a lucarative ABC-TV deal.

However, if Charlie McClendon's Tigers pull off an upset Thanksgiving Day, the Orange Bowl committee could come out smelling like a blossom. On that night, in a national-televised contest, LSU meets the Tide.

Mill Valley Dominates Gymnastics

Gymnasts from Mill Valley Middle School captured every place in the highest-skilled division yesterday in a Marin County Junior High-Middle School compulsory girls gymnastics meet at Tamalpais High School.

Susan Barnard led the way by winning balance beam, tying for first in vaulting and winning the all-around title with 23.85 points, ahead of Shanna Edelson (22.55) and Michele Sanders (21.30). The team is coached by Starr Overlock.

Tami Wallace of A. E. Kent School in Kentfield, competing in the beginner open division, had the day's highest all-around score (26.15).

Tanya Tompkins of Mill Valley won the all-around title in the beginner class (23.35) and Mill Valley's Maureen Perry won it in the novice class (19.48).

Weaver, 43, was fined $500 yesterday on a reduced charge of driving April 16 in Baltimore while impaired and Baltimore County Circuit Court Judge Kenneth C. Proctor told him, "Your conduct was inexcusable and outrageous."

Harriers In Loop Meet Tomorrow

Cross country runners from Marin will take the first step — actually, the first several thousand painful steps — toward post-season glory tomorrow at 9 a.m. at the Marin County Athletic League meet at Lake Lagunitas.

The top four teams and the top five individuals in the varsity and freshman-sophomore races will qualify for the North Coast Section Division III meet next Wednesday in St. Helena.

Top finishers there will return to Marin Nov. 20 for the North Coast Section meet, which was won last year at the varsity level by Redwood High School.

Girls will compete for the MCAL title tomorrow, but no higher championships are sanctioned by the NCS. An open Bay Area girls championship race will be held Nov. 20 at Lake Lagunitas concurrently with the NCS meet.

Tomorrow, varsity runners will compete on a 2.9-mile course, frosh-soph runners on a 2.1 miler and girls will run 1.5.

Redwood and San Rafael high schools, which tied for the MCAL dual-meet title at 11-1 and split two close meets with each other, are expected to vie for the varsity crown.

Redwood also is strong in the frosh-soph and girls categories (the Giants, in fact, tied for all three titles), but San Rafael is considered the frosh-soph favorite and Tamalpais the girls favorite.

Perfect Conditions For The Outdoorsmen

Conditions are perfect for the outdoorsman this weekend through much of next week.

Here is a rundown of conditions:

With the rains, the valley duck hunting picture should be ideal. Lots of ducks and geese coming down from the north. The Gray Lodge public shooting area had a 4.6 average for 658 hunters opening day. Sutter and Sacramento also had good averages. These could improve with the prevailing weather conditions. Joyce Island (only open on Saturdays) had something like a 4.8 average last Saturday (opening day). Get those reservation applications in right now.

WE ALSO HAVE the annual fall turkey hunting season opening tomorrow. Following a good hatch and with adequate food and cover, prospects are rated better than normal.

"Not only are conditions ideal," said state Department of Fish and Game upland game coordinator Harold Harper, "but more territory will be open this year than last and hunters will have a full week longer to bag their birds."

Fresno County and the portions of Kern and Tulare counties not open last year will be included in open areas. The season, nine-days long last year, will run for 16 days this year.

According to Harper, the earlier opening will enable the hunter to concentrate on turkeys rather than dividing his attention between turkeys and pheasants, the seasons for which opened the same day last year.

PHEASANT SEASON this year will not open until Nov. 17.

Turkey season will continue through Sunday, Nov. 25. Open counties are Colusa, Fresno, Glenn, Kern, Lassen, Monterey, Nevada, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Shasta, Tehama, Trinity, Tulare and Yuba and that portion of Mendocino County lying within Mendocino National Forest.

Both the Rio Grande and Merriam's varieties are found in California as a result of the department's efforts to stock suitable areas with the largest of all game birds.

The limit is two birds of either sex per season. Shooting hours are one-hour hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset.

Hunters are cautioned to obtain permission to hunt on private land where most birds will be found.

In the 1972 spring and fall hunts combined, an estimated 5,500 hunters took about 1,900 of the wily birds.

IF YOU ARE a die-hard deer hunter, you still have until Sunday to put in that last try for a buck. Check the regulations for the counties still open. This storm will surely move the deer — you may just get lucky.

Then we have a -1.3 and -1.5 tides this weekend in the late afternoons. Abalone season is still open. Also with the quarantine removed by the Health Department on shell fish, clams and cockles are in season and okay for eating. If you don't feel like working, stop at one of the local oyster beds at Tomales Bay or Drakes Bay and you can buy yourself some oysters. I ate 30 one evening this week. The oysters are now in prime condition. I bought the small ones — what a flavor, and the price is right.

IT'S HARD to tell exactly how the silver salmon fishing will be at White House Pool and Tomales Bay. Too much rain could muddy up the creek, but I don't think so. It should be just right, and the big fish should be arriving. It's the right time of the year. The grilse have been showing, and they usually lead the schools of salmon to the spawning beds.

The rains also should have put a lot of fresh water in the Delta and San Pablo Bay. If the crabs move out, then bait fishing for sturgeon will be perfect.

STRIPER FISHING with bait should also pick up. A recent release from the Fish and Game Department stated that the striped bass population is estimated at 1.5 million legal-sized stripers. This is about half the population of ten years ago, but the fish are averaging about twice their former size.

The striped bass population study was started in 1969; every year since then some 15,000 to 18,000 stripers have been tagged and released. At present, there are tags on one of every 35 legal-sized bass. Evadulation of the tag returns by you, according to Don Stevens, senior fisheries biologist of the Fish and Game Department, makes it appear that the population is holding steady.

Weather, Pride Key Coast Grid

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Weather and pride are the key words in West Coast College football this weekend.

UCLA's point-a-minute Wishbone gets a strong test in Eugene, Ore., tomorrow with an off field and either rain or snow as real as the Bruins' 4-0 Pacific 8 Conference record. The opponent is Oregon, a team with fine personnel now fighting only for pride.

Pride also is at stake the same afternoon in Los Angeles where Southern California takes on Stanford. The Trojans, out of the running for a national title, go into the game with a 4-0 league mark against a team that has been nothing but trouble for them the last three seasons.

The Stanfords are still alive in the Pac 8 race with a 3-1 record and they know they have to beat USC to rate consideration for the conference title and the Rose Bowl berth that goes with it. Stanford beat USC behind Jim Plunkett, 24-14, in 1970 enroute to the Rose Bowl and then made it two in-a-row over the Trojans, 33-18, behind Don Bunce in 1971 on the way to another Rose Bowl.

Last year, in a mistake-plagued game, Southern California beat Stanford, 30-21, and eventually wound up with a perfect season and a ticket to Pasadena on New Year's Day.

There is no love lost between Stanford and USC and their respective coaches, Jack Christensen and John McKay. With so much at stake plus the traditional North-South rivalry, the game figures to be close to a sellout in the Los Angeles Coliseum. That means a crowd of more than 80,000.

UCLA goes against Oregon in relatively good physical shape plus two of the finest runners in the nation in Kermit Johnson and James McAlister. A misunderstanding between kicking specialist Efrem Herrera and the UCLA coaching staff has been resolved, which accounts for the fact UCLA is a solid 19-point favorite.

Southern California is picked by 25 points over Stanford, mostly because the Trojans' long dormant offense came alive last week in a 50-14 victory over California. However, there are many who think this is the biggest point overlay of the season.

In the other Pac 8 matchups, Washington State is an eight-point favorite over Oregon State and California is a 10-point pick over San Jose State of the Pacific Coast AA. Washington plays Idaho and there is no point spread on that meeting.

There are two key games in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association-Long Beach State at San Diego State and Fresno State at Pacific. San Diego leads the league race with a 1-0-1 record, San Jose State is second at 2-0-2 and Pacific is next at 1-1-1. A Pacific victory and San Diego loss would knot the race up even more.

GOLF NOTES

Rosehill Title Match Is Sunday

Raindrops and roses are the talk in Marin County golf circles today.

Bob Hackmyer and Jack Machado meet Jerry Lake and Ed Pater Sunday at 7:02 a.m. in the Indian Valley Golf Club Rosehill Golf Tournament finale.

Hachmyer and Machado defeated R. O. Anderson and his son Dale, 5 and 4, while Lake and Pater ousted Al DeLucas and Jerry Gransee, 4 and 3, in semi-final round action last Sunday.

Bill Schoenfeld and Ed Patterson won the consolation title last Sunday by eliminating Art Sears and Red Gilmore, 4 and 3.

As for the raindrops, Marin club pros report acute cases of loneliness caused by storms this week. Little fairway action has taken place in recent days, but club pros have expressed cautious optimism about possible weekend play.

BETTER LATE . . . Mrs. A. V. Martini defeated Mrs. William Sarm, 2 and 1, Oct. 26 to win the 54-hole Handicap Golf Tournament at Mill Valley.

No Soviet Boycott Support In Offing

VIENNA (UPI)—Russia's imminent disqualification from the World Cup provoked protests and indignation among East European soccer nations today but none of them has yet decided to boycott the competition in support of the Soviets.

"A possible boycott is not under discussion at the present stage," said Danail Nikolov, President of the Bulgarian Soccer Association .

Poland and East Germany also did not go beyond launching protest against the International Football Federation's (FIFA) decision to play the Russia versus Chile match in Santiago.

Eastern soccer sources said Poland will not seriously consider to pull out from the competion after qualifying in the sensational 1-1 match against England at Wembley.

"It's one thing to protest but another thing to pull out," one source said .

FIFA spokesman Rene Court said in Zurich FIFA has not received any communication from other East European nations that they may withdraw from the World Cup in support of the Soviet position.

Nikolov said Bulgaria will not discuss a possible boycott of the World Cup before meeting Cyrus in a qualification game on Nov. 18 in Sofia.

"We will first have to qualify," he said. "We don't see any reason to discuss other problems now. We have protested against the FIFA decision forcing Russia to meet Chile in the Santiago Stadium that was misused as a concentration camp by the Junta. Any honest sportsman would do the same."

A spokesman of the Polish Soccer Association said, "Poland has taken no decision so far to boycott the World Cup."

In Hungary, FIFA executive committee member Sandor Barcs said " the FIFA decision should be revoked."

The FIFA gave Russia 48 hours to reconsider its refusal to play the second leg qualification game against Chile in Santiago. The first leg match in Moscow ended in a 0-0 draw.

Clipping Less

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clipping, which now carries an automatic 15-yard penalty in the National Football League, used to carry a 25-yard penalty before 1940.

Hot-Shooting Buffalo Faces Host Seals

OAKLAND (UPI)—The California Golden Seals, who managed a tie against a great goalie last time out, have to try and outscore a hot-shooting offense tonight at 8 o'clock.

They hope to break a seven-game non-winning streak when they take on Buffalo, a strong team against whom the Seals traditionally play well.

Coach Fred Glover said there was an improvement in the Seals' shooting in the 1-1 stand-off against Chicago Wednesday night.

"At least the shots were on the net, instead of over it," he said. "If not for (goalie Tony) Esposito, we'd have had a big win."

But Buffalo brings into the Coliseum Arena Richard Martin, with 13 goals in 12 games, including a hat trick against the Seals a week ago when he was the whole show in a 3-2 win.

Veteran backup goalie Marv Edwards was in the nets that night and has had some big nights against the Sabres' famed French Connection line. He could well start tonight.

Meanwhile, the league tried to stifle a new flurry of rumors about a possible new owner, or even new site, for the Seals.

Peter Graham, operator of the San Diego Arena, said he has offered $7 million for the Seals, who would be shifted to his arena.

But Graham said the National Hockey League wouldn't approve the sale because "they want to pay $6 million for the club and keep it in the Bay Area."

NHL President Clarence Campbell denied his office ever had communications with Graham or that there had been recent communication with owner Charles O. Finley about the sale of the team to the league.

Finley, who reportedly spent $4.5 million for the Seals three years ago, asserts he has suffered $2.5 million in losses since then.

O'Reilly, Simkins Head Harriers Field

Davidson's Mike O'Reilly and Santa Veneita's Caroline Simkins head the field in the first Marin County-wide Junior High School Cross Country Championships Thursday at 4 p.m. at the Marin Civic Center.

O'Reilly has a 6:31 clocking over the mile and one-quarter-plus layout, while Miss Simkins has recorded an 8:03.5. There will be four boy and three girl classifications for the title meet.

TARS' FOE MERRITT

Good Coaching, Poor Playing

When the College of Marin football team hosts Merritt of Oakland tomorrow at 1 p.m. in Kentfield, the Tars will likely discover that the visiting Thunderbirds have better coaches than players.

Head coach Roy Shivers is a former St. Louis Cardinals running back, offensive line mentor Ike Lassiter stood out for the Oakland Raiders, while defensive line tutor Dan Colchico starred for the San Francisco 49ers. Colchico and Lassiter were defensive ends who were noted pass rushers.

They hope that enough of their luster rubbed off on the lowly T-Birds (2-6 overall), so they will pressure the pass-oriented Tars (3-4) in this non-league affair.

Not surprisingly, Merritt (0-4 against Camino Norte Conference foes) has prostyle offensive and defensive alignments.

"They're basically a running team. They operate out of an I and go off tackle quite a bit," explained Tars' coach Dick Read. "They're a lot like us; they're not too big. Merritt joins our conference next year, so we want to make a good impression on them Saturday."

To do so, the Tars will have to contain the running of tailback Ollie Johnson, a 5-foot-9, 175-pound breakaway threat, and fullback James Havey.

Marin (2-3 in conference action) has more than just Johnson and Havey to contend with. The Tars have knee injury problems in center John Durand, a doubtful participant tomorrow, and guard-tackle Leo Fahey. Both have strained ligaments in the left knee, but Fahey is likely to play despite the ailment.

Otherwise, the Mike Sanderson-led Tars are relatively healthy. Quarterback Sanderson, still the conference pacesetter in passing and total offense, will attempt to zero in on wide receiver John Buckley, the CNC receptions leader with 43. Sanderson hopes to improve on his credentials which list: passes 228, completions 98, yards 1,443 and touchdowns 12.

If he does, it could be a long afternoon for the Thunderbirds and their National Football League-experienced coaching staff.

ABA Czar Storen Fines, Suspends Coach Leonard

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Bob Leonard, coach of the Indiana Pacers, was fined $1,000 and suspended for two days by American Basketball Commissioner Mike Storen today in the stiffest punnishment ever handed out in ABA history.

Storen, in his first year as ABA commissioner, met unexpectedly with Leonard last night in New York and with Pacers' general manager John Weissert. Storen was Leonard's former boss from the days he was general manager of the Pacers.

The Pacers are idle tonight, but play at Utah tomorrow. Under terms of the suspension, Leonard will have to stay in the locker room and out of the arena playing area as if he were ejected from the game.

Leonard was ejected from a game Wednesday night against the Carolina Cougars after he was charged with three technical fouls. The technical fouls will cost $300 extra.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Dual Fund Liked For Income Power

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like some information on dual-purpose funds. If I invested would I have to purchase both types of shares? Since my goal is income I prefer to buy only the preferred shares. Is this possible? — G.D.

A. This unique investment concept, on which the seven dual-purpose closed-end funds are based, allows income-oriented investors to purchase one class of shares and growth-minded investors the other. The two classes are distinct entities, trading separately and possessing different characteristics. Six are listed on the New York Stock Exchange while the seventh, Putnam Duofund, trades over-the-counter.

Income shares, which receive all dividends earned on the total portfolio, have a predetermined life span. At maturity, these shares will be redeemed at prices close to their initial offering price. American DualVest, with the nearest maturity, will redeem its income-preferred shares in 1979. The other 6 funds have maturity dates from 1982 to 1985. After redeeming the income shares, the balance of the portfolio's assets accrue to the capital shares. American's preferred shares, trading at about $12, when redeemed at $15 in 1979 would yield over 10 per cent to maturity. There are no dividends in arrears and the current 87 cent annual rate includes three cents per share in excess of the minimum amount required.

Leverage Fund is also attractive for income investors. Shares are trading somewhat below the $13.72½ redemption price and pay an indicated 97 cents a share to yield 7.7 per cent currently and 9 per cent to maturity in January 1982. Also expiring in 1982, Scudder Duo-Vest's income shares have appeal for conservative yield-conscious investors. These shares are trading around $8 versus a redemption value of $9.15, plus arrers.

The dividend paid in the last 12 months — $0.665 — exceeds the 64 cents minimum rate, although arrears of just under 29 cents a share remain to be cleared.

Of these three issues, American, which provides the lowest current return with the greatest capital gain potential, would be my choice.

ADDED SAFETY IN NEW VOLVO

New, protective bumpers and the removal of front vent windows are the two most visible changes for Volvo in 1974. A double-collapsing steering column has also been added for safety and improved impact absorption, along with a warning light to indicate failure of low headlight, rear light or stop light. Volvo has moved the gas tank forward and entirely below the floorpan for safety in the event of rear end collision. Volvo's new 142 and 144 Grand Luxe sedans will also have a heated driver's seat. Men Seen As New Cosmetics Buyers

Men, like women, may soon be using personal and decorative cosmetics and body lotions, according to Morton W. Scott, president of Kale Laboratories, which distributes cosmetics and lotions from Hamilton Industrial Park in Ignacio.

On the strength of this conviction, Scott is now producing two new lotions which he calls "Making Love For Men" and "Making Love Body Powder" to add to the "Making Love Body Lotion" which he introduced two years ago.

"Making Love For Men, in addition to feeling great on the face and making the skin feel alive, has a sensuous fragrance and a subtle hint of taste," said Scott. He predicts that men will soon be using special lotions to keep the skin from aging and possibly even venturing into decorative cosmetics.

Kale Labs Inc., located at 38-A Hamilton Drive, is starting to export its products to Nigeria, Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Canada, Japan, Okinawa and Guam. Scott has formed a new corporation called Six-Twenty Industries to handle the export business.

Market On Minus Side Once Again

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stock prices turned down again in moderate trading today on the New York Stock Exchange after a two-session advance.

General Motors, trading "exdividend" the fourth quarter payment of $2.35 a share, opened late because of an imbalance of orders between those selling the stock after having assured themselves of the dividend and those buying who will not receive it.

The first trade was at 58 6-2 and then it moved to 59 6-8, off 1 ⅛ from yesterday's close of 62 ⅝, discounting the 2 ⅝ point dividend.

The market decline today was a turnaround from its gains of the previous two upward sessions, which had broken a string of seven consecutive setbacks that tumbled the Dow average by almost 73 points.

Brokers said the market is reflecting anticipated economic disruptions and slowdowns as a result of the energy shortage and a still unclear situation in the middle east.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber was the most actively traded issue, off ⅞ at 69 6-8 on turnover of 127,000 shares.

Prices also were lower on the American Stock Exchange in moderate trading. Among the 744 issues traded, 301 declined and 200 advanced.

Sub Being Overhauled In Marin

Heavy industrial construction began this week in the Marinship area of northern Sausalito for the first time since 1971, according to a spokesman for the A. G. Schoonmaker Co.

The firm has employed 35 persons to rehabilitate and modify four diesel engines for the navy's non-nuclear submarine Salmon.

Work is under way in a building at the south end of Marinship that was constructed during World War II for engine repair.

When the engines are ready, the Salmon will sail from San Diego to Mare Island Naval Shipyard, where the 2,400-horsepower power plants will be installed to replace present ones, said Henry Alexander, company publicist.

A temporary side-effect of the work will be noise from roaring engines when they are tested, Alexander said.

Bond Firm Observing Anniversary

John Nuveen & Co. of Chicago, which figured in Marin's water development 20 years before the Golden Gate Bridge was built, is celebrating its 75th anniversary this month.

In 1916, Nuveen underwrote a $3 million issue of Marin Municipal Water District bonds for purchase of two municipally owned gravity water systems. The 1916 assessed valuation of the district was $15,701,000, and the population of Marin was 25,000.

Nuveen Co., established in November of 1898, dealt solely in municipal bonds until 1967, when it expanded into underwriting corporate and government bonds. The company's 1973 sales is estimated at $15 billion, compared with $155,000 in its first year of business.

Two Savings And Loan Associations Seeking Permits For Marin Branches

Two more savings and loan associations have applied for permission to open branches in Marin.

One is Eureka Federal Savings, with a branch planned in Ignacio, and the other is San Francisco Federal Savings with its first Marin County office planned in the Bon Aire Shopping Center in Greenbrae.

EUREKA FEDERAL — Vice President Robert Kidwell in the San Francisco office said the new Marin branch will open in the Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center at 472 Ignacio Boulevard within 30 days after approval is received from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. He anticipates an opening by the end of this year.

Eureka Federal got office space between Glen Five and Ten and One Hour Martinizing cleaners. This would be the second Eureka Federal office in Marin County; the first opened at Northgate Mall in Terra Linda in September of last year.

SAN FRANCISCO FEDERAL — The first Marin County branch is planned in the Bon Aire Shopping Center, hopefully by early next year, said Ernie Piccone of the San Francisco headquarters, who is in charge of branch expansion. Piccone stressed that the opening of the Marin office depends on approval by the Federal Home Loan Bank.

San Francisco Federal now has 15 offices operating in the Bay Area, with three more approved for opening.

MARTIN McCLELLAN of Atlanta, Ga., has joined the staff of Digital Telephone Systems Inc., headquartered at 85 Mitchell Boulevard, San Rafael.

After intensive training at the corporate office in San Rafael, McClellan will assume responsibility for customer service in all states east of the Mississippi River, with his office in Atlanta, Ga. He will conduct training schools for maintenance and plant personnel in operating telephone companies using DTS equipment as well as installation, supervision and service.

Curran

PAUL K. CURRAN, 42-year-old Sausalito architect, has been appointed executive architect at Burke Kober Nicolais Archuleta, a nationwide planning, design and architectural firm. Curran was formerly with William L. Pereira Associates as a project director in that firm's San Francisco office, and was an instructor at Heald Engineering College in San Francisco since 1968.

Burke Kober Nicolais Archuleta designs enclosed shopping malls, suburban redevelopment projects and multi-use complexes. The firm will change its name to Charles Kober Associates on Nov. 15.

PEACOCK GAP Country Club will host several hundred invited guests at a re-opening reception this Sunday evening at 333 Biscayne Drive, Peacock Gap.

Hitoshi Matsuura, President of Nitto America Company Limited, will welcome the guests to the newly-refurbished country club in East San Rafael. The Japanese firm, which bought the 150-acre golf and country club last August from Capital Investment Co., is renovating the clubhouse and grounds and plans to upgrade personal services and conveniences for club members.

DANCE SUPPLIES for tap, acrobatic and ballet dancers arrived this week at D-Lynne's Capezio Dancewear, which opened last week at the Redwood Bank mall in San Rafael, 1435 Fourth Street.

Owner Jean Hedquist announced she now has a full line of Capezio costumes, shoes and equipment and Danskin tights and leotards of all sizes, colors and styles. The store carries jazz pants and tops, full fashion tights, tights without feet, stirrup tights, and other supplies.

FREDERICK J. NEWIRTH, M.D., of Novato, medical director of Fireman's Fund American Life Insurance Co., has been certified a diplomate of the Board of Life Insurance Medicine.

The board was established by the Association of Life Insurance Medical Directors of America to insure proficiency of company medical directors.

FROM THE BRITISH

Heating Lesson For Americans

By PAUL R. ALLERUP

NEW YORK (UPI) —Mr. and Mrs. America, shake hands with your British cousins. They've been living in under-heated homes, working in under-heated offices and factories and eating in under-heated restaurants all their lives.

And they've survived.

You'll survive, too, with thermostats turned down to 68 degrees, or even a couple of degrees lower.

I speak from experience. I was stationed in London for seven years—and six winters—in 1959-1966. We lived in a marvelous old, roomy, high-ceilinged Victorian apartment house built in the 1870s and modernized only superficially in the intervening years.

It was a lovely place to live six or seven months of the year; a challenging one (for the thin-blooded) the rest of the time. By American standards, heated it was not.

Somewhere along the years the landlord had installed what was euphemistically called "part central heating." This meant that in our eight rooms we had exactly two radiators, five feet wide and four feet high. One was stationed in the foyer, the other in the living room. All rooms except the two bathrooms and the kitchen boasted small coal-burning fireplaces.

Our first winter, 1959-60, being innocents from central-heated America, my wife and I were cold every moment though we rarely had fewer than four fireplaces blazing.

Early that season, having discovered that the radiators never attained more than a very lukewarm heat, and that most of the apartment stayed in the 55-60 degree range, we complained to the superintendent, many times. On each occasion this otherwise most pleasant and efficient man would come up, run his hands over the radiators, and announce to my wife, "but, Madam, they are giving lots of heat." And wandering through the rooms he would insist, "really, it's quite comfortable."

The only answer was simply to dress more warmly—at home, at work, when going to the theater or going out visiting. Because the chilly temperatures that prevailed in our apartment prevailed everywhere else. We virtually discarded our "American" wardrobes and switched to heavier things—including for me sweaters and vests and for my wife flannel or wool underthings and knitted three-quarter socks over her nylons.

President Nixon may be right when he says it's healthier living in 68-degree temperature than 74-76. What I do know is my wife and I came to prefer less heated surroundings and in our house back here at home to this day we keep the thermostat at the 68-70 level—without having to bundle up, either.

Try it. You may like it.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

When the Reginal Eastmans of Greenbush, Me., go out to chop wood everyone gets into the act. As a result the family has already cut up enough kindling for the two fireplaces on their 26-acre spread and are now cutting wood for sale. A cord of wood sells for $60 in Bangor, Me., and about $90 in Boston. (UPI Telephoto)

Automakers Answer Questions About Legitimacy Of Ad Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Someone really did get 88,000 miles out of a 1966 Volkswagen at a cost of about 2 cents a mile, according to the company. His name was Paul Revere.

Unlike his namesake, this Revere racked up his mileage commuting to work from his home in Toms River, N.J. Volkswagen gave the government that account yesterday in submitting proof to back up a television commercial based on Revere's experiences.

The Volkswagen commercial was one of a long list of advertisements for which the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) demanded proof from 12 automobile companies, foreign and domestic. The replies were made public yesterday and the FTC is now reviewing them in a search for cases of false advertising.

Volkswagen said it learned of Revere through an "unsolicited letter." It submitted a copy of the letter along with Revere's copious records showing he spent about two cents a mile on gas and maintenance, to keep his beetle on the road. The cost did not include insurance, registration or other similar fees, the company added.

Ford Motor Co., which had been asked to show the revelance of a commercial in which a '73 Torino was driven over two-by-fours with a tightrope walker suspended above the car, said "the movement experienced by the tight rope walker on top of the wire affixed to the car is very similar to the ride motions a passenger would experience."

It said the car was running about 22 miles an hour.

Chevrolet replied, when asked why it was billing the '73 Monte Carlo 8 as "the best handling American car you've ever driven," that the statement was "merely an invitation from Chevrolet to the public to test drive the 1973 Monte Carlo 8..."

Several firms admitted their fuel economy figures were peak possibilities under ideal driving conditions. Renault said its claim of up to 30 miles per gallon on three of its models "cannot reasonably be interpreted as being a guarantee of performance on all their models or on any one of them under all possible conditions."

Press Conference Said A Tool For Presidents

NEW YORK (UPI) —Televised presidential press conferences have become little more than a tool of skillful, media-wise presidents, two prominent journalists said in a debate on news coverage of President Nixon last night.

At the same time, two other publishers complained the press has been "hysterical" and "unfair" in its coverage of the President.

Benjamin Bradlee, executive editor of the Washington Post, said "I think televised press conferences may be over the hill. Any president with any skill plays the press like a harp. Kennedy did it...so does Nixon."

Tom Wicker, associate editor of The New York Times, made the same point when he criticized pre-Watergate press coverage of the White House as much too soft.

"If there's any shock at the questions asked at the last press conference, it's because most Americans have never seen reporters ask tough questions before," said Wicker. "By and large...the press does not ask follow up questions, does not put the president on the spot.

Their comments came at a panel discussion on the question "Has the press been fair to Richard Nixon," sponsored by the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism.

The other two panelists—Francis Dale, former publisher of the Cincinnati Enquirer and founder of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and William Rusher, publisher of the National Review—answered that question with an emphatic no.

"We are in such a hysterical mood now, whipped up by the press," said Dale.

"Of course the press is unfair," said Rusher, referring again to the President's last press conference. "It was one of the great moments in American theater. Hatred was oozing from 100 different faces. The voices were taut with anger."

'Open Space' No Longer 'Open Sesame'

Are the people becoming surfeited with spending for open space?

Not in Marin County, it would appear. Open space bond issues in Kentfield and Santa Venetia easily won the necessary two-thirds approval Tuesday. But in neighboring Sonoma County and elsewhere around the Bay Area, the story was different.

A $1 MILLION open space bond issue in Rohnert Park mustered a majority but fell about 10 per cent short of the necessary two-thirds approval. And a Sonoma County proposal for a special 10-cent tax to finance open space purchase went down by nearly 2-to-1.

Down on the Peninsula, San Carlos voters rejected three city bond issues for parks and open space and a proposal for a 13-cent tax increase for park and open space maintenance.

In another Peninsula community, Pacific, a $1.8 million bond issue to buy coastal ridge acreage for open space was walloped nearly 6-to-1.

And further down, in Menlo Park, a $1.8 million bond issue for open space and recreation failed like that in Rohnert Park, getting a majority but not close to the necessary two-thirds.

Across the Bay in Contra Costa County, a $6 million open space bond issue in Lafayette suffered a similar fate, mustering an insufficient majority for passage.

A YEAR AGO, the words "open space" were equivalent to "open sesame," magically unlocking taxpayers' wallets. Apparently, the green of hillsides and meadows now is being more cautiously evaluated against the green of depressed dollars.

We don't think that this means the people no longer are interested in preserving open areas. But they are beginning to ask, "How much?"

We see this as a positive rather than a negative approach.

In Marin County, for example, most open space funds already authorized by earlier elections have yet to be spent. It makes sense to push for their use for the most needed open areas before authorizing additional bonds to buy such areas.

THERE ARE LIMITS to the amount of open area that can safely be removed from the tax rolls. Even where acreage is of low assessed value, removing taxation from too much of it can mean a real hardship to those who still must pay taxes on their land. Residents of Shoreline Unified School District are well aware of this.

Proper land use can do much to preserve smaller open areas. Intelligent zoning regulations can do much to promote proper land use. This is quite apart from the current trend toward zoning for sociological ends, in which professional planners turn dictators in telling us what kind of neighborhoods we should have.

Where public purchase is the only way to prevent development that would damage the environment, we expect the people will continue to be willing to tax themselves. But there are limits. The results of elections around the Bay Tuesday indicate the limits are being reached.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Coastal Control Forces Massive Tax Shift

By RUS WALTON

The Planning and Conservation League will hold its annual meeting at UC Irvine next Monday. Theme of that bug-and-bunny get together: "Today, the Coast. Tomorrow, the State?"

All of which means the discussion will center on the environmental progress made so far under the new Coastal Conservation Commission (Proposition 20) and the possible future application of similar land use planning statewide.

As far as I'm, concerned, "land use planning" is a 50 cent euphemism for "state control". But, then I happen to be touchy when it comes to things such as individual liberty and the rights of property owners.

Be that as it may, I trust the PCL and its speakers and members will devote at least some time and some attention to the total impact of Proposition 20 — not just the environmental but also the economic and political consequences.

FOR EXAMPLE: what of the massive property tax shifts that are in the offing as a result of coastal zoning and land use planning?

It must be obvious that when the regional commissions determine land owners cannot build or develop their land, the market value of that property will take a nose dive. And, justice (should that be a concern of PCL and the posey pluckers) — justice would seem to dictate that when the market value plummets, the assessed value must also drop. Thus, also, the tax revenue.

Figure it out. When a good-sized chunk of real estate is placed in limbo, or "esthetically" confiscated by a regional commission, the value and the taxes on that property take a nosedive. Someone else in the county must then pick up that loss in tax revenues.

Guess who that "someone else" will be? The rest of the little old property owners, that's who.

The no-growth — even the "in limbo" — dictums being forced on coastal counties by the autocrats of the conservation commissions is bound to have an adverse impact on property taxes in those counties.

TAKE WHAT HAS happened in the city of Pleasanton, in Alameda County. That's not a coastal county, to be sure, but Pleasanton is now going through a "no growth" sickness foisted on it by overzealous "green panthers".

The result of that growth freeze has been a giant increase in the homeowner's property tax burden.

First, the moratorium on undeveloped parcels has meant a drop in the real market value of those properties and a loss in tax revenues. Local agencies deprived of those expected revenues have made up for the loss by raising property taxes on other home-owners. Improvement district that based rates on anticipated revenues from growth must now cover that loss through higher user fees.

Second, the supply and demand crunch for existing properties has caused them to soar in value. Those values — mostly "ersatz" — have risen almost twice as fast as in the rest of Alameda County. The property owner who has no intention of selling is hit with increased assessed valuation and higher taxes.

The growth freeze is costing the folks in Pleasanton about $600,000 a year in excessive property taxes. Tax bills increased 22 per cent, 1973 over 1972.

IT IS NOT unreasonable to foresee something along those lines for taxpayers in many of the coastal counties as the regional commissions do their planning and controlling.

I am not at all sure those folks will appreciate those extra costs just so tourists can enjoy a view of the sand and surf. Their misery may have company. Remember the theme of the forthcoming PCL meeting: "Today, the Coast. Tomorrow, the State?".

Coman Letter Should Have Been On Page 1

Instead of printing the same old political drivel I think you overlooked Mr. Robert Coman's missive (Oct. 30) as just another letter to the editor. From my standpoint it should have been printed in large type on the front page of the I-J. You are always looking for important news. Make the most of it!

Organizations On Way To Building Boys' Club

On behalf of the Central Marin Boys' Club and the San Rafael Jaycees, I would like to express our thanks for the much-needed help you gave us in publicizing and supporting the first annual Redwood Empire Boxing Show. We also wish to thank all of the many generous merchants who sponsored ads and donated the trophies for our event.

We got off to a good start with our first annual event to raise money to build a Boys' Club in the San Rafael area with several satellite buildings in other areas in Marin. Through this and other events we hope to raise $200,000 in Phase I of our campaign to raise a total of $500,000.

The exposure we received in the Independent-Journal will do much to help us attain our goal. . .

Advice To Supervisors: Do Your Job For County

According to press reports, the Marin County Board of Supervisors recently entertained a 90-minute presidential impeachment forum.

Supervisors Giacomini and Wornum urged impeachment. Messrs. Arrigoni and Roumiguiere were against it. And Chairman Baptiste indicated he would vote in favor of impeachment in two weeks (and, therefore, decide the issue) if he hears from enough Marin voters.

Well, here's one voter's view:

I am a little weary of local politicians who can't keep their sidewalks clean, but can agonize over resolutions dealing with difficult international questions.

Similarly, I find it, at best, disconcerting to learn that certain members of our board are diverting their often inadequate efforts to join with 535 congressmen, including Senator Ervin, the nation's press corps and a cast of thousands, to consider the matter of presidential impeachment which the Constitution has not entrusted to our local body.

Chairman Baptiste has asked for advice. Well, here's one piece: The board — and especially those palpitating for higher political office — should tend to their knitting here at home because, Lord knows, Marin could stand some dynamic leadership seeking resolution of the more mundane problems of concern to the tax-burdened people of this county.

Reason For Decrease In Prisoners Disputed

There is an important inaccuracy in Mary Leydecker's otherwise first-rate story on the future of San Quentin. She placed primary responsibility for the 1971-72 drop in prison population on the state probation subsidy program. While this program has certainly kept a number of marginal offenders out of prison, it has not had a measurable impact on prison population. Director of Corrections Raymond Procunier, in testimony before a subcommittee of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, noted that the commitment rate from the courts to his department had not changed significantly since he became director in the late '60s. However, as Mr. Procunier also noted, the Adult Authority has, through its parole and parole-revocation policies, a tremendous impact, one which is continually felt in the rising and/or falling population figures for the department. If each prisoner were to have his stay behind bars extended for an extra two months, the increase per year in state prison population would be 1,600 persons.

When the state prison population dropped from 28,000 to 18,000, it was not unusual for a majority of those who went before the "board," as prisoners call the Adult Authority panels, to receive parole dates. However, since the summer of 1972, the policy of the Adult Authority has been to parole fewer and fewer men. At some institutions the percentage of men getting dates has fallen to about 5 per cent.

The impact of such a policy change on an institution like San Quentin is that overcrowding leads to an increase in tension, and violence directed both at staff and prisoners is more apt to occur. This, in turn, superficially supports the department's argument that it needs one or more new maximum security institutions. What is really needed is a change in policy, and perhaps personnel, on the part of the Adult Authority.

Non-Voters Helped Beat Bonds; County Costs Still Escalating

With the frenetic days we have been having, it's pretty hard to decide what to write for the column this week. The defeat of the water bonds presents an interesting numbers picture.

Using the unofficial figures in the Wednesday issue of the I-J we find that of the 91,254 registered voters in the district, 43,418 didn't vote, which means that the 30,904 who voted "no" were just slightly under 34 per cent — another case of a minority impressing its negative will on the whole. There is no one to blame but those who didn't take the time to determine what the real situation was. Had they done so, the phony picture being presented would have revealed itself.

THE COST OF PAVING and landscaping the Veterans Memorial Building has jumped from the estimate of $300,000 to $330,000. Now, with the damage done by the storm, it will have to be held over to spring, with another hike in cost.

The same thing will happen with the water bonds, because as sure as the almightly made little green apples that Russian River water will be needed.

The Wednesday editorial's subject was something I have felt the urge to comment on for a long time, but didn't have the nerve. Good for the editor!

There have been some who, coming in from the outside, didn't bump a next in line as there wasn't anyone with the training available, and the "carpet bagger" became a real useful adjunct to the county personnel.

I have always believed that if there was a runner-up, that one should be given the chance. However, we got stung good and plenty when I recommended that the assistant of Don Jensen, the first administrator, be given the chance. That assistant was Alan Bruce. You know the rest. Incidentally, he came from the East Bay by way of the Philippines.

It was interesting to read in the editorial that Barrows came from San Diego, as I had never known. When it was apparent that Bruce was on the way out, "for political reasons" as Wornum said, Barrows was reported to have gone down for an interview following his application for administrator there. He didn't make the grade, so his pals on our board of supervisors pushed the "pushy" little guy into the fat job he has now.

Decision On Nixon Impeachment Should Be Speeded, Not Delayed

WASHINGTON — Some of President Nixon's most loyal supporters cling to the hope that he can "tough it out" and continue to govern with reasonable effectiveness by sheer grit.

This, I think, is a false hope, another miscalculation.

Unless events change the course they now are following, the nation is going to be plunged into a perilous period of a despairing and disabled president — unable to govern adequately but unwilling to lay down the office.

The worst is that this may well come about not by design but by confusion.

THE NECESSITY is to bring the issues of Watergate to a head and to render a clear-cut decision concerning the presidency with all deliberate speed.

The only body in the United States able and authorized to make that decision is the Congress and the only means of making it is the process of impeachment.

It is my conviction that the White House will be wise to do everything possible to speed the process of impeachment and encourage Republican members of Congress to welcome it, not resist it.

THE CENTRAL WATERGATE issue is no longer whether John Mitchell authorized the break-in or how the White House attempted to cover up or how many hundreds of thousands of dollars of tainted money was illegally collected.

There is only one issue now: Can Richard Nixon govern the nation better than Gerald Ford — or someone else he might nominate?

There is mounting evidence that a wait-and-see solution or a wait-and-it-will-go-away attitude is dangerous and unrealistic.

The new factor in the Watergate equation is this: If Nixon's supporters do not do their part to encourage and expedite the process of impeachment — in order to determine deliberately what should be done — then Nixon's critics have it in their power to destroy the capacity of the president to function effectively.

The evident truth is that the president's natural constituency is seriously crumbling. The business community is considerably alienated. Political conservatives are increasingly hostile, and many Republican politicians and party leaders are running for cover.

A LEADING EDITORIAL in the Wall Street Journal concludes that "President Nixon's critics now hold him at their mercy; there is very little he can do to avoid the total destruction of his administration if they fully exploit the advantages he has handed to them."

Newsweek columnist Stewart Alsop, often friendly to Nixon, says that after the Justice Department firing and resignations, the president momentarily appeared to be master in his house, but that "the trouble is that the house is rapidly collapsing."

With the president's popularity with the American people plummeting from a one-time high of 68 per cent to a record low of 27 per cent, Sen. Barry Goldwater frankly fears that "President Nixon's credibility has reached an all-time low from which he may not be able to recover."

I AM NOT PRESSING for President Nixon's impeachment. I am pressing for an early, decisive, responsible resolution of the paramount Watergate question: Do the American people want Richard Nixon to continue as president or do they want him replaced through the only available alternative — the 25th Amendment?

The Constitution authorizes the Congress — and no one else — to make that decision. It ought to be a deliberate decision — and the sooner the better.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

No Real Similarity Between Watergate And Truman Scandals

WASHINGTON — Now hold on just a bloody minute!

As if the acts and attitudes of the current administration were not outrageous enough, Mr. Nixon's dwindling defenders now are making things worse by comparing the current scandals with those of Harry Truman's time. For awhile, Mr. Turman's popularity index in the polls was a fraction lower than Mr. Nixon's is now, they say, and he did not resign and was not impeached. Then, in effect, they say Q.E.D., as if that proves their thesis that Mr. Nixon should continue in office without further annoyance from the courts, the Congress, the public or the press.

Mr. Nixon's plight has become so desperate now that it is understandable that his faithful will clutch at any straw blowing past. But to make an analogy even with the pathetically misrun Grant and Harding administrations is inaccurate. And in terms of whether or not Mr. Nixon should remain in office, the Truman comparison does not hold a thimbleful of water.

IT IS TRUE that there were scandals in Mr. Truman's administration. They were bigger, in fact, than most of us now remember.

The phrase "mess in Washington" was almost as overused then as "Watergate" is now. But at least it was more accurate because flexible enough to cover any number of transgressions. The major individual messes in Mr. Truman's Washington numbered three.

There were the "five percenters" who took a piece of the action for peddling their influence on government contracts, legislative favors or whatever else a client needed. The most damaging part was that the influence they peddled turned out repeatedly to be with Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the president's military aide and poker partner. Despite the evidence, Mr. Truman refused to turn his back on Vaughan.

Then there were the shenanigans in the Reconstruction Finance Corp., the same sort of payoff operation but on a higher financial plane. The key men involved included Donald Dawson, the president's personnel assistant, who had come to the White House from a similar job at the RFC; E. Merle Young, whose wife was a White House secretary, and William Boyle, briefly chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

And then there were the Bureau of Internal Revenue scandals, in which bribery was laid to a whole series of tax officials, including T. Lamar Caudle, assistant attorney general in charge of the tax division. A raft of firings an at least nine convictions followed.

ALL THESE SCANDALS were investigated at length by Congress, with vast attendant publicity. In common with today's situation, the president also made headlines by firing his attorney general in a dispute over the powers of a special corruption investigator. The difference was that Mr. Truman fired his attorney general, J. Howard McGrath, because McGrath had discharged the special investigator for going too far — exactly the opposite of what happened in the fall of 1973.

The crucial difference between then and now, of course, was that in none of the earlier scandals was there any serious suggestion that Mr. Truman himself profited, was involved or guilty of anything worse than stubborn loyalty to some of the sticky-fingered men around him.

Another comparison drawn by Mr. Nixon's defenders today is between their hero's firing of Archibald Cox and Mr. Truman's sacking of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The MacArthur incident provoked a storm of public reaction even exceeding that brought on by the Cox ouster. But there was no parallel at all in the circumstances — between a uniformed general's disobedience of orders and a special prosecutor's insisting on evidence that might incriminate the man who fired him.

The MacArthur affair excited one demand for Mr. Truman's impeachment — but it came from the irresponsible Sen. William Jenner, and nobody paid it heed. The subject arose again when Mr. Truman ordered government seizure of the steel plants in the face of a strike in the midst of the Korean war. But it also was in the midst of a presidential year, thus taken for the political propaganda it was.

Nobody, in short, ever thought Harry Truman was guilty of the high crimes and misdemeanors that might justify an impreachment. Nevertheless, he himself had the good judgment not to run again, when under the law he could have. And when he left town, he went back to the same frame house in Independence, Mo., he had lived in since his honeymoon 34 years before. That little fact in itself says it all.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Nov. 9, 1963

San Rafael Sanitation District directors adopted a four-year, $442,500 capital improvement plan which they said would call for no increase in the district's tax rate.

A mine explosion in Kyushu took 171 lives, and in a second disaster in Japan, two passenger trains collided near Yokohama, killing 114.

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 9, 1953

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that professional baseball was outside the anti-trust laws.

Per capita cost of city government was lower in fiscal 1951-52 than it had been two years earlier in all of Marin's cities except San Anselmo, the Bay Area Council reported.

Tiburon Development Plans All Have That Far-Away Look

Tiburon residents at a recent presentation on their proposed city downtown plan by the developer, Sequoia Pacific Realco, had problems visualizing the final product.

The only drawings provided by the Santa Ana-based developer through its architect, Philip K. Buskirk of Tiburon, were views of the proposed buildings from miles away.

One was a kind of blueprint — as the development on 36 acres of land owned by Southern Pacific Co. might look as seen from a helicopter.

Another was a drawing of the buildings as they might look if someone were standing on the Tiburon ridgeline looking down at the downtown. Another is a picture drawn from a dock out the Elephant Rock area of Raccoon Straits looking at the downtown from about a mile away.

There was also a drawing of a proposed new ferry landing which apparently would be larger than the present one and would be dotted with benches and planter boxes. Again the actual development was shown far off in the distance. The buildings would fit nicely on a nailhead.

WHY COULDN'T the developer let residents look at drawings representing the buildings in a close-up view?

It's true that Sequoia Pacific has not yet filed a formal application for city approval of its plans, but still it seems that the firm could have offered a better idea of what the buildings might look like.

For example, the architect has described the waterfront development area as a mini-Ghirardelli Square. Couldn't he give a visual representation of this concept?

One can't help wondering if the developer was afraid of residents' reactions if they had a view of the proposal drawn from a block away.

NOW THAT THE TOLL on the Richmond-San Rafael bridge is going to be changed to $1, levied only one way as you head toward Marin County, it's possible to visit friends in the East Bay for 50 cents less than before.

We're planning on crossing the Richmond Bridge on our way to the East Bay, going the free direction, then return via the Bay Bridge paying 50 cents to enter San Francisco. Then free northbound across the Golden Gate Bridge.

Before, it always cost $1 no matter how you worked it.

The method works fine as long as the destination is halfway between Richmond and Oakland and home base is about halfway between the Richmond and Golden Gate Bridges.

THE POSTERS USED by the Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival to publicize the fair at the end of September have turned out to be coveted works of art in themselves.

Employees in the I-J's Mill Valley bureau talked festival committee members into giving them extra copies to take home to decorate their walls.

Two posters which were hung at the bureau office apparently were stolen by passersby when nobody was looking.

Airlines Face Baggage Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Airlines receive 225,000 baggage complaints per year, and now a government watchdog agency has filed its own complaint on how many of them are handled. It called for an investigation.

In a 32-page staff study obtained by UPI, the Civil Aeronautics Board's Office of Consumer Affairs, said it found these abuses:

Unnecessarily demanding receipts for items in lost baggage. One airline insisted a passenger produce a receipt for "one pair of sneakers, one T-shirt and a white sailor's cap" before it would pay a claim.

Reimbursing passengers for only 50 per cent of replacement clothing they must buy while the airline searches for their luggage. The airlines say these items later have "residual" value to the passengers. The report said the airlines "fail to perceive that the passenger would have no need for the 50 per cent residual use of clothing since he would not have purchased them in the first place if his bags had been delivered."

Failing to compensate passengers for inconvenience. One man asked an airline which had lost his golf clubs to repay him for a ruined vacation. The airline replied that "it went to great effort" to eventually find and return the clubs and he should be "grateful," the report said.

Lost or damaged baggage is the largest category complaints received by airlines. But the Air Transport Association, a trade organization, says the number is small when compared to the 280 million pieces of luggage handled by airlines last year.

The report said most passenger baggage claims "are unnecessary by-products of airline negligence or inefficiency."

Jack Yohe, director of the Consumer Affairs Office, said airlines often are victims of false baggage claims. He told the board his report was not a contrived "horror story" but a careful analysis of complaints received from airline passengers.

Yohe said the largest number of lost goods complaints involve duty free liquor, which airlines define as "fragile" luggage. Government rules exempt them from liability for fragile goods.

But the airlines require that the liquor be carried in the baggage compartment, Yohe said. He said "much of the liquor simply disappears when it is checked as baggage," and the passenger gets no compensation.

Candidate In Corte Madera To Quit Cases

A candidate for Corte Madera Town Council, who represents citizens in two lawsuits against the town, today said he will withdraw as attorney in the suits to prevent a conflict of interest.

Joel A. Shawn filed the suits challenging the environmental impact report for the proposed Hahn regional shopping center and the use of redevelopment powers by the town in the center's proposed site.

Shawn said he has signed the substitution of attorney papers and given them to A. Michael Casey, San Rafael attorney who will take his place. The papers were to be filed in Marin Superior Court today.

Boyle Not Expected To Fight His Extradition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recovered from an overdose of barbiturates, former United Mine Workers president W.A. (Tony) Boyle reportedly has elected not to fight extradition to Pittsburgh on a murder-conspiracy charge.

Boyle, 71, who was hospitalized after taking the overdose Sept. 24, the eve of a court extradition hearing, was scheduled to leave George Washington University Hospital to appear in U.S. District Court for that hearing today.

The government wants to remove him to Pittsburgh to face charges he conspired to murder his union rival, Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski.

Boyle's attorney, Charles Moses, has told U.S. Magistrate Arthur Burnett that Boyle plans to waive any attempt to block the transfer.

The fiery former union official, who was ousted from office in a special court-ordered election last year, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Pittsburgh on charges he violated Yablonski's civil rights by conspiring to murder him.

Yablonski, his wife and daughter, were found slain in their Clarksville, Pa., home less than a month after the December, 1969, union election in which Boyle won re-election over Yablonski.

A federal judge subsequently voided that election.

Three murder charges in Pennsylvania also await Boyle when he arrives there.

In addition, Boyle is under a five-year prison sentence for illegally funneling union money to political candidates in 1968. He is appealing that in the Supreme Court.

After taking the overdose at his northwest Washington home, Boyle was rushed to the hospital suffering from what was thought to be a stroke. Doctors later learned it was a drug overdose and gave him little change for recovery.

Bracelets Upset Jewish Appeal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Officials of the United Jewish Appeal said yesterday they are "unhappy" about an unauthorized mail order sales campaign offering an "Israeli Freedom Bracelet."

The bracelet —which costs $5.95 plus 50 cents for postage and handling —was offered in a newspaper advertisement that stated: "This offer is not endorsed by the State of Israel, however 50 cents from each bracelet sold is sent directly to the United Jewish Appeal, Israeli Emergency Fund."

Alvin Gilens, associate national campaign director of the UJA here, said, "We have not authorized it and we knew nothing about it until we saw the ad."

The Skylab 3 astronauts will score another first by becoming the first astronauts to observe a comet from space. They will be observing an unusually bright comet that is to loop around the sun in late December.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the name of the comet the Skylab astronauts will observe?

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Boy Executed

BELFAST (UPI) — A Roman Catholic teen-ager died early today hours after an Irish Republican Army (IRA) punishment squad draped a black hood over his head and fired two bullets into his back.

Police said the 15-year-old boy, found with a sign around his neck calling him an informer, died before dawn in a Belfast hospital.

He was the 901st victim of sectarian violence in Northern Ireland among Protestants, minority Catholics and British troops since 1969.

Viet Cong Protest

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong accused the South Vietnamese government today of sending its warplanes to bombard Thien Ngon, the third alleged air strike against a Communist stronghold in less than a week.

A South Vietnamese military command spokesman said he knew nothing of the reported raid.

The Viet Cong spokesman said in a telephone statement South Vietnamese warplanes blasted the airfield at Thien Ngon yesterday and nearby residential areas "causing heavy losses in lives and property." It gave no further details.

Cambodia Battle

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government troops trying to relieve a garrison 14 miles northwest of Phnom Penh launched a surprise predawn attack today on rebel positions, but the antigovernment forces countered with an assault on Cambodian lines, field reports said.

Military officers said one government soldier was killed and 13 were wounded at Tra Peang Thnot. Thirteen other government troops were overcome by tear gas used by the rebels in their counter assault, field reporters said.

Oil Search On

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines says his country has stepped up petroleum exploration, and prospectors are confident of striking oil.

With the world energy crisis hitting both rich and poor nations and attention focusing on new oil sources, the 56-year-old Marcos held out the hope of his country's being a possible oil producer in the future.

Marcos said $60 million worth of oil exploration is in progress in the Philippines.

Ex-Pows On Mend

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. prisoners of the Vietnam War have been home nearly eight months, and the Pentagon says most of them are now in good shape, rehabilitated both physically and psychologically better than doctors expected.

Nearly nine out of 10 of the former POWs are back at work. The remaining 13 per cent are still under medical care.

The Pentagon said 6 to 7 per cent of the POWs are not expected to ever be fit for military duty again, mostly for physical reasons.

New Skylab Delay

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A launchpad engineer making a more careful inspection than he was required to discovered a second set of cracks in the Skylab 3 booster rocket yesterday, throwing liftoff for the last space station crew into limbo.

Skylab officials rescheduled launch of the Saturn 1B booster rocket for Friday, but they were skeptical that rookie astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue would take off even then. The next launch opportunity after Friday is next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The chances of a Friday launch are "iffy at best," program manager William C. Schneider said. "We're really not sure we can go on Friday."

Ransom Paid

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — American oil executive David B. Wilkie, Jr., kidnapped and held for $1 million by Argentine abductors, was released by his captors and has left for home, a spokesman for his company said today.

Spokesmen for the Amoco Oil Co. of Argentina refused to say how much the firm paid to win the freedom of Wilkie, who was released Sunday.

In Chicago, a spokesman for the parent company, Standard Oil Co. Indiana confirmed the release and said he "understood" a ransom was paid.

Ford Urges Nixon's Supporters To Write

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford today urged citizens who support President Nixon to write congressmen aboat their sentiments.

The House Republican leader told reporters in New York yesterday that "I'm convinced there is no possibility of the President's resigning" and "I don't think the President is going to be swayed by the mob or editorials."

Ford, in remarks prepared for the National Association of Realtors Convention, said today that letters and telegrams coming to Congress demanding impeachment of Nixon are the result of "pressure groups that have always been opposed to the Nixon administration..."

"Meanwhile, the famous 'silent majority' has been living up to its name.

"I hope that each of you, will take the time to express your personal views to your senators and congressmen," he said. "If you really believe that impeachment or resignation is the only answer, by all means say so. But if you are part of that much larger group that believes in fair play and in the important things that Richard Nixon has done and can do for America, don't wait for someone else to do it for you."

Ford said that Nixon's foreign policy record and the "new prosperity" he has brought at home refute claims that his presidency is crippled.

Ford cited a decline in the unemployment rate to 4.5 per cent, a drop in wholesale prices and U.S. diplomacy in the Middle East.

GERALD R. FORD
'No resignation'

"No other American president, no other world leader for that matter, was ever able to achieve this. Richard Nixon, the man that some people have referred to as a crippled president, has achieved it," said Ford.

Nixon Tape Sought For Krogh Trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The men who broke into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist insist they did so as part of an investigation ordered by President Nixon. A lawyer defending them against burglary charges said yesterday he will press for a subpoena ordering Nixon to turn over tapes to bolster that argument.

The defendants are being denied access to "their very own files" by the President, said attorney Norbert Schlei.

"President Nixon has, for his own reasons, so far refused to cooperate ... in permitting access to potential exculpatory evidence," he said.

Schlei is attorney for Egil Krogh, one of four former White House officials awaiting trial on conspiracy and burglary charges for a break-in by White House "plumbers" at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Ellsberg was being investigated because he leaked the Pentagon Papers.

The other defendants are John Ehrlichman, formerly one of the two most powerful presidential aides until he resigned in the Watergate uproar, G. Gordon Liddy, a convicted Watergate conspirator, and David Young, formerly of the National Security Council.

Balky Union Unit Perils Ford Pact

DETROIT (UPI) — Skilled tradesmen members of the United Auto Workers, a minority group in the big union, have voted against a proposed national contract with the Ford Motor Co., and UAW officials were trying today to figure out what to do about it.

The future of the tentative contract covering 185,000 Ford Motor Co. employees, including 28,000 skilled workers, was in doubt. Never before has the UAW had a negotiated agreement with one of the major automobile manufacturing companies rejected by its membership.

The union announced yesterday that it had not yet completed counting votes cast at ratification meetings during the past week and that final results would be known tomorrow.

It was learned, however, that skilled tradesmen had overwhelmingly rejected the new agreement, a development that could force the UAW to seek reopening of negotiations with Ford. The union's national Ford Negotiating Committee met yesterday to discuss the situation.

Skilled tradesmen — millwrights, machine repairmen, pipefitters, tool and die makers and other craftsmen — consider themselves elite among hourly workers and vote separately on contracts. Their veto could put the entire agreement in jeopardy, although UAW President Leonard Woodcock had said a rejection would affect only those provisions of the contract that apply to them.

The skilled workers, who perform maintenance and repair work in the plants, objected to at least two sections of the new agreement.

One would allow Ford to use production workers or outside contractors to perform a craftsman's job if he refuses an overtime assignment. Another would exclude skilled tradesmen from early retirement provisions granted foundry workers.

Among the big locals to veto the proposed agreement were Local 600 at the Rouge manufacturing complex in Dearborn, Mich., with 9,000 skilled tradesmen; and Local 1250 at the Brook Park, Ohio, Ford foundry and assembly plants, the second largest Ford local.

Uncertainty over the Ford contract made UAW negotiating difficult at General Motors where 420,000 U.S. workers are set to strike at 10 a.m. next Monday if there is no agreement.

Although an economic offer has been on the table for a week, bargaining was limited to lower-level subcommittees while top UAW officials concentrated on winning acceptance of the Ford agreement.

Rejection of the agreement could lead to a strike if Ford negotiators refuse to reopen negotiations or otherwise resist new proposals. Woodcock says there will be no national strike unless authorized by the union's international executive board.

British Set Emergency Power Rules

LONDON(UPI) — The British government declared a state of emergency today, giving it the right to introduce extraordinary measures to maintain the nation's power supplies threatened by industrial disputes, a Home Office spokesman said.

The move came as a refusal by employees in Britain's coal mines and electricity generating plants to work overtime opened the country to the danger of power cuts. Heightening the crisis was the European oil shortage brought by production cutbacks by the oil-producing Arab nations.

A state of emergency gives the government the right to introduce a number of emergency measures, including the calling out of troops, but the Home Office spokesman declined to say what moves might be taken.

The state of emergency came as prices tumbled on the London Stock Exchange in response to the announcement earlier today that Britain last month suffered its worst trade deficit in history and that the Bank of England has raised its prime lending rate to a record 13 per cent.

A spokesman for the Central Electricity Generating Board said power blackouts could start hitting Britain tonight because of the refusal of the engineers at the nation's generating plants to work overtime.

DIETING REALLY PAYS OFF

Jim Fries of Hayward, who is down from 587 pounds to a slim 181, displays the size 64-inch belt he wore before he became a shadow of his former self. Fries started reducing about 30 months ago, subsisting on one 29-cent TV dinner a day. That got him down to 340 pounds in 10 months. A year ago he underwent an intestinal bypass operation and now is "tremendously happy" because he can bend down to tie his shoes. (UPI Telephoto)

Plans For Mountain Area Liked

A plan which maps out future land uses for Ring Mountain on the Tiburon Peninsula was warmly received by the Tiburon City Council last night.

Councilmen voted unanimously to accept the plan with "appreciation and commendation" for the Ring Mountain Advisory Committee which drew it up.

The county-organized committee including Tiburon, Corte Madera and Strawberry representatives will meet again tonight at Tiburon City Hall at 8 o'clock to prepare a final plan reflecting community reaction. The plan is to go to the county planning commission at the end of the month.

The latest version of the plan seen in Tiburon calls for 710 units on the 900-acre mountain, which lies largely in unincorporated land but runs into Tiburon and Corte Madera. Most of the developments would be in clusters near the edge of existing residences at the mountain's base.

Dennis Klein of Strawberry, who has served as planner for the committee, said that the group now is calling for about 200 units on the 450 acres owned by Thomas Deffebach Jr. of Strawberry; 181 units on the controversial Madera Del Presidio development area in Corte Madera, and no units on the 103-acre property in the LaCresta area for which proposals have been submitted by Theodore P. Hudec of San Francisco.

Deffebach or his representative have attended all the committee meetings.

County parks and recreation commissioner Polly Smith, a Tiburon resident, urged the committee to allow for some development on the Hudec property. "You've got to find something like a golf course or the county will never accept this plan," she said.

According to Klein, the Marin General Plan calls for about 1,000 units in the Ring Mountain planning area.

Gift-Making Class

A class in gift making for children will be offered by the Corte Madera Recreation Department on Dec. 1, 8, 15 and 22 from 10 a.m. to noon in the Corte Madera Youth Center, 500 Tamalpais Drive. There is no age limit for the class and registration is at town hall.

Tiburon Interviews An Urban Consultant

The Tiburon City Council last night interviewed urban renewal consultant John F. Gray of Los Angeles and indicated it is considering hiring him to provide advice on its proposed redevelopment project.

Acting as the city's redevelopment agency, the council asked Gray to send information on his fees and said it would like to meet with him some evening soon to discuss downtown redevelopment plans.

Gray told the council that downtown Tiburon is a "blighted" area, ripe for redevelopment. But he warned the council to use the redevelopment tool "carefully with full knowledge of its powers and full disclosure to the public."

Councilman Allan N. Littman told Gray the city wants to undertake lighting, drainage and landscaping projects with tax revenue gained through redevelopment. He said that the council is also thinking about building all or part of a parking garage and some moderate income housing.

Gray said these projects are possible under state law and suggested they be done in cooperation with Sequoia Pacific Realco of Santa Ana, a firm which has a development proposal for 36 acres of downtown land owned by Southern Pacific Railroad.

Gray told the council it could not begin receiving tax revenue from the redevelopment project until 1975-76.

Under redevelopment law, assessed valuation would be frozen inside the redevelopment area for all taxing agencies except the redevelopment agency. The redevelopment agency would then use the tax revenue accrued in increases in assessments to finance such projects as Tiburon is discussing.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

CONDOMINIUMS - Extended a moratorium on converting apartments into condominiums for eight more months. Also asked the planning commission for information by Dec. 10 on regulating such conversions.

NUISANCE - Continued until Dec. 10 a nuisance abatement hearing on whether Dr. Warren L. Bostick should repair Hacienda Drive between Hacienda Terrace and Porto Marino Estates.

IMPACT REPORT - Set Nov. 26 as the date to name a firm to do an environmental impact report for downtown development proposed by Sequoia Pacific Realco. Also set Jan. 23 and Feb. 7 as dates for joint city council-planning commission hearings on the impact report.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS - Accepted a bid of $53,293 from Steiny and Co. of San Francisco for installing traffic signals and lights on Tiburon Boulevard at the intersections of Beach Road and Avenida Miraflores, to be paid for by state gas tax funds and federal fund contributions.

CITY MANAGER - Confirmed the appointment of Robert L. Kleinert as new city manager.

CLOSED SESSION - Held a closed meeting to discuss pending litigation against the city.

High Bail Set In Berkeley Bank Robbery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bail was set at $100,000 each yesterday for five persons the federal government says may be linked with a group that claims credit for shooting down a police helicopter.

U.S. Magistrate Owen Woodruff set the high bail after assistant U.S. attorney Lawrence A. Callaghan said three held cards indicating membership in the Tribal Thumb.

Callaghan added that the Justice Department had information that the Tribal Thumb was part of the August 7 guerilla group which took credit for shooting down a police helicopter in Oakland with the death of two officers.

All five were arrested Friday in a camper van at Berkeley in connection with the $16,908 robbery of a Bank of America branch in that city. Detectives said the loot was found in the van.

Parent-Children Lecture Set

"Fathers and Sons, Fathers and Daughters" will be the topic of a lecture by Edward Beggs, founder of Huckleberry House for Runaways, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Olney Hall, College of Marin.

Beggs, now codirector of Rites of Passage, the youth component of Marin Open House, will discuss preventing deep schisms between teenagers and their parents.

The lecture is being sponsored by the college and the Marin Association for Mental Health and is the forerunner of a series of parent-youngster clinics at Rites of Passage.

Becker Will Not Seek Reelection

With elections still five months away, Tiburon City Councilman M. Carlisle Becker said last night that he will not run again when his four-year term expires next spring.

Becker did not make a formal announcement but during a discussion about newly appointed City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert he said, "I will work with Bob for the rest of my time on the council and later in April and May when I'm a private citizen again."

A landscape architect in Tiburon, Becker had tried last week to resign from his post on the city's redevelopment agency, which is made up of the five city councilmen. But the city attorney ruled last night that Becker could not leave that seat without giving up his council post.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, leads the world in the number of calls per telephone.

Jane Fonda At Chicago Trial

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jane Fonda and her son, Troy, 5 months old, made a court appearance yesterday to watch Tom Hayden, her husband, stand trial on contempt charges stemming from the riots at the 1968 Democratic convention.

Her presence went unnoticed until Hayden entered the courtroom and placed the boy in her lap. The lad soon began to whimper, however, and his mother took him out.

RED HILL ACCIDENT SCENE

A pickup truck, its side smashed and wheels knocked out of alignment, rests on a driveway near 400 Red Hill Avenue in San Anselmo, following a collision with the car being surveyed by witnesses in the background. Driver of the car, identified as Kenneth Tipton of 38 Carolton Drive, Petaluma, was taken to Marin General Hospital with a cut scalp and bruises in the accident at 10:45 a.m., today according to police. Others taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital were Paula Pierce, 14, of 382 Ely, Petaluma; Cristina Bullock, 16, of 100 Laurel Avenue, San Anselmo, and David Wright, 27, of no known address. The extent of their injuries was unknown. Police said the car was traveling westbound when it collided with the truck, which apparently was making a turn into a gas station from eastbound traffic lanes.

STATE

Angeles, Riverside and San Francisco Bay Area air basins should be relaxed. Standards within these basins should be relaxed on a "case-by-case basis for the wide utilization of all fuels."

Pollute —The federal government and State Air Resources Board should reduce requirements on motor vehicle smog control devices so fuel can be conserved on a short-term basis. This would include postponing installation of smog control devices on 1966-70 used cars starting Jan. 1.

Other proposals called on the public to eliminate all "unnecessary driving," for the state to further reduce thermostat settings in government buildings from 72 to 68 degrees, and for settings to be increased to 78 degrees in summer so air conditioners will be used less.

The council, appointed by Reagan in September to develop a state energy conservation policy, also urged local governments, industry and citizens to cut back lighting in "nonwork areas."

Reinecke told newsmen that by Jan. 1 California and other western states will be 14 per cent short of its oil needs. He warned if voluntary actions don't work to conserve fuel, "mandatory" controls could soon follow. These would take legislative action.

Eight senior girls are competing for the homecoming queen title, with the winner to be named at 1 p.m. at the field. Entrants are Christine Aguirre, Julia Alhers, Nancy Goacher, Linda Harris, Judith Keyser, Joyce Kidder, Shelly Wilson nd Rene Worsham.

Theft Case To Higher Court

A San Rafael man who reportedly assisted a Woodacre woman in the burglary of a home in that community has been bound over to Marin Superior Court for trial.

Thomas Wade Ayers, 21, was ordered by Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman to appear Nov. 26. Smallman ruled there is enough evidence to hold Ayers.

The youth is said to have aided Judy Soga, 20, in the Aug. 20 burglary of the Kenneth D. Peterson home. Miss Soga was convicted by a Marin Superior Court jury and will be sentenced Friday.

Council Picks New Officers

The Strawberry Area Community Council last night elected architect J. Martin Rosse as its president.

Other new officers are: Sandra Dorsaneo, vice president; Betty Doss, treasurer, and Joanne Monks, secretary.

The council also set Dec. 4 as the date of its next regular meeting. Mrs. Dorsaneo said it is asking the county planning commission to hold a special meeting in Strawberry to review the recently released Strawberry master plan.

such a turnover and yesterday Israeli forces dismantled a checkpoint set up by the U.N. force. Fistfights broke out between the Israelis and the Finnish soldiers manning the post.

Israel said today the attempt by the United Nations to take over the road checkpoint would cut the Israeli forces in Egypt in two and might lead to resupply of the encircled Egyptian 3rd Army on the east side of the Suez Canal.

Mrs. Meir told Parliament that "what has been called 'the position of 22 October' is a concept that never existed and does not exist in reality."

"No one can identify the positions of the two sides on 22 October," she said. "There were no U.N. observers in the area and the spokesman of the U.N. Emergency Force was right when he admitted on 29 October that he was unable to determine what the situation on the ground was on 22 October.

The U.N. Security Council ordered a cease-fire on Oct. 22 but fighting continued during which Egypt contends the Israelis were able to encircle the Egyptian 3rd army and move into Suez City. A second ceasefire order two days later ended the fighting.

Blaze Damages Minesweeper

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Fire broke out yesterday in a minesweeper docked at Treasure Island Naval Base, injuring five men and causing minor damage.

The Navy said flames and water ruined mattresses and clothing in the officers' berthing area of the USS Excel, a 165-foot, wooden-hulled vessel built in 1955.

Two fire fighters were treated for smoke inhalation and three others for cuts and bruises. An investigation is under way into the cause of the fire.

Bus Depot Remodeling To Be Council Topic

Proposed remodeling of the Mill Valley bus depot by its new tenants will be discussed at a city council meeting at 8 p.m. today at city hall.

The new renters of the city-owned building, Mr. and Mrs. Lendon C. Ganey, who run the Rafael Book Store in San Rafael, plan a combination sandwich shop and newspaper-magazine stand in the depot.

Land-Use Plan Is Approved

The land-use element of the proposed Larkspur General Plan was approved without revision last night by the Larkspur City Council.

Thy element calls for low density residential development for the Northridge area and the Greenbrae Ridge and higher density on flatlands. It also recommends preserving open space and holding down expansion of town's commercial areas.

It calls for special studies of the TI Property on San Quentin peninsula and the proposed regional shopping center site between Corte Madera Creek and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

John E. Roberto, city planning director, said the council will meet Nov. 26 to discuss the plan's final element, housing.

Construction Funds Sliced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee today cut administration requests for military construction funds by 12 per cent but warned against letting the Middle East crisis detract from U.S. support of European allies.

The panel approved a $2.6 billion money bill for the current 1974 fiscal year for military construction needs at home and abroad, a cut of $335.8 million from administration requests. Most of the cut came in elimination of projects at scores of bases in the nation.

The committee did approve $40 million for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "infrastructure program," which consists of new building, improvements and repairs at NATO military bases.

Housing Project May Get Money

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development's area director says there still may be a chance for federal funds to complete the Hunters Point housing project.

James Price, the director, said yesterday he had been told that by David O. Meeker, HUD's assistant secretary.

The project in San Francisco was not included on a list of those slated for money last week but Price said Meeker hwd told him the "door is not necessarily closed."

46 Acres On Atherton Are Rezoned

The Novato Planning Commission last night rezoned 46 acres along Atherton Avenue as part of its continuing program to bring zoning into conformance with the Novato General Plan.

The Schwartz property was rezoned from agricultural to residential use. The housing density permitted will be based on the city slope policy, with fewer houses permitted on steeper slopes.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

Cox's Views On New Prosecutor

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Nixon still has the right to name his own Watergte prosecutor, but Congress should legislate safeguards to insure independence and restore public trust in government, Archibald Cox said yesterday.

The fired Watergate prosecutor said he believed that the advice and consent of the Senate to the apppointment of his successor with legislative safeguards was essential to prevent his "precipitate removal by the President."

He said Congress could assure independence by enacting legislation that provided for the prosecutor's removal only for "gross improprieties."

Auburn Dam Hit By Ecology Suit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three conservation groups hwve gone to court for the second time to halt construction of the proposed Auburn Dam on the American River until environmental disputes can be resolved.

The federal court lawsuit, an amended complaint to a suit filed a year ago, asked that the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation stop work on the Auburn-Folsom South Reclamation Project.

The suit was filed by the Natural Resources Defense Council Inc. of Palo Alto, Save the American River Association of Sacramento, adn the Environmental Defense Fund.

Gargiulo Dinner Brings In $800

NIXON

mostly Republicans, to explain his side of the Watergate controversy. This is part of a new effort by the President to counter calls for his resignation or impeachment.

Public opinion polls have showed Nixon's popularity at new lows, but in a new Gallup Poll released today, showed 54 per cent of those questioned said they did not believe Nixon should be compelled to leave the presidency, while 37 per cent said he should.

The White House announced yesterday the President would turn over by Nov. 20 more tapes and Watergate documents than the U.S. District Court had asked for. But the White House also said Nixon could not find another recording he had promised to give the court.

Presidential adviser Melvin Laird said on NBC-TV's Today Show that he did not understand how certain White House conversations were not taped.

"I believe this system was not a proper system to accomplish what it was intended to be accomplished..." Laird said. "It did happen but it was not a very good system and the people responsible for it evidently were not competent."

In another development, Gulf Oil Corp. and one of its vice presidents pleaded guilty to making illegal contributions of $100,000 to the Nixon reelection campaign in 1972 plus $25,000 to two early democratic presidential hopefuls, Sen. Henry M. Jackson and Rep. Wilbur D. Mills.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said yesterday a staff of nine attorneys was compiling the various charges that have crept into public print about Nixon, his friends and his family, and the information to refute them.

"These are things that the President is going to address and clear up and discuss thoroughly," Ziegler said. Other officials said the President's defense would be made in public statements, news conferences and more meetings with legislators in coming weeks and months.

Japanese Fears Trade Barriers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The president of the Osaka, Japan, Chamber of Rommerce said yesterday that the United States was being confronted "with moves toward protectionism.",

And, Isamu Saheki told the Japan-America Conference of Mayors and Chamber of Commerce Presidents, no nation should "repeat such a mistake as the adoption of protectionism in the 1930s which led to the worldwide depression."

Saheki also said the United States and Japan should "tighten their economic relations for their mutual prosperity." The two nations, he added, should work to stop the spread of inflation throughout the world.

More Hotels And Motels Being Built

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Inflation has severely affected the residential housing market in California in the past two months but, ironically, the construction of hotels and motels has jumped 72 per cent, the state Department of Finance reported today.

"The residential building sector has been adversely affected by monetary conditions," said the department's bi-monthly report titled California Economic Indicators.

It blamed the housing slump on reduced lending, high mortgage rates and large down payment requirements. Building of homes was 30 per cent behind the same period last year, it said.

However, nonresidential building was up 60 per cent, led by the hotel-motel category with a 72 per cent gain.

On statewide retail sales, the report said California has "generally paralleled national patterns" with a 10 per cent increase.

However it noted new car sales were down 19.6 per cent this September compared for the same month last year. But it also noted that new auto registration for the first nine months of this year were up nearly 16 per cent.

Trustees Want Vote On Tam Fair Hiring Policy

Guidelines for eliminating discrimination in hiring have taken up too much discussion time and should be adopted next week, Tamalpais High School District trustees decided last night.

The requirements that the district consider all applicants equally in hiring and that it recruit women and minority group members has been before the board since September.

Trustees adopted the "affirmative action" policy in August. Last night was their third hearing on how to go about it.

Trustees Bette Wallace and Lotte Schiller voiced agreement that too much staff time and effort had been expended when there was agreement on the guidelines among trustees, according to Edward J. Neumeier, district administrative assistant.

The guidelines will be up for adoption at the board's regular meeting next Monday.

The Tamalpais High School District Board also:

PROPERTY — Held first hearing on district policy allowing surplus property to be put up for bid after being declared surplus by the board. The policy will be up for adoption Monday.

ASSOCIATION — Discussed joining the California School Board Association but delayed a decision until trustees attend the association's meeting in San Francisco later this month.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to hear charges against district personnel but took no action.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Monday at 8 p.m. in Drake High School.

FIRM WILL CHANGE ITS IMAGE

Eight-year-old Caroline Randal (left) of New York City has prompted Lionel Trains to change its image. Ted Betker, president of Lionel's parent firm, Fundamensions, said yesterday the girl's letter (right) of a year ago was responsible for it all. Caroline, who received her first train when she was 2, was incensed that girls had been ignored in previous Lionel advertising. Betker said the firm has changed its advertising on train ideas for both girls and boys.

Oil Pipeline Bill Clears The Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate passed, 80-to-5, and sent to the White House today an Alaskan pipeline bill which may be signed only reluctantly by President Nixon because of an amendment he opposes.

The measure would clear the way for a 789-mile pipeline to rich oil deposits on Alaska's frozen North Slope, which Nixon favors. But the administration objects to an unrelated amendment giving the Federal Trade Commission broad new powers in the consumer field.

Presidential spokesman Gerald R. Warren said Nixon was concerned about "extraneous matters that have been attached to the bill" and said the legislation would be taken under study. The President is expected to sign it into law despite his personal reservations.

"I shall be sorely disappointed and will say to the President that if the bill is vetoed, I don't know when we're going to get it (the pipeline)."

Project On San Pedro Ridge Is Defeated Again

For the second time in six months, the Marin County Planning Commission last night rejected a master plan for 456 townhouse dwellings on San Pedro Ridge overlooking Santa Venetia. (Another planning commission story, page 1.)

The commission split 3-to-3 on the master plan and a tie vote is a rejection. The proposal also failed to gain approval in May when the commission again tied on the plan.

The project, called the San Pedro Reserve, includes two tightly-clustered villages on a 256-acre site behind the Rafael Convalescent Hospital on North San Pedro Road.

About 75 nearby residents attended last night's session, which ran for three hours, and occasionally applauded speakers opposed to the development.

Many of the dozen or so speakers were active in the successful open space bond campaign which committed residents to pay $500,000 to purchase the Fierman and other properties.

San Francisco attorney Rodric L. Robinson said after the meeting he would recommend his clients appeal the commission decision to the board of supervisors.

Supervisors last June considered the project during a marathon six-hour meeting, but made no decision and returned it to the planning commission after advising the developers to revise the plan.

They recommended the units be built in a hidden valley on the site to eliminate neighborhood objections that the development would mar the wooded hillside.

The planning department, which recommended approval of the massive project, last night agreed with the developer that locating the dwellings in the hidden valley would be economically infeasible and environmentally damaging.

Much of last night's discussion was a rehash of earlier arguments in which the opposition complained of bad traffic, drainage and fire conditions and the developers responded that the development would help solve those problems.

Engineer Stanley Bala said the Fierman brothers have agreed to put up $90,000 toward improvement of North San Pedro Road, are willing to join a flood control zone and have accepted fire protection measures outlined by a consultant and agreed to by San Rafael city and county officials.

Downhill residents in the Northbridge and golf links subdivisons complained however, that the development would result in higher taxes to handle the additional winter runoff from the project.

They also complained that the project would exceed growth limits outlined in the Marin County General Plan and bring more low and moderate-income families into an area that already has a proportionately high number.

Commission support for the project came from Gilbert Murphy, Rebecca Watkin and Margaret B. Azevedo, who agreed that its social and environmental amenities warranted approval.

Siding with the audience were commissioners Gloria Duncan, Jerry Friedman and Marie J. Sessi, who said the development would have too massive an impact on the Santa Venetia community.

"It's just not the right site," Friedman said, adding he liked the master plan and hoped a similar project could be built elsewhere in the county.

Commission chairman William C. Long was absent from yesterday's meeting.

The planning commission also recommended the board of supervisors consider rezoning several large tracts of land in the Nicasio-San Geronimo Valley areas to lower densities.

The recommendation would reduce the number of building lots from the current 136 to 57 on five large holdings totaling more than 2,000 acres.

Citizens Asked To Help Pick Principal

Mill Valley School District board members last night urged district residents to apply for positions on a citizens screening committee which will help pick a new principal for Old Mill School.

Supt. Peter G. Palches said that the board is starting to receive applications for the job and would like to begin the selection process soon.

Corte Madera Panel Rejects Land Policy

A policy to prohibit planners from having more than one plan for a single piece of property before town boards and commissions was rejected unanimously last night by the Corte Madera Planning Commission.

The proposal had been sent to the commission for consideration after councilman Robert J. Flahive suggested the policy at a council meeting.

Elizabeth Long, planning commission secretary, said commissioners felt it was better to have alternatives for property use for consideration.

Presently there is no limit on the number of plans which a developer may submit for consideration.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission also:

HOME — Set a public hearing Dec. 10 on a request by Kenneth Anderson to use a home at 12 Willow Avenue as a state licensed group home for six boys.

HORSES — Set a public hearing Dec. 10 on a plan to require a conditional use permit to keep a horse in Corte Madera.

AMENDMENT — Delayed consideration of proposal from City-County Planning Council of Marin to create a countywide review agency until the town's own general plan is reviewed.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

Drunken Driving Case Bound Over

Ruling there is enough evidence to try Robert Kapua Kim, 29, for felony drunken driving, a Marin Municipal Court judge has bound the San Francisco man over to Marin Superior Court.

Judge David R. Baty acted after a preliminary hearing in ordering Kim to appear Nov. 19.

Kim is accused of being drunk Sept. 10 when his car overturned and caught fire south of Sausalito, killing a San Francisco woman.

Residents Favor Park Fill Permit

The Canal Area Neighborhood Action League last night decided to urge the Army Corps of Engineers to approve a fill permit sought by the City of San Rafael for a 1.8-acre parcel at Canal Street and Kerner Boulevard.

The city has a one-year option to buy the park site, and may exercise that option regardless of whether the permit for 7,000 cubic yards of fill is obtained.

The league last night declared it will circulate petitions urging approval of the permit because "we want to make sure it gets done," said Pauline Haro, league chairman.

Span Panel Hit With Big Suit

The $2.9 million action in Marin Superior Court follows by 10 days a $1.3 million suit accusing the Marin County Transit District of forcing the black-owned-and-operated bus company out of business.

Despite a one-year contract between the company and the bridge district for bus service to Southern and West Marin, the bridge district looked upon Marin Transit as "a thorn in its side," according to the suit.

The district's "hostile, belligerent, uncooperative and overbearing" attitude finally forced Marin Transit systems out of business so the district could set up its own bus fleet, according to Novato attorney Thomas T. Storer.

The bridge district withdrew its support of Marin Transit Systems Jan. 2 following three years of subsidies totaling $300,000.

Brezhnev Visit

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, will arrive Nov. 26 for a five-day visit, the foreign office announced today.

No Charge Is Due In Burglary Case

A Forestville woman who allegedly broke into the Novato home of her ex-husband will not be charged with burglary, the Marin County District Attorney's Office has decided.

Eleanor Arlene Parkins, 44, was arrested Oct. 27 by Novato police after she reportedly entered the house of Peter P. Mattioli on Vineyard Road.

Numerous examples of Heierle's "untiring efforts to reach and reassure specially withdrawn or emotionally disturbed patients" were cited.

Heierle began service at Ross General as an orderly, but his concern for patients and their response to his presence quickly resulted in his present assignment, according to Johnson.

Prosecutor Will Fight Extradition To Arizona

STOCKTON (UPI) — A prosecutor in the case of two suspected mass killers pledged today to fight an extradition request by Arizona, where the death penalty exists, from California, where it is illegal until Jan. 1.

The final decision in the legal wrangle may be made by California Gov. Ronald Reagan, a staunch advocate of capital punishment.

Douglas E. Gretzler, 22, New York City, and Willie L. Steelman, 28, Lodi, were accused of killing at least 17 persons in an attempt to cover up small robberies in California and Arizona. A search for a possible 18th victim was under way in the Superstition Mountains foothills near Apache Junction, Ariz.

W. Randolph Stevens Jr. of the district attorney's staff in Phoenix yesterday asked California to extradite the pair because "California doesn't have a death penalty statute but Arizona does."

A capital punishment law goes into effect in California Jan. 1 but it will not be retroactive.

San Joaquin County Dist. Atty. Joseph Bakers said he would resist any extradition attempt until the suspects were tried for slaying nine persons in Victor.

Improved Christmas Mail Handling Seen

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Christmas mail service this year will be better than last year, predicts the regional postmaster general for the 13 Western states.

"Last Christmas we didn't do very well nationally," William J. Sullivan of San Francisco said yesterday. "We'll have better Christmas mail service this year than last."

He said one way the Postal Service may speed the mail is by sorting first class mail as trains roll along.

Fairfax Employees Denied Pay Hikes

Town employees in Fairfax last night failed to get 2.5 per cent across-the-board salary increases retroactive to Sept. 1 after one councilman called the proposed raises "Christmas money."

Councilman Albert R. Gately had proposed the raises, citing rampant inflation, and suggested the $9,470 they would cost for four months come out of federal revenue sharing funds.

Councilman Lee Nelder said, however, that most town employees had received salary increases last summer and are due to get 2.5 per cent raises in January and the additional increase seemed an effort to get holiday spending money.

In other action last night, the council received a proposal to make about $6,000 worth of repairs to the Fairfax Women's Club, meeting place of the town council. The building was described as "termite ridden" by Robert E. Crowe, town administrator.

The council, however, was unenthusiastic about air conditioning the old building and also about removing windows in the back of the stage. The whole matter was referred to the town's design review board for suggestions.

The Fairfax Town Council Also:

TREES — Referred to the parks and recreation commission a letter from the Fairfax Lumber Co. offering to assist in planting trees, shrubs and ground cover on Broadway near the company.

OPEN — Took no action on a suggestion from the owner that the town buy property at 390 Bolinas Road for open space but agreed to take a look at the parcel. Councilman Frank J. Egger indicated he thought the property would be low on the list of land to be purchased for open space.

DEPOT — Agreed to continue a $125 a month subsidy to Louis A. Puccinelli for operating the town's bus depot.

PERMIT — Granted a use permit to John Zimmer of 163 Lansdale Avenue, waiving a town requirement for a covered carport.

SIDEWALK — Agreed to replace portions of a sidewalk along Bolinas Road between Sherman Avenue and Park Road which was damaged in an undergrounding project, with the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to pay part of the cost.

DOGS — Adopted a tough new dog control ordinance which had been introduced at the last town council meeting with Councilman Gately again voting against it.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed Jane Beighley and Leo Cronin as citizens-at-large to the planning consultant screening committee.

PARK — Referred a proposal to rename Claus Park "Frank Lawrence Park" to the parks and recreation commission.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to a study session to consider police and fire facilities on Dec. 4 in town hall.

Advisory Review Agency On Development Rejected

The Fairfax Town Council last night declined to go along with an advisory review agency proposed by the City-County Planning of Council of Marin which would review development projects at the request of various cities.

The proposal is similar to one rejected earlier by the city council which would have provided mandatory review to determine if developments are consistent with the Marin General Plan.

The new proposal would make the review possible but not mandatory if either a city or the agency asked for it on public and private projects "deemed of countywide significance."

"I don't see what the council fears," Councilman Frank J. Egger said, in voting for the agency. He also said he wanted to "sit down with San Anselmo" and discuss with officials of that city the effect of such an agency.

The only other vote to approve the agency, however, came from Mayor E. Ross Parkerson.

FIRE HOUSE SHUNS YULETIDE GLOW

The nation's energy crisis requires prompt action from even the smallest local government agencies, the Marinwood Fire Commission decided last night.

Commissioners endorsed a recommendation by Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield that the district eliminate Christmas lights from firehouse decorations this holiday season.

The commission next meets at 8 p.m. Dec. 10.

San Rafael Citizens Divided On City Plan

An initial report on the City of San Rafael's emerging general plan drew a mixed reaction from about 75 residents in city hall last night.

Representatives of the Berkeley consulting firm of Duncan and Jones appeared to explain the major concepts in the thick document, and to answer questions of residents.

Consultant Warren Jones, noting that "experts are not infallible," said the initial plan is a tentative document based on a "reading of the community," but that it will be revised in line with recommendation by residents, and particularly the citizens' advisory committee.

"There are really a lot of very controversial notions in this plan," he said, describing it as providing a framework for "slow, deliberate development".

He noted the document is imprecise in that it sets no population lid or growth quota in individual neighborhoods, but rather represents a collection of information, concepts and policies that provide a "skeleton for future planning."

During a round of questions, Jones told Mayor C. Paul Bettini that no overall estimate of financial impact on the plan will be provided, although the effect of some portions will be estimated by next January. Jones suggested the city hire economic consultants to study the result of enacting it.

Some residents expressed dismay at the economic impact of the plan, with one man declaring: "You can deal on cloud 13, but you got to come down sometime."

Jones urged residents to consider concepts first, then turn to costs "after we know what we like and don't like."

Residents also expressed varying views on the concept of insuring a diverse population within neighborhoods by providing varyingly priced housing, but came to no conclusion on the matter.

The citizens advisory committee will consider the plan at 8 p.m. Thursday in city hall. Jones said residents should express viewpoints to the group so that his firm can revise the plan in mid-December in preparation for public hearings in January.

Doyle Drive Fatal Crash Linked To Driver Illness

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Francisco druggist who apparently died at the wheel of his car, causing a head-on collision yesterday on Doyle Drive, may have suffered a stroke or heart attack, according to the coroner's office here.

A spokesman said it will be at least a week before tests are completed to determine what killed Albert P. Komsthoeft, 86, but "it appears he did have some kind of seizure before the accident."

Komsthoeft's large sedan went out of control in the northbound lanes about 8:10 a.m. and bounced off the freeway approach into the southbound lanes, the California Highway Patrol said.

Officers said the vehicle smashed head-on into a car driven by Eileen Tidemann of 11 Millay Place, Mill Valley. Her car then struck another southbound auto operated by William J. Gintjee, 60, of 558 Marin Avenue, Tamalpais Avenue. The drivers and occupants of the two cars were uninjured.

The six-lane approach to the Golden Gate Bridge has been the scene of many fatal accidents in recent years, most of them head-on collisions.

In response to citizen demands for improvements to the roadway, the State Highway Commission had budgeted $2.1 million for widening Doyle Drive to eight lanes and other safety devices.

But some San Franciscans, including the Board of Supervisors, oppose that plan and contend the present six lanes can be widened for increased safety.

Freight Derailment Strands Passengers

OAKRIDGE, Ore. (UPI) — Twenty-seven cars of a 101-car freight train careened off the track about four miles west of here early yesterday, blocking a main line over Willamette Pass.

A Fine Rather Than Obeying A Smog Order?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Deputy Mayor John Tolan wonders, partly in jest, whether it wouldn't be cheaper for San Francisco to pay a federal fine rather than obey smog regulations.

He noted yesterday that the fine for non-compliance with the Environmental Protection Agency regulations is $25,000 a day, but then he held that following the regulations would be expensive, too.

Under a regulation to take effect July 1, all cities of more than 100,000 must impose a 10 cents an hour surtax on all commercial automobile parking spaces between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on working days.

Where free parking spaces are furnished there would be a $180 a space yearly surcharge and Tolan estimated that would cost one shopping center in the area $450,000 a year.

Robert A. Kenealey, deputy city attorney, said employers who furnish more than 70 free parking stalls would have to charge employees the going commercial rate plus a dollar a day.

The EPA regulations are aimed at compelling compliance with the 1970 Clean Air Act by forcing automobiles off the roads. They were written before the energy crisis drew attention.

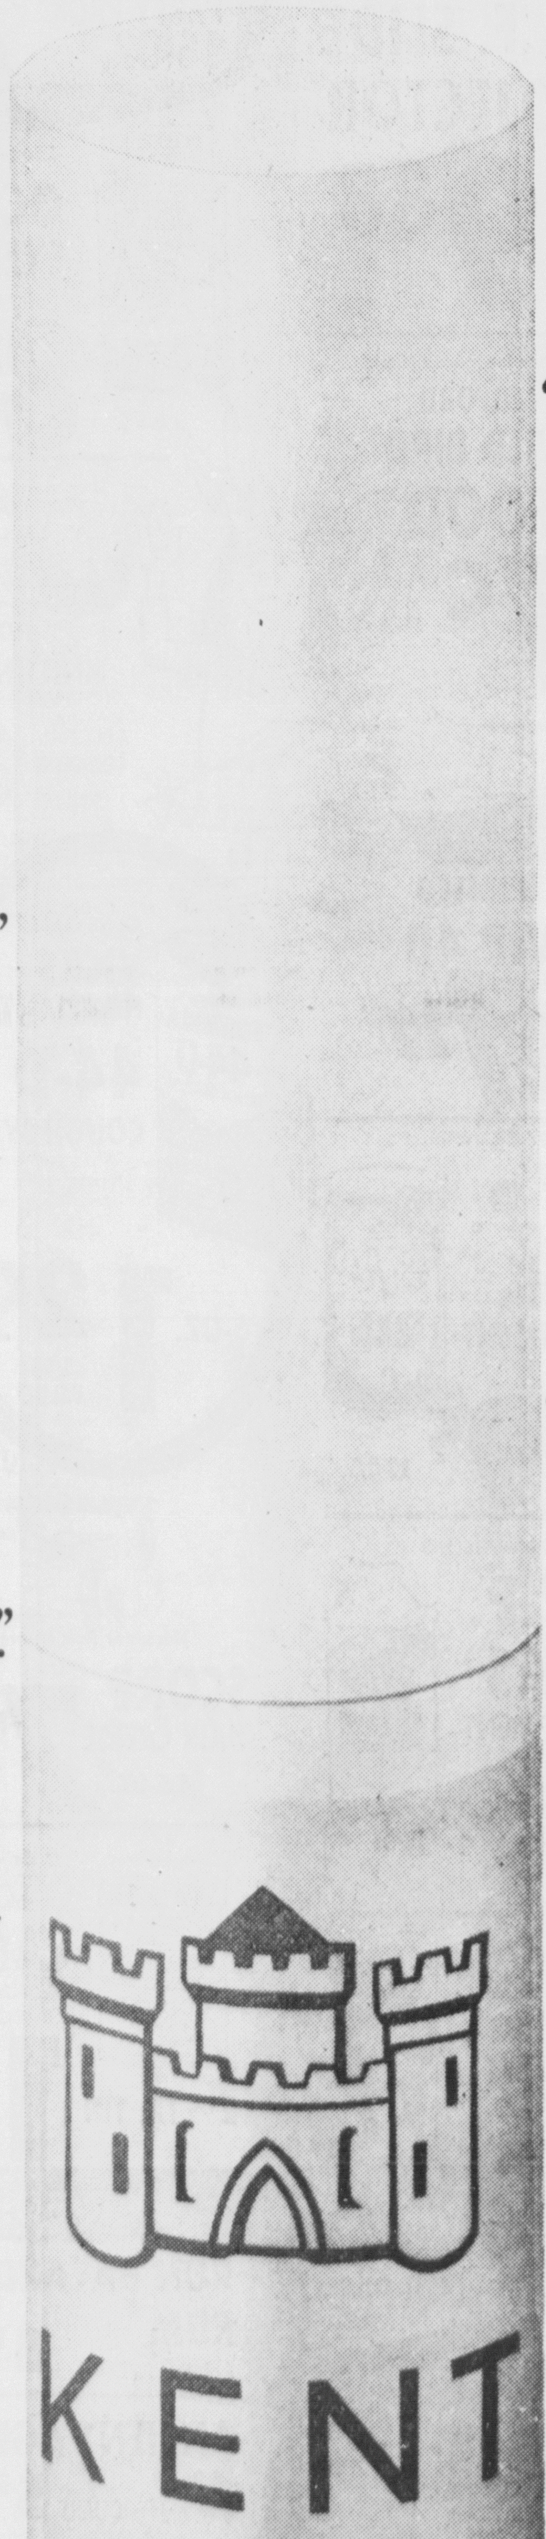
What does your cigarette have to say for itself?

If it's Kent, it says a lot.



"Taste."
A mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

"Filter."

"Quality."
Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made. (Over 200 quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

"Freshness."
We pack Kent at the optimum freshness level and then overwrap the pack with a special cellophane that keeps it fresh.

"Tobacco."
We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the milder, lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent.

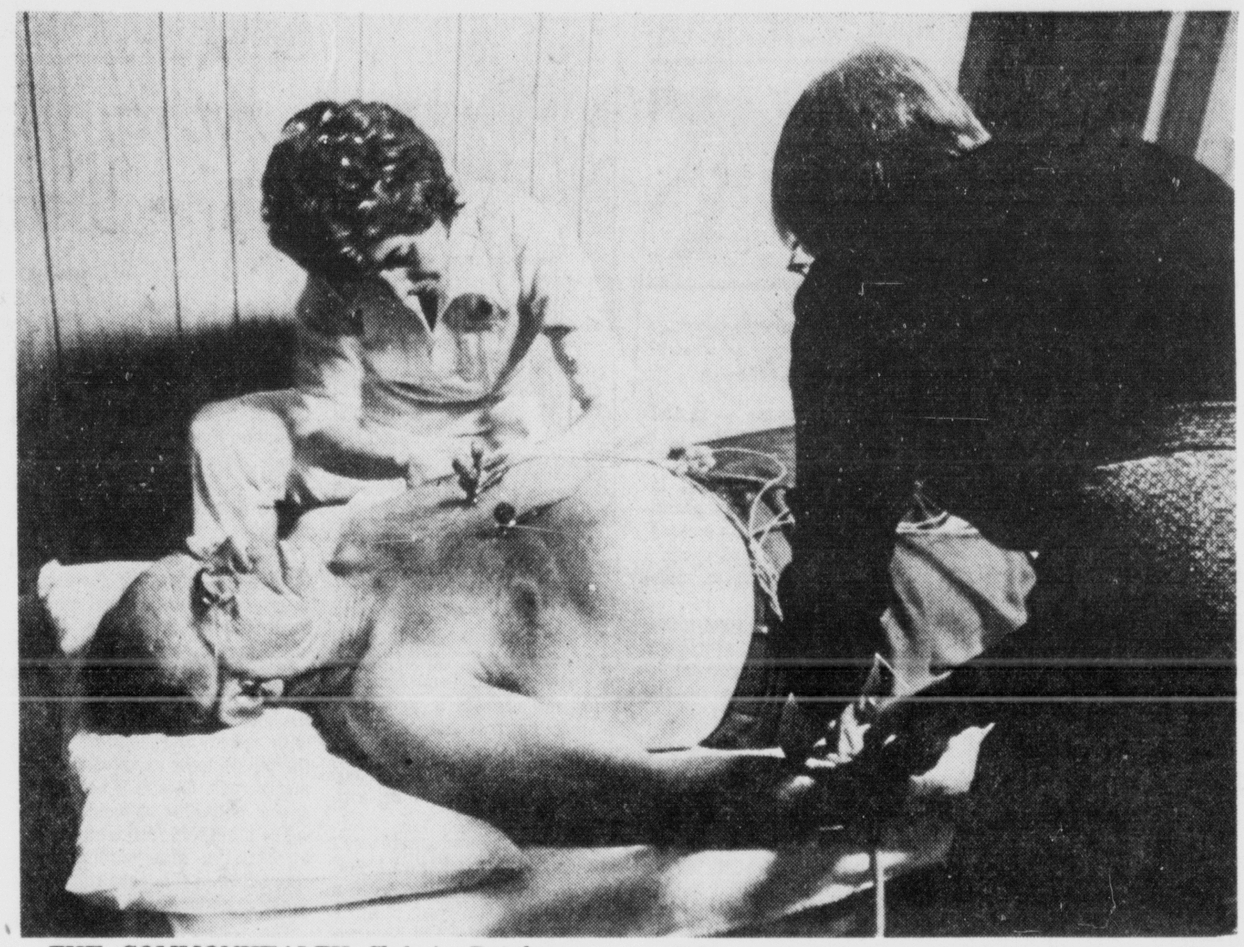
THE SPIROMETER measures lung capacity and can give an indication if something is obstructing proper breathing. The spirometer is just one of the tests conducted at the screening session of the Common Health Club. Other tests include a 12-factor blood test, pap smear, tuberculosis test and blood pressure reading. Volunteers are the backbone of the program that may soon begin in Marin. Here, from left to right, volunteers Helen Hagopian, a registered nurse and chairman of the Petaluma Club; Velma Maitz, one of the organizers, and Mildred Ferro, a registered nurse, illustrate the workings of the spirometer.



THE COMMONHEALTH Club in Petaluma and Santa Rosa offers people a chance to go through an extensive screening program at Petaluma General Hospital for the nominal fee of $25. Here, Earl McAttee gets an electrocardiogram from Mrs. Prebble West, R.N., one of the 15 volunteers at the 7 a.m. screening session. Two weeks later he will receive the results of his tests and suggestions on how his health can be either maintained or improved.

Petaluma Club Pushes For Good Health

By KAREN PETERSON

Spending just a few hours one morning with the Common Health Club could tip the balance of good health in your favor.

Petaluma's CommonHealth club is a community project for consumer health awareness. Through a program of education and analysis, the club is hoping to teach that preventive medicine is the key for maintaining and improving health.

The Petaluma program is an extension of one started last September in Santa Rosa by Kenneth Bubbs, and its unusual program of combining actual medical information with health education has caused a rash of letters from cities and states eager to set up similar programs in their areas. A program is also in the making for Marin County.

In Petaluma, the program began with the screening of members at the end of July, and so far close to 200 persons have gone through the myriad of testings. The program in Santa Rosa has attracted more than 1,000 persons and was going so well that Bubbs decided to establish outreach programs in other Sonoma cities, said Helen Hagopian, club chairman.

THE COMMONHEALTH club is for everyone, and is not limited to those with low incomes, stressed Velma Maitz. However, the $25 total cost is substantially lower than comparable tests at a physician's office. The club's membership is not limited to Sonoma County residents. In fact, they've already had people come from as far away as Tiburon, said Mrs. Maitz, one of the first organizers.

Every other Tuesday at 7 a.m., the club offers an extensive screening program at Petaluma General Hospital. Two weeks later the results are related to those who have taken the test, describing what the tests mean, how they relate to better health and how any indications of possible problems can be alleviated through good health practices.

"We're trying to screen out physical problems before they become serious," said Mrs. Maitz. "It's a program of good health and education through preventative medicine. We're trying to get people aware of their health problems."

The screening, which is held early in the morning for persons who have to work, includes a tuberculosis test, urine analysis, blood pressure reading, blood tests, an electrocardiogram, pap smear, and a spirometer test that checks the lung capacity.

There are 12 different factors involved with the blood test, including a white blood cell count and a cholestrol count.

The spirometer test, said Mrs. Hagopian, is a "crude" test, but it gives an indication if anything should be checked by a physician.

THE TESTS ARE conducted by volunteer nurses and trained professionals, and the idea behind the club is to get volunteer participation in a project designed specifically for the community. Mrs. Maitz stressed that they do not give a diagnosis and never prescribe medicine.

One of the most important aspects of the program, said Mrs. Maitz, is the final analysis session which is conducted by a physician. The analysis appraises not only the tests but also how they relate to the members' patterns of living, eating, drinking and exercise. This gives the patient an indication of which way his health is heading, she said.

As an example of this analysis, Mrs. Maitz said that since accidents are the most common cause of death among 24-year-old women, the appraisal would take into account her driving habits and whether or not she used seat belts.

For a man between 40 and 45, the appraisal would indicate how his blood pressure, weight and cholestrol level in the blood relates to heart disease. If necessary, his analysis would include suggestions on dietary control and exercise.

BREAST CANCER and cancer of the cervix are serious problems for women between the ages of 30 and 40. Her examination would include instructions on how to examine her breasts between check-ups.

At the end of the analysis, members are given folders containing their results. They can also receive a laminated card prepared by the cardiologist which, said Mrs. Maitz, can be used for future reference.

Bubbs, said Mrs. Maitz, wanted to get the consumer interested in his own health. His consumer education program, funded by a small grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, grew into a total program of health that, beside the screening, offers classes on health, programs on nutrition, exercise, first aid and drug abuse, a newsletter and a referral service for members who seek further medical aid.

The equipment used during the screening sessions has been donated by health agencies in Sonoma County, including the Heart Association, the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association and the Public Health Department.

The CommonHealth club is open to anyone over 18, although children can take the screening tests free if their parents are members. The CommonHealth offices in Petaluma are located at 129 Keller Street, Suite D.

Feminist Press Grinds Out Liberation Movement News

By POHLA SMITH

WILKINSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Buried in a dimly lighted storefront in this town near Pittsburgh, eight feminists with no previous training in publishing are grinding out word of the women's liberation movement at the rate of $60,000 worth of publications yearly.

KNOW, Inc., founded in 1969 on the theory that "you can't have a revolution without a press," may be the largest women's press in the nation.

Equipped with only one small off-set press, it produces nearly 250 articles and pamphlets and two full-length books ranging in subject from poetry to sexism in children's literature to job discrimination to a list of "Reporters You Can Trust."

Selling articles for the price of five cents a printed page and receiving occasional donations, the non-profit corporation comes out "about even," according to the chief spokesman for the group, Anne Pride. Mrs. Pride, a young married woman with another name, has adopted the last name of Pride as her "freedom name" since beginning to work for KNOW.

WITH EQUALITY its credo, KNOW operates as a collective where "everybody has an equal say, equal stake and equal salary," ($2 hourly), Mrs. Pride explained. There are no bosses. The group meets once weekly to discuss its priorities; they all interview and vote on new employes.

The women seem misleadingly casual about their business. Although each woman works 40 hours weekly, they come and go as they please, some taking their work home with them, others arranging their work schedules around their other duties as wives and mothers.

And though each woman has a specialty—bookkeeping, editing, layout or running the press—they are not tied to a particular job. One recent workday, Charlotte Warren, a tall lanky 23-year-old with a bad sunburn, did not feel up to running the press. Mary Jane Walters, a Fordham University dropout with a budding interest in graphics, took her place, while Charlotte Warren did Mary Jane Walters' disbursements.

KNOW was founded as a volunteer group by one male and 15 female members of the local chapter of the National Organization of Women (NOW) who believe the movement needed a voice.

ONE WOMAN donated a press, two others their garage, and all of them their time. They published reprints of feminist articles as well as news of the movement for free distribution at NOW meetings.

The group, which had grown out of the garage and into its owners' basement, hired three employes and became a collective. It began selling its works at a price high enough to cover cost of supplies. And as orders increased, the collective expanded.

Then a young author wrote and asked KNOW if it could publish her full-length book. "This was a letter from Gabrielle Burton that changed our lives," KNOW wrote later after it had made its first successful venture into book publishing.

It was quite an undertaking for the women whose backgrounds are as diverse as a high school dropout and Ph.D. One woman learned typesetting, others studied layout and distribution.

KNOW, MRS. PRIDE said, knows that it is reaching college campuses and individuals already involved in the movement.

"Now we want to get beyond that," she said, "to the woman bending over her kitchen sink and wondering what it's all about."

DEAR RAP:

This new boy just moved in down the street. There's only one word to describe him: beautiful! My friends say I've got a chance with him, but I don't know. I'm not very beautiful, but I seem to get plenty of boyfriends. But him? Seems like every time I'm around him, I say something stupid or act weird.

Please give me some tips. I really do like him a lot and want him to like me. — 15 AND FEELING HELPLESS

Psych yourself out, girl! Instead of thinking, "He's beautiful and I'm not," think instead, "He's new in town and needs a nice person like me to make him feel at home."

When you start helping someone, you stop going overboard to make a big impression — which is what brings on the "weird" act. — SUE

DEAR 15:

In other words, relax! And think well of yourself. Don't forget you're a popular girl who attracts friends, and he's a new guy who needs a friend. What's more, you've got the inside track because he lives on your block. With a combination like this, how could you lose? Good luck! — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

Why is it that a female can hold hands, kiss or hug another female and people think nothing of it, but if a male even touches another male (outside of punching him) look out! They're called queers. — WONDERING BOY

DEAR W.B.:

Because the American Way of Masculinity has traditionally been: "Tough, undemonstrative —the attitude that only girls or gays let their emotions show in public." Women, on the other hand, are supposed to be warm and affectionate.

European and Latin-American men don't suffer from this "distance" phobia, but it will be a long time before our image-conscious US males entirely outgrow their fear of touching. Pity! — HELEN

W.B.:

Females too, these days. With so much talk of homosexuality going round, women are also shying away from open, friendly gestures, and that's a shame because we need more demonstrated affection, not less, to make it in this modern world. — SUE

HELEN AND SUE:

I think I am messed up in my mind. I have a real nice and cute boyfriend. When I'm away from him I want him so badly, but when I am near him, he turns me off. He is generous, likes to impress me, and tries to make me happy but, for some stupid reason, I'm not satisfied with him — or with anything.

Last year (before I met him) I was so depressed I tried to kill myself, and ended up with a head doctor. Do you think I should give him a call because it's not only this boy, but every boy I've dated since I was "sick." The doctor thinks I'm okay and I hate to disappoint him. — DESPERATE

DESPERATE:

Of course you should call your doctor. You may be just going through a normal "search for the perfect guy" stage (most teen-age girls do), but with your history of depression, it could be something more. Perhaps you stopped therapy a bit too soon and a few more sessions would put you over the top. — HELEN AND SUE

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, San Rafael, Ca 94902., if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Attic, Basement Are Space Bonus

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

Attics and basements are treasures in themselves. Ask anyone who lives in a house built right on a concrete slab or someone living in a ranch-style abode. The one thing they miss most is that extra bonus of space the attic or basement provides.

There are other advantages to even a partially furnished basement. Plumbers tell me the maintenance costs go down when they have space in which to make repairs on pipes. And a house with a basement allows the craftsman to ply his trade with speed and comfort since the plumbing is exposed to view and access. Compare basement space with the typical crawl space plumbers frequently have to work in, and you'll understand that in this case time and space are money.

The youngster's room shown today was developed from an attic in an old house. But many of the ideas illustrated would work in a typical bedroom space. The whole redecorating job was an at-home project for clever parents and one teen-age son (he'd had enough of sharing his room with a kid brother). When he complained, his parents suggested he come up with a solution. This delightful top-deck room was his idea for a sleep-playroom for his exuberant kid brother.

FOR STARTERS, the interior of the attic had to be portioned out, with some space saved for a necessary storage area. They decided to build two storage cupboards at the entry, creating a mini-passageway into the main space. Luggage, trunks, ski equipment, seldom-used items were stored within these cupboards. Real junk and half-filled boxes of memorabilia were sorted and then offered to the church thrift shop.

Next, the team decided to use the room's height as part of the design concept. So big brother, Jerry, built a sturdy shelf or platform large enough to be used for lounging, reading or sleeping. Then, at a right angle and below this platform, he built a simple bunk with storage drawers and a tall cupboard with two tiers of storage.

Paint and wall coverings were chosen in the classic nautical red, white and blue, with touches of yellow and lots of denim texture. All of the wall coverings were from a collection of scuff-resistant and washable vinyl fabrics by General Tire. Even the platform and bunk have been covered in the "Denim" pattern wall covering.

Finally, a printed, flat-textured carpeting was found, and a minimum of fussy accessories was added to make this now the most popular room in the house.

SEE-WORTHY and shipshape: Here's an attic room that's getting a lot of attention in one two-boy home. Bright vinyl fabric wall coverings, called "Fashion" by General Tire brought some creative ideas into focus in an unusually cheerful way.

Advent Calendars For Children Becoming Popular

NEW YORK (UPI) — A charming European Christmas custom — sending Advent calendars to children — is getting a toe-hold in the United States.

A number of card shops and department stores market the calendars which should be purchased in November. Most of the calendars are designed in West Germany and Denmark and bear a European village or religious scene. Some are self-standing and depict castles, buses, angels and doll houses.

The scene incorporates numbers running from 1 to 24 which indicate the position of a flip-open panel that reveals a Christmas scene. The idea is to open a panel a day from Dec. 1 to Dec. 24, which covers the pre-Christmas liturgical season known as Advent. The last panel always depicts the manger scene.

Cost of these novelties ranges from $1 to $3. If you can't find a shop that sells them, write to House of Calendars, 81 Irving Place, New York, N.Y. 10003 and request its brochure describing 40 Advent calendars.

UNICEF Yule Presents Are Out

By U.P. International

The New UNICEF Christmas cards and other little UNICEF gifts with a double purpose are out. Double purpose? Buy these, send as a greeting or a gift and help needy children in developing countries. The UNICEF things are mail order items and that's why this Christmas reminder so early — around Halloween.

By the time you get the order in and the postman delivers your purchase, it will be none too soon for Christmas chores.

For a UNICEF Christmas catalogue write to United States Committee for UNICEF, 331 E. 38th St., New York, N.Y. The booklet contains color pictures of the cards and prices, mostly $3 for 12 cards. There are some for $2.

Other new items to benefit UNICEF. The 1974 desk calendar. It is $3 and contains pictures of 52 of the most popular card designs from recent years. Two previously unpublished designs also are featured in this edition. The pages, around 6-by-8 inches, are so arranged that at year's end the date pages may be removed and, presto, the art work remains.

Energy Crisis Could Prove A Blessing

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The energy crisis could be that proverbial blessing in disguise. It could put Americans back on their feet.

We might start walking the three or four blocks to market instead of hopping into the automobile. More of us might start walking to and from the job as thousands already do, including that well publicized walker, Sen. William Proximire, Dem.-Wis. Walking also seems destined to become a necessary means of getting there and back, as public transportation costs go up and our fuel supplies go down.

And all to the good, using shank's mare, for medical science generally agrees that walking is one of the best exercises that almost all of us can enjoy.

Walking would rid us of the television-sitting slouch and paunch. For walking steps up circulation and helps clear the clutter from the mind.

AND IT'S ALL free. Only calories and shoe leather are consumed. So get out of the riding habit, get into comfortable walking shoes, take off at a brisk pace, and listen to what some of the sages through the years have written about walking.

"I's a-gwyne to make you walk as straight as a string," wrote Mark Twain in "Pudd'n Head Wilson."

"Going tramping is at first an act of rebellion; only afterwards do you get free from rebelliousness, as Nature sweet-ens your mind," said Stephen Graham.

"I calculate that Wordsworth must have walked 175,000 English miles—a mode of exertion which to him, stood in the stead of alcohol and all other stimulants whatsoever," wrote Samuel T. Coleridge.

"IF LEGS were a new invention, we would realize that they are more remarkable than the automobile or even the wheel." Joseph Wood Krutch.

That great naturalist Henry David Thoreau looked at walking this way —"Every walk is a sort of crusade preached by some Peter the Hermit in us, to go forth and reconquer this Holy Land from the hands of the Infidels."

Of course there were some writers who considered walking in other lights. Benjamin Franklin in "Poor Richard's Almanack," wrote "He that can travel well a-foot keeps a good horse."

Other writers had their say along the same lines. One John Lyly as early as 1591 was saying, "Is it not said: It is good walking when one hath his horse in his hand."

AND MONTAIGNE in 1595 wrote "He may well walk afoot, says the proverb, who leads his horse by the bridle."

The term "walk" shows up in our lingo through the ages. There is the Latin proverb that "the matter—the difficulty—is settled or solved by walking."

People get their "walking papers" when dismissed.

Our class distinctions and occupations put us in various "walks of life." We "walk the chalk." Sometimes the way to get rid of a rogue aboard ship was to make him "walk the plank." Domineering characters "walk all over" people.

But all these other meanings aside, Nature did give us legs to use. So get in the action—start walking.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Scottish author Robert Louis Stevenson was born November 13, 1850.

Also on this day in history:

In 1927, the Holland Tunnel under the Hudson River between New York City and New Jersey was opened. It had been under construction seven years.

In 1933, the first recorded "sit-down" strike in the United States was staged by workers at the Hormel Packing Company in Austin, Minn.

A thought for the day: U.S. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said: "The life of the law has not been logic, it has been experience."

Chiang Opposes Chinese Talks

TAIPEI (UPI) — President Chiang Kai-shek said yesterday any move to "negotiate" or "compromise" with Mainland China would mean the destruction of everything the Nationalist Chinese have been fighting for.

"No true patriot of China can afford to have the slightest doubt or hesitation about this," Chiang said.

He made the statement in a directive read to the opening session of his Nationalist Party Kuomintang caucus by Vice President C.K. Yen. Chiang did not attend the session.

West Gets His Club Trick, But Maneuver Means Victory

A bridge player spends years learning to avoid the loss of tricks unnecessarily. A certain kind of expert maneuver depends, however, on going out of your way to give up a trick to the enemy.

IN DUMMY

West opened the king of clubs, and dummy's ace won the first trick. South saw at a glance that his problem was to avoid the loss of a heart and three diamonds.

The trouble is that South goes down if he tries to limit the loss to the red suits. East wins a heart trick and leads the queen of diamonds through declarer's king. When the smoke has cleared, the defenders have three diamond tricks as well as one heart.

When the hand was played, South averted this danger by losing a club trick!

DISCARDS LAST HEART

South began by drawing two rounds of trumps and cashing the ace and king of hearts. Then he led the jack of clubs from dummy and discarded his last heart.

This maneuver gave West a club trick — but also guaranteed the contract. If West led another club, dummy would ruff while South discarded a diamond. If West, instead, led diamonds, South would win a trick with the king. Either way, South would lose only two diamond tricks.

STILL SAFE

Even if West could lead another heart the contract would still be safe. If West had only one of the two remaining hearts, South would ruff, and dummy's last heart would be good. If West had both of the missing hearts, he would set up dummy's jack whether he led high or low. That extra heart trick would give South the contract.

ART REVIEW

Mill Valley Artist Recreates Scene Of State's Gold Mining

By ADA GARFINKEL

Drawing upon the early history of the California gold-mining days, 21-year-old Mill Valley artist, Catherine Sanborn reconstructs sites and scenes of that period in a series of watercolors and pencil drawings now being shown in the California Room of the Marin County Civic Center Library.

Miss Sanborn's small, intimate views include such places as "Yankee Jim's - Placer City," "View Toward French Meadows - Placer County," "Red Lake, East of Carson Pass," and "House at Downieville - Sierra County."

Her watercolors are rendered in short, vertical strokes which create a mosaic-like, faceted brilliance because of their full-bodied, lush colors against the crisp, white interstices of the paper.

Bits of data adjacent to the pictures invest each one with historical meaning. The artist tells you, for instance, "that Yankee Jim was an unsavory character who was the first to find gold on that site, that he was later hanged in Los Angeles and that today only a few buildings and apple trees remain."

Or, that French Meadows derived its name from a company of French prospectors who located there in the "fair valley of near one-half mile wide which is today covered by a lake."

Miss Sanborn's pencil drawings — some of which are of flowers and leaves indigenous to the area — offer her an opportunity to indulge in a virtuosic iconography of lacy networks comprised of miniscule rings like globules of dew and pencil-mark hatching.

The latter, shading from palest gray to velvety black, and surrounding the globular masses and strands of vines, remove these drawings from a purely illustrational idiom.

These shows will continue through Nov. 30 and may be viewed from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

TERRA LINDA DRAMA SET

A Black Miss America Seen

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Cheryl Johnson, who was named Miss Wyoming when the original winner decided the pace of beauty pageantry might be too hectic, yesterday said a black Miss America may be named this year.

"I believe there have been three or four black contenders for the Miss America title in the last three years," she said. "Last year, Miss Kentucky was the only one. This might be the year for a black Miss America."

Tool Find Hints Man Arrived In West 250,000 Years Ago

DALLAS (UPI) — According to accepted evidence, man migrated to what is now the United States from Asia 12,000 years ago over a land bridge that connected Siberia and Alaska. But now three scientists say they have uncovered evidence to suggest man existed in North America as long as a quarter of a million years ago.

"We're confronted with a dilemma in which we have apparently sound geological data that leads to a head-on confrontation with apparently sound archeological data," Dr. Ronald Fryxell of Washington State University said yesterday.

Fryxell, Dr. Harold E. Malde and Virginia Steen-McIntyre, both of the U.S. Geological Survey in Denver, told the Geological Society of America they have dated by several independent methods a number of stone tools found in an ancient Mexican stream bed as being 250,000 years old.

Fryxell said he realized this contradicts established archeological evidence that says man migrated to the New World 12,000 years ago and he also said both theories appear sound.

"We have no reason to suppose that over decades, actually hundreds of years, of research in archeology in the old and New World that our understanding of human prehistory is so inaccurate that we suddenly discover that our past understanding is all wrong," Fryxell said.

"On the other hand, the more geological information we've accumulated, the more difficult it is to explain how multiple methods of dating which are independent of each other might be in error by the same order of magnitude.

"It's not fashionable to come into a meeting and say 'I don't know,' but that's essentially where we are right now."

The three scientists said another problem with their finding is the tools are considerably more sophisticated than tools used in Europe and Asia 250,000 years ago.

The tools included spear points, knives, and scrapers. They were associated with numerous animal bones but no human bones have been found. The animal bones found were from an extinct camel, llama, deer, bison, mammoth, mastodon and a sabre tooth cat.

A camel pelvis found with the tools was dated by a radioactive technique as being 245,000 years old with an error possibility of 45,000 years. Other techniques used to fix the age included the depth of burial, the amount of water found in overlying volcanic glass bubbles, landscape dissection and magnetic methods.

Stage Band Festival To Be Saturday

Four local high school bands will be among 46 units competing at the fourth annual Redwood Empire Stage Band Festival Saturday at Sonoma State College.

Local bands competing include two from San Rafael High School, Terra Linda High School, Petaluma High School and two bands from Casa Grande High School, Petaluma. Bands will represent schools from 10 counties.

Competition will begin at 8 a.m. in Ives Hall with bands performing every 20 minutes throughout the day-long festival.

Winning bands will perform at a concert at 8 p.m. in the main gymnasium. Guest artists for the concert will be singer Jon Hendricks, the San Francisco Strutters and Hendrick's instrumental trio.

Hendricks will also perform with the College Concert Jazz Ensemble.

Supreme Court Acts Lashed By Cardinal

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court's abortion decision-cited as "another raw exercise in judicial power" -is a major contribution in the decline of the influence of religion in private and public life, according to Cardinal John Krol.

Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, addressing the NCCB's opening session yesterday, also cited the court's ban on aid to parochial schools as a decision "never expressed in the Constitution itself and never contemplated by its framers."

The abortion ruling last January was, Krol said, "another exercise of raw judicial power," opening the door "to the greatest slaughter of innocent life in the history of mankind."

The school aid decision, he said, "again deprived nonpublic school children of their share of the educational tax dollar" and also "diminished the role of religion and morality in the education of future citizens."

Recalling the high court has been chided for "constant preoccupation with the constitutionality of legislation rather than with its wisdom," Krol said:

"...The time is long overdue for the court to look beyond the judicial chambers, to see the moral corruption which accompanies the religious and spiritual impoverishment of our nation ... to show as much and more concern for the preservation of our nation and form of government as it does for the preservation of the Constitution ... (and) to see ways of increasing rather than decreasing the influence of religion and morality - the indispensable supports of our form of government."

He said evidence of dishonesty and immorality "at all levels of government" and in private life bears out George Washington's words that religion and morality are "indispensable supports of government."

Family Planning Clinics Slated

Memorial Held For Slain School Leader

OAKLAND (UPI) — Memorial services were held yesterday for city school superintendent Dr. Marcus A. Foster while police sought clues in his assassination-style shooting by a revolutionary group.

Foster, 50, a black native of Athens, Ga., was killed by eight cyanide-packed bullets in an Oakland School District parking lot last Tuesday and a group calling itself the "Symbionese Liberation Army" claimed by letter it had marked him for death.

Police said they were checking board meeting records for possible clues to the slaying carried out by three men wearing dark blue watchcaps, dark pants and dark denim jackets with white patches.

Foyter, a former Philadelphia School official, had earned tribute because he brought relative peace to the troubled Oakland school system. But the revolutionary group said it opposed Foster's plans for a police-on-campus program and an intensive student identification program.

The list included governors, mayors and senators, education officials from Oakland, Philadelphia, where Foster was formerly assistant superintendent, and Washington, D.C. and California state and federal education officials and at least a dozen clergymen.

Police said they would not comment on the revolutioary group's letter until a "detailed examination has been completed."

Lawmakers Eye Crime, Sanity

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A new Assembly committee will hold hearings next month on the state's treatment of mentally ill criminals, Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, announced yesterday.

Lanterman, chairman of the Select Committee on Mentally Disordered Criminal Offenders, said the six-member panel will study ways the state can change its treatment of such criminals and publish its recommendations in mid-January.

The hearings were scheduled for Dec. 13 at Patton State Hospital and Dec. 14 in Los Angeles.
